'PORK BARREL' KEPT UP TO $56,000,000 BY SENATE VOTE

House Increase Over Budget Ratified, 45 to 35, in Killing Amendments.

TALK OF A HARDING VETO

Twenty-Six Democrats and Twenty Republicans Reject $27,000,000 Estimate.

UNDERWOOD LED PROPOSAL

Twenty-Nine Republicans and Six Democrats Support Effort to Cut Huge Appropriation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The Senate late this afternoon followed the example of the House and by a vote of 46 to 35 overruled the recommendation of the Bureau of Budget which, after its investigation, informed Congress that $37,000,000 was all the Government could afford to spend on rivers and harbors in the fiscal year 1923-4.

The House raised the amount to $56,000,000 and that action the Senate ratified this afternoon. The bill will go to the President including this big item, and already there is talk on Capitol Hill that a Presidential veto of the Army Appropriation bill, to which the rivers and harbors item was tacked, may be in prospect.

The test on the "pork barrel" came on a motion by Senator Underwood to table all amendments which sought to reduce the $56,000,000 total. Twenty-six Democrats and twenty Republicans voted to table and twenty-nine Republicans and six Democrats voted in the negative.

The vote was as follows:

FOR THE MOTION—46.

Republicans—26.

Democrats—6.

Ashurst,	Jones (N. M.),	Hitchcock,

When it was announced that the Borah amendment, which cut the item to $27,000,000, the amount fixed by the Budget Bureau, and the Lenroot amendment, which reduced the total to $42,000,000, had been rejected, Senator Wadsworth in a last effort to save a few millions, moved to cut the total to $50,000,000. This motion was defeated, 44 to 38. Kendrick and Walsh (Mass.) deserted the rivers and harbors bloc on this motion, while Ladd, who did not vote on the motion to table, also voted with Senator Wadsworth.

Among the rivers, besides the Mississippi, Missouri, Ohio, Hudson and Tennessee, which are included in the list of navigable streams that are to be improved under the bill, are the Mattaponi, in Virginia; the Meherrin River and Contentnea Creek in North Carolina; the Caloosehatchie in Florida; Tombigbee Creek and the Big Sunflower River in Mississippi, and the Clatskanie in Oregon.

Mr. Wadsworth obtained an agreement to limit debate on the Army bill itself to ten minutes for each Senator on any one amendment after 2 P. M. tomorrow, and the expectation now is that a final vote would be reached before adjournment.

BRITISH DEATH RATES LOWEST ON RECORD

Vital Statistics for 1921 Show Great Advance in Preserving Adult and Infant Life.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—The annual report of the Registrar General for 1921, which is to be published tomorrow, will show great strides made in the preservation of life. The death rates for the United Kingdom, 12.1 for males and 11.3 for females, are the lowest on record. In the decade 1841-1850 the death rate was 22.4, so that if that had prevailed the deaths in 1921 would have been 350,000, instead of 450,629. The rates are lower than ever before in all the aggregates up to 65.

The rate per million of population for deaths from tuberculosis is 1,127, the lowest in eleven years, as were the rates from bronchitis and pneumonia. The cancer rate showed a slight increase and was higher than in any year since 1918, the greater part of the increase being among females.

Infant mortality was 83 per 1,000 births, the lowest recorded except in 1920, when it fell to 80. Last year's rate is 25 per 1,000 lower than the average rate of the five prewar years. Had deaths under one year been at the rate obtaining seventy-five years ago, they would have numbered 129,500, instead of 79,240, showing a saving of some 60,000 infant lives.

'George Windsor,' King, Wins Suit for Undelivered Beef

FORT WORTH, Tex., Feb. 8.—King George of Great Britain is to receive $660 for the non-delivery of sixty-four cases of Fort Worth manufactured corned beef which was purchased for the royal household.

Judgment for this amount has been entered in the District Court against the Chicago, Rock Island & Gulf Railroad Company, which, according to the pleadings, failed to send the corned beef to Hoboken, N. J., for its shipment across the ocean.

The suit was filed by "George Windsor, King of Great Britain and Ireland and the British dominions beyond the seas," last February.

CHURCH WON'T SHIRK, SAYS DR. MANNING

Ready to Act Against Any Minister Whose Denial of Christ's Deity Is Clear.

EXPLAINS GRANT CASE STAND

Bishop at Church Club Dinner Tells of Many Letters Received From Perplexed Christians.

Bishop William T. Manning, at a dinner of the Church Club of New York at the Waldorf-Astoria last night, declared that the Church would not shrink from meeting the issue if any priest should deny the Deity of Christ in "words, clear, courageous and unambiguous."

The Bishop spoke to about 800 of the most prominent and active members of the Church in this city. Others on the list of speakers included the Right Rev. Charles Slattery, D. D., Bishop Coadjutor of Massachusetts; the Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D. D., newly chosen rector of Grace Church; the Rev. H. R. L. Sheppard, D. D., Vicar of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, London, and Edmund L. Bayliss, President of the Seamen's Church Institute.

Bishop Manning, in addition to his supposed reference to his controversy with Dr. Grant, appealed for an awakening of vital, personal religion. He said:

I am sure you all agree with me when I say the thing we need above all other things at this time is an awakening of true, vital, personal religion. We need an awakening of personal religion to give us firm hold on life, clear guidance, true standards, definite convictions of right and wrong, to give us the true purpose and satisfaction and strength in life that we should have.

This all comes to us through the stirring of religion in our souls, the realization of our relationship to Jesus Christ. Never was the world more in need of Jesus Christ and of His divine light and guidance than it is now. And let us remember that He is able to be our light and help, able to bless and guide and be with us only because He is God as truly as He is man. Never in the whole history of the Church did the great words of our creed mean more to us than they do today: "God is God, Light of Light, Very God of Very God."

I am receiving a great many very touching letters from earnest Christian people of all churches, who are perplexed and troubled by certain recent events, and I do not wonder that they are perplexed and troubled. To reassure the writers of these letters, and others who feel as they do, I want to say with all possible plainness, at this representative gathering of our Diocese, that if any Minister of this Church, Bishop, Priest or Deacon, should deny the Deity of our Lord Jesus Christ and express this denial in words clear, courageous and unambiguous, such as the Church can deal with, no one need have the least fear that the Church will shrink from meeting this issue, or that she will fail to take definite action, and the whole body of the clergy and people of this Church will approve and support such action. But the point to be kept clearly in mind is that the Church cannot take formal action against denial of her faith unless the denial is expressed in words that are clear and unevasive and are acknowledged by their author.

We want all men to know that we believe in the Lord Jesus Christ with the fullest and freest use of our minds as well as of our hearts. We want all men to know that like St. Paul we are "not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ" and that we accept its whole message. We want the whole world to know that we believe in the Christian religion as a supernatural revelation.

EXPLOSION ENTOMBS 122 MINE WORKERS; 100 REPORTED DEAD

NO TRACE YET OF OTHERS

Terrific Blast Destroys Telephone Lines and Isolates the Town for a Time.

MANY POINTS RUSH AID

Similar Disaster Cost Lives of 263 Miners in the Same Town in 1913.

DAWSON, N. M., Feb. 8 (Associated Press).—A terrific explosion that rocked the workings of coal mine No. 1 of the Phelps-Dodge Corporation here today entombed 122 miners working inside.

At a late hour tonight two bodies had been recovered and a statement given to The Associated Press by the company said:

"We don't know whether the men in the mine are alive or not."

The explosion occurred at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon and tore away all of the heavy concrete work at the mouth of the main entry.

Within a short time after the blast, rescue workers had cleared the debris from the mouth of the mine and a rescue crew, led by W. D. Brennan, general manager of the mine, entered.

The imprisoned miners are believed to be about 5,000 feet from the portal of the mine. The explosion did not wreck the mine fan, and ventilation soon was established.

The cause of the explosion is a mystery. A statement by the company declared the mine was well sprinkled and was not gaseous.

While company wrokers who volunteered for rescue duty were continuing their efforts tonight, the United States Bureau of Mines started a rescue car here from Hanna, Wyo., and a second car, sent by the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, was on the way from Trinidad.

Almost before the reverberation from the explosion had ended, scores of women and children, members of the families of the miners, ran to the mouth of the property, weeping for their loved ones inside. They pressed forward about the cordon of guards formed in front of the mouth of the mine.

DENVER, Col., Feb. 8 (Associated Press).—More than 100 of the miners caught in the Davison explosion died, according to a report received by The Denver Post from its correspondent in Trinidad.

Communication with Dawson was impossible for a time, the telephone company reports. There was but one line into the town and more than fifty emergency calls were being rushed over the phone.

The bodies of more than one hundred were reported to have been found by rescue crews.

At 7:45 o'clock tonight the corporation which owns the mine sent the first telegram to The Associated Press, saying:

"Our No. 1 mine exploded at 2:30 P. M. There are 122 men in the mine. No further details at this time."

A correspondent of The Rocky Mountain News, who returned to Raton, N. M., from Dawson tonight, telephoned to The News that the Phelps-Dodge Corporation had established a censorship and was refusing to give newspaper correspondents details of the explosion.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Feb. 8.—Reports tonight from Dawson were that two men had been removed from the Phelps Dodge mine dead and three had been taken out alive.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 8.—A rescue car of the United States Bureau of Mines, located at Ajo, Ariz., will be rushed to Dawson, N. M., just as soon as the district engineer of the bureau at Berkeley, Cal., ascertains if it is needed, J. J. Bourquin, an official at bureau headquarters, announced here tonight. Mr. Bourquin, on learning of the explosion, sent a telegram to the California district chief, instructing him to get in touch with the situation at Dawson immediately. A telegram was sent to the rescue workers at Ajo to hold themselves in readiness to start for Dawson on a minute's notice.

The mine disaster at Dawson is the second in a decade experienced by the little mining town. Entrapped in a tunnel of the Stag Canyon Coal Mine No. 2, also owned by the Phelps, Dodge Corporation on Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 21, 1913, by a terrific explosion, 263 miners lost their lives before rescuers crews could reach them, and two of the rescuers were killed by the fatal gases as they sought to reach their comrades in the fume-filled death chambers underground.

Twenty-three men—all but six of whom were in a distant portion of the mine when the fierce blast wrecked the interior workings—were all who survived.

Presidential Boom Report Bunk, Says Smith; Sees Plenty of Work Ahead of Him at Albany

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 8—Governor Smith today knocked into the proverbial cocked hat stories that he is nursing a Presidential boom. The rumors were inspired by a visit here of B. F. Yoakum, a railroad executive, who is an agricultural enthusiast and the owner of a model farm on Long Island.

Mr. Yoakum, although a Republican, supported Mr. Smith for Governor and since the election there have been recurrent reports that he was active in a campaign to get Presidential delegates pledged to Governor Smith in southern and western States. Mr. Yoakum took breakfast at the Executive Mansion today and was in conference with the Governor for some time.

"Any statement about my seeing Mr. Yoakum or anybody else in connection with a Presidential boom is bunk or worse," said the Governor. "Nobody who is a friend of mine would come to me and suggest such a thing. I hope I have a little bit of sense left. I've got all I can attend to right here. When I look over what work I have ahead of me, I sometimes think that if I live through it all I will be lucky."

The Governor explained that the only subject he had discussed with Mr. Yoakum was agriculture and problems arising in relation to his determination to gain control of the Agricultural Department, which under the present system is controlled by and responsible to the Legislature rather than the Governor, although it is one of the administrative departments.

12 Paper Mills Supply Marks; 45,000,000,000 a Day Issued

BERLIN, Feb. 8 (Associated Press). — Thirty-three printing plants and twelve paper mills are being kept busy supplying Germany with the new currency which is being issued at the rate of 45,000,000,000 marks a day.

The introduction soon of notes of 50,000-mark denomination is expected to increase the daily output of the presses by 15,000,000,000 marks.

It is estimated that by the end of the month every day will see 125,000,000,000 marks in new notes pouring into circulation through the issuance of notes of 20,000 and 100,000 marks, as well as by an increase in the flood of 10,000 mark bills.

R. C. VANDERBILT TO WED, SAYS RUMOR

Miss Gloria, Daughter of Harry Hays Morgan, Reported to Be Bride-Elect.

NO DENIAL FROM EITHER

Said to Have Planned Sailing on Olympic Tomorrow, but Reservation Is Cancelled.

Rumors that Reginald C. Vanderbilt and Miss Gloria Morgan, daughter of Harry Hays Morgan, American High Commissioner to Belgium, were to be married and sail tomorrow on the Olympic, gained impetus yesterday when it was reported that Mr. Vanderbilt had booked reservations on the White Star steamship. Last night, however, it was said that the reservations had been cancelled, and officials of the line said they were unaware that Mr. Vanderbilt had made any reservation.

When reporters went to the Vanderbilt home at 12 East Seventy-seventh Street they were informed that he was out. Subsequently a servant took the report to Mr. Vanderbilt and over the telephone he quotes his employer as not wishing to make any statement.

Miss Morgan at the Waldorf-Astoria also was reported out throughout the day, and last night the management said she had checked out, leaving no forwarding address. During the day a woman answered the telephone in the Morgan suite and, denying the report that Mr. Vanderbilt would sail on the Olympic, referred questions on the rumored engagement to Miss Morgan, "who will give you a definite answer."

Until a short time ago Miss Morgan's suite at the Waldorf-Astoria was shared by her mother, Mrs. Harry Hays Morgan. On Jan. 29, however, Mrs. Morgan checked out of the hotel and departed for Brussels to register at the Grand Hotel. Mr. Morgan, who is also Consul General at Brussels, was reappointed to his post on Jan. 1, and it was said that Mrs. Morgan's plans were to rejoin him at the Belgian capital.

Mrs. Morgan has made frequent trips between this country and Belgium, accompanied by Miss Gloria and another daughter, Miss Thelma. A third daughter, Miss Consuelo Morgan was married to Count Jean de Maupas, son of the Count and Countess de Maupas du Juglart more than two years ago. The young couple paid a visit to this city soon afterward.

In June last the Countess sued for divorce, and the decree was entered in Paris one month later. In her complaint she alleged incompatibility, and the suit was not contested. At the time of their marriage by the Archbishop of Laodice, Miss Morgan was 17 years old, and the Count was 33 years old.

Miss Gloria Morgan's present visit here dates back to last August when, she arrived on the Lapland and reported losing her passport over the ship's side in Antwerp in the fervor of her goodbye to her father. Society since then has seen Miss Morgan and Mr. Vanderbilt much in each other's company.

Mr. Vanderbilt married Miss Cathleen Gebhard Neilson, daughter of Mrs. Frederick H. Neilson, in April, 1903. He was then 23 years of age, and two years previously had inherited a share of his father's estate, estimated at the time as about $10,000,000. In 1915, he received $5,000,000 by the will of his brother, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, who was lost with the Lusitania.

Sixteen years after his marriage, in the interval a daughter, Miss Cathleen Vanderbilt having been born, Vanderbilt was sued for divorce by his wife. She charged desertion over a period of five years and the suit was unopposed. Mrs. Vanderbilt obtained the custody of Miss Cathleen.

During the years after his marriage, Vanderbilt became known as a polo player, a skillful driver of racing cars and as a horseman, becoming President of the American Hackney Horse Society and a Director of the National Horse Show Association.

During the war he was a liberal donor to the various war relief and charity organizations.

HOUSE WILL PASS DEBT BILL TODAY, LIMITING DEBATE

OTHER NATIONS RESTRICTED

COMMITTEE VOTE 12 TO 3

Burton Explains the Terms at Hearing—Senate May Delay Measure for Ship Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—It is practically certain that approval will be given by the House of Representatives tomorrow to the American Commission's plan for settling the British debt, which was carried to Congress by President Harding yesterday, accompanied by his plea for early action.

The Burton bill authorizing the acceptance of the terms and amending the existing debt law so as to make this possible, will be taken up in the forenoon under a unanimous consent agreement. No doubt is felt that by adjournment in the afternoon the bill will be passed with little or no opposition.

The bill was reported favorably to the House this afternoon from the Ways and Means Committee by a vote of 12 to 3. Ten Republican committee members, Chairman Fordney of Michigan, Messrs. Green of Iowa, Longworth of Ohio, Hawley of Oregon, Young of North Dakota, Frear of Wisconsin, Tillson of Connecticut, Hadley of Washington, Bacharach of New Jersey and Chandler of Oklahoma, and two Democrats, Crisp of Georgia and Martin of Louisiana, voted for a favorable report. Representatives Collier of Mississippi, Oldfield of Arkansas and Carew of New York, Democrats, voted "No."

Two changes were made in the bill as introduced, one of them embodying a suggested quotation from the Presidential message outlining the policy of the Government, and the other making the bill read so that settlements with other Governments would be carried out by terms "similar but not more favorable."

Revised Text of the Bill.

The Burton bill, which is identical with another introduced in the Senate by Mr. Smoot, now reads:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

That the first proviso of Section 2 of the act entitled "An Act to Create a Commission Authorized Under Certain Conditions to Refund or Convert Obligations of Foreign Governments Held by the United States of America and for Other Purposes" approved Feb. 9, 1922, is amended to read as follows:

Provided, That the settlement of indebtedness of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland to the United States recommended by the commission and approved by the President as set forth by him in a message presented to Congress on Feb. 7, 1923 [here are inserted extracts from the message], is hereby approved and authorized, and settlements similar but not more favorable in terms with other Governments indebted to the United States as set forth in this section, are hereby authorized to be made, subject to the approval of the President.

The House will meet at 11 A. M. instead of noon in order to give time for the debate, which, it was understood tonight, would consume four hours, divided equally between the Republican and Democratic sides.

Democrats Agree to Quick Action.

Floor Leader Mondell disclaimed any intention to curtail discussion, while Representative Garrett, the Democratic leader, said that no matter what the outcome of the vote his party had no desire to delay consideration. Through agreement this afternoon the necessity of a special rule in order to force the passage of the bill was obviated, but the Republican leaders had decided to secure such a rule if the Democrats manifested any intention to prevent a vote by tomorrow evening.

It is generally conceded that the Democrats privately believe that the settlement agreed upon by the American and British commissions is the most feasible in the circumstances. Some criticism will be made tomorrow by

Prayer Attacking Courts and Churches Draws Censure of Colorado House

DENVER, Col., Feb. 8.—The Colorado House of Representatives adopted today a resolution of censure, expressing displeasure and disagreement with the sentiments expressed in the opening prayer of Chaplain J. R. Kader.

Parts of the prayer which drew fire were:

"Our courts are corrupt; God has been expelled from our churches; our pulpits are filled with essayists; our boys and girls are going to the dogs; our laboring men are going to work with empty pails while our farmers starve and the middlemen wax fat on exorbitant prices; . . . our banks are bursting with money."

The chaplain began with the exclamation, "Oh, Lord, how long is this condition to endure?" and ended with a supplication that the Deity guide the lawmakers to the end that "greed might be overcome, and justice done among men."

Members of the House voiced disagreement with the prayer soon after its conclusion. Following a period of heated debate, it was decided that the subject be considered in executive session. Several hours' consideration in secret resulted in support of the resolution, which was ordered to be printed in the House journal. A committee was appointed to inform the chaplain of the action taken.

Representative Cook, a former minister, opened debate on the prayer with the statement that he was surprised at the wording.

"I do not believe that the Almighty is especially concerned by these little verbal wireless bulletins with which our chaplain is annoying Him," he said.

France Orders Warships Ready for Smyrna; British Super-Dreadnoughts Are Held Near By

PARIS, Feb. 8.—A dispatch to the Matin from Toulon says the French armored cruiser Mulhouse has received orders to prepare to depart for Turkish waters, and the Edgar Quinet, which the Mulhouse was to replace, has been ordered to remain in the Near East because of the Smyrna situation.

It is announced that several cruisers, some torpedo boats and submarines are in condition to leave immediately if needed.

VALETTA, Malta, Feb. 8 (Associated Press).—The British superdreadnoughts Resolution and Emperor of India arrived at Mytilene yesterday, ready to steam the short distance across to Smyrna if the Turks take action on their threat to force the allied warships from that port.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 8 (Associated Press).—The British light cruiser Curacao, with Rear Admiral Nicholson aboard, entered Smyrna harbor this morning. The Admiral immediately landed. He called on the Turkish military commander and warned him of the responsibility that would be involved in any act of hostility.

The Allied Commissioners have handed the Kemalists a new note, demanding withdrawal of the obnoxious order against the presence of foreign warships at Smyrna.

The Governor of Smyrna is reported to have informed the French Consul there that he has extended by twenty-four hours the time within which the allied warships must leave Smyrna harbor. The Governor is said to have decided upon the postponement in order that he may receive instructions from the Angora Government.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 8.—The Angora situation has not changed. The Nationalist press, judging the Lausanne conference worthless, calls the country to arms, declaring that in case the Mudania protocol is ruptured the Franco-Turkish agreement will be called off also.

The political set in Angora still hopes for peace, but the press campaign against France continues.

The French authorities are said to be trying to throw the blame on the Italians.

An Exchange Telegraph states that the Turkish Journal Aksam reports that the Turks have closed Smyrna and Ismidt ports by mines. Commercial vessels are entering Smyrna by pilotage.

Turks Extend Time and Miss Harbor.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 8.—It was announced at the Foreign Office today that the Turkish commander at Smyrna had extended to sunset tonight the time limit by which foreign warships must quit Smyrna harbor.

French and British warships having received orders not to comply, the situation is being watched from here with the greatest interest. It is the official belief that the Turks will not make good their threat to fire upon the foreign ships if they do not sail away. It is recalled that just after the Mudania armistice the French and British troops received an ultimatum to quit Constantinople, but that Angora backed down before the allied firmness.

It also is learned here that the Turks have mined the entry to Smyrna harbor, which, of course, would have the result of hindering reinforcements in reaching the warships if an engagement began between them and the shore batteries.

According to Paris information, France has in Smyrna Harbor the cruiser Ernest Renan, 13,000 tons; the torpedoboat Somali, 800 tons, and the gunboat Dedaigneuse, 400 tons. Great Britain has the cruiser Cambrian, 5,000 tons; Italy the cruiser Venetia, 13,000 tons, while Holland has the cruiser Admiral Tromp, 5,000 tons, and the United States has one destroyer, tonnage not given.

The Turkish ultimatum called for the departure of all ships of more than 1,000 tons.

The French have issued orders for the evacuation of all French nationals who wish to leave. British nationals were removed from Smyrna in December.

The Near East situation rivals the Ruhr in importance in the French press. Almost endless criticism is heaped upon the French Government for having been too easy with the Turks, and an almost unanimous opinion prevails that England and France must stand together before the Turks making, if necessary, a show of force. If the Turks carry out their threat to fire on the allied ships a show of force would quickly become obligatory.

Turkish Attitude Inexplicable.

The move of the Turks seems almost inexplicable in view of the generally accepted fact that the earliest spot at which the Turks could strike is Mudania, where the British have a comparatively feeble force. For the Turks to threaten to begin hostilities where the Allies could bring heavy reinforcements would be as a surprise.

The Journal des Debats says today that Germans have been at work in Angora and that the Turkish order may be credited as their work. The paper says that other incidents may be expected in the Near East as long as peace has not been made and adds that the French Government is going to

25,000 WORKERS QUIT FRENCH MINES

Lorraine Walkout for Wage Increase Is Attributed to Communists.

POINCARE REJECTS DEBATE

Flatly Refuses to Discuss in the Chamber His Policy in the Ruhr and Near East.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 8.—Twenty-five thousand miners in the Moselle district in Lorraine went on strike this morning on the plea of a wage dispute. This strike, following that of 260,000 miners in the Sarre Basin, who struck two days ago, put into idleness mines which produce 40 per cent. of the French coal supply.

It is charged by the French officials that German instigators have been at work both in the Sarre and Moselle districts. The Sarre mines as well as the Moselle mines have been occupied by troops.

There has been agitation for some months among the French miners for an increase of wages. Although Marcel Cachin, the Communist Deputy, and most of their leaders are in jail, the Communists have gone to work with great energy to precipitate a strike of all French miners. The United Federation of Miners, Communist controlled, which numbers about one-third of the Arras, Douai and St. Etienne districts, the principal coal-producing centres of France, have, as mentioned yesterday, served an ultimatum that if they do not get a wage increase by Feb. 15 they will strike on Feb. 16.

Deny Move Is Political.

The Communist papers proclaim in great headlines that there is nothing pro-German nor political about their move and that it is purely syndical, but signs are not lacking to throw discredit on this claim. The Communists really seek political advantage, using discontent among the miners to initiate a fight on the policies of Premier Poincaré.

It is interesting to note that whereas the Sarre miners struck to demand the same wages as the French miners, the Moselle miners now strike for more money.

The Communist papers which proclaim the purity of their strike movement call attention in the next columns to the prospect of a total strike by Ruhr railroad workers at the end of this week or the beginning of next.

M. Poincaré's troubles seem to be piling up. Atop of the Communist effort, which, while the Communist Deputies have no strength, may make trouble if they can use the workers, M. Poincaré's old-time political opponents are trying to force in the Chamber a debate on the conduct of the Ruhr experiment.

Former Premier Leygues, representing the faction in the Foreign Relations Committee of the Chamber which includes MM. Briand and Tardieu, waited on the Premier today with a request that he appear before them to make an explanation. M. Poincaré gave a flat refusal, for it is his theory that the Chamber should let him alone for the present. However, any Deputy can make a speech on any subject when he likes. It should be emphasized that the com-

Germans in House to House Canvass Seek to Defeat French Aims in Area.

DUESSELDORF, Feb. 8.—Everywhere throughout the Ruhr and Rhineland the most active propaganda is going on to encourage resistance and stimulate the national spirit. Religious as well as political organizations are engaged in a house to house canvass among the miners, railroad workers and officials. Protestant leagues and Catholic brotherhoods are equally sharing in the work with nationalist, monarchist and pan-German organizations.

If the Social Democrats and Socialists are not taking part, it is simply because the organizers of this resistance campaign have not tackled them in exactly the right way and have too lightly regarded them as sure supporters of the Nationalist cause.

All this propaganda work is directed from Munster and Elberfeld, on the north and south sides of the Ruhr, where former President Fuchs and Dr. Schmidt, the former Burgomaster of Elberfeld, are in command. They are using every means with which to strengthen and support their campaign, but the most common of all their arguments is the simple one that if the people will hang on just one month more M. Poincaré will certainly be defeated and the French troops withdrawn from the Ruhr.

Talk of One-Day General Strike.

There is talk today among the workers for a one-day general strike to be proclaimed at the end of this week or the beginning of the next over the whole district as a kind of protest. Especially the railroads and postal services will be affected, and it seems as if these public servants were the only workers on whom the Government can count with any great certainty. The idea of a general strike is not popular among the people.

Already in Duesseldorf a shortage of some foodstuffs, such as sugar and milk, which has resulted from the strike, has begun to worry the people. At the house doors the canvassers of the resistance campaign are being met by the questions as to whether the Government cannot do something else.

Just as last week, there are beginning to be signs of discontent and dissatisfaction with the way in which resistance is being conducted. Even the railroad strike has failed to this extent, that today the French, by herculean labors, managed to ship three trainloads of coal out of the district toward France. These three trainloads are the first consignment from 400 cars which have been collected at Wedar, near Duisburg, and are all ready for shipment.

This success for the French may be small in size but it is important in that its effect on opinion both in France and here is not small.

On their side the Germans have not had any success at all in shipping coal through the cordon. On the eastern side the blockade is complete and sooner or later, even the Germans are beginning to admit, something drastic will have to be done to alter the situation, which in a month's time will begin to strangle Germany just as she was strangled by the blockade in the war.

Workers Against Hohenzollerns.

It is not unnatural, then, that in such a situation there should be all sorts of plottings and counter-plottings. In the interview which he gave to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent yesterday Dr. Schmidt, the former Burgomaster of Elberfeld, spoke of his fear of a monarchist revolution should the Cuno Government fail, and people here are impressed by the report that last Sunday evening former Crown Prince Wilhelm made an automobile trip to the frontier from Doorn, where he was staying with his father, and held at some unknown spot a secret conference with Royalist leaders.

But even in royalist circles it is admitted that any attempt at restoration would be just now unsafe.

The workers in the Ruhr district are far more opposed to the House of Hohenzollern than they are to the French operation with England. In the common decision of Paris and London not to recede before the Turkish ultimatum, the paper sees a good omen.

The Temps says: "It is clear that a Near East conflict, in which France is concerned, would be very advantageous for the German Government. Cuno knows that resistance and sabotage cannot go on forever, and that the German people are beginning to get enough. If war begins between Turkey and the Allies the German papers can explain to their readers that France has been weakened and that Russia is going to take a hand, and that in a general mix-up Germany will come out on top. We recall the Turks' memory to their own recent history." The Temps says the situation shows a necessity for concluding a rapid peace with Turkey.

Declare Allies Standing Firm.

PARIS, Feb. 8 (Associated Press).—The Allies are standing firmly on their positions in regard to Smyrna, it was declared tonight at the Foreign Office, and their small fleet there was reinforced during the day by the British cruiser Curacao. The commanders of the vessels have been instructed not to leave in obedience to the Turkish demand that they evacuate the harbor, and are under strict orders to open fire if attacked by the shore batteries.

The American and Dutch war craft are expected to leave the port, it was said, because they are not in the same position as the Allies, inasmuch as the United States and Holland are not signatories of the armistice arranged with the Turks at Mudania. The Foreign Office is still without news as to whether these vessels have left, but it is thought they must have done so, since they would be placed in a difficult position in case of action between the allied fleet and the Turkish batteries.

The French Government is still very much exercised over the situation, although it is felt that the Turks at Angora will not assume the responsibility for deliberate hostilities against Great Britain and France. The question now, it is thought, is whether the Angora Government, after having told the Allies to get out of Smyrna, will be able to keep the Turkish officers at that port in hand.

Admiral Bristol Rushing East.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, Feb. 8.—Speeding southward aboard the Simplon Orient Express, Admiral Bristol, American Commissioner in the Near East, is rushing to his post to handle the situation of the United States warships in Turkish waters affected by the Angora ultimatum at Smyrna. He is traversing Serbia tonight and is due at the Golden Horn on Saturday morning. Orders from Washington were transmitted from the embassy in Belgrade and Sofia for delivery aboard the train.

The Eiffel Tower tonight picked up a wireless message from the commander of American forces in Turkish waters, sent from Osmanier Station and addressed to Annapolis, saying, "All safe. Turks have made no hostile move. Remaining unless instructed otherwise."

It is reported that the Navy Department wirelessed a reply, ordering them to sit tight until Admiral Bristol instructs otherwise.

Although the extension of the Turkish ultimatum demanding that foreign warships quit Smyrna expired at sundown this evening, the Kemalist representative here, Hussein Rajib, declared tonight that he believed Angora was ready to negotiate instead of insisting on expelling the warships.

American destroyers at Smyrna are the Edsall, under command of Commander Powell; the Hopkins, under Captain Tozer, and the King, under Lieutenant Commander Fuller. Sixteen other destroyers and the cruiser Pittsburgh are at Constantinople, ready to proceed to Smyrna if necessary.

The French announce that the Allied High Commissioners in Constantinople have been instructed to inform Angora that their warships have been ordered to bombard the Turkish Smyrna batteries if the Nationalists open fire. The Intelligence Department was notified long ago that Mustapha Kemal Pasha had placed several batteries of six-inch guns on the Smyrna seafront.

The Temps tonight declares that the Turks are determined to oust the warships from Smyrna because, since their failure at Lausanne, leading to the rupture of the Greco-Turkish negotiations at Lausanne, leaving the railway connection between Constantinople and Adrianople Cut, Mustapha Kemal had decided to transfer the capital to Smyrna instead of the Golden Horn.

London Cabinet Meets.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—The British Cabinet is now meeting daily, keeping in touch with the twin crises—the Ruhr and Turkey.

I understand the majority of the Cabinet favors waiting for the meeting of Parliament next Tuesday before coming to any decision about the withdrawal of the British troops from the Rhine, when it is expected there will be a demand for this action from large sections of all parties in the House of Commons.

News from Smyrna is negatively good in so far as nothing has happened there yet. Meanwhile in this matter France and Great Britain are in complete harmony, regarding the Turkish demand that foreign warships leave the harbor as a piece of dangerous impertinence with which they have no intention of complying.

The Foreign Office states that the forces there now comprise on American torpedoboat, one English cruiser, one French cruiser, one French torpedoboat, one French gunboat, one Italian cruiser and one Dutch cruiser. Other British units are now on their way and the ships have been instructed to resist any effort by the Turks to compel them to leave Smyrna.

Sofia Hears of Attacks on Greeks.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Feb. 7.—Advices from the frontier declare that the activity of irregular bands in Thrace is on the increase and that several Greek military posts along the Maritza and in the interior were attacked. The Greek troops, undertaking several measures in reprisal, are said to have occupied several measures in reprisal, are said to have occupied several points along the Maritza and near the Adrianople station of Karagatach. The Turkish and Bulgarian population of Thrace is reported on the move toward the Bulgarian frontier.

The concentration of the Greek troops in Western Thrace is said to have been completed. The Greek military authorities are reported to have punished 200 Greek officers for laxness in discipline.

Much uneasiness exists among the Bulgarian public over the possible consequences of the cessation of the peace negotiations at Lausanne.

GERMAN PROTEST TO FRANCE.

Denial That International Train Stoppage Is Treaty Violation.

BERLIN, Feb. 8 (Associated Press).—The German Government has presented a protest to France against the occupation of Offenburg and Appenweier, in Baden.

It explains that the stoppage of international trains, said by the French to be the cause of the occupation, was due to the coal shortage and was thus a temporary emergency measure and not a violation of the peace treaty.

But, the note continues, even were the stoppage a formal violation of the treaty, the occupation of German towns for a matter of such secondary importance "would be a mere caricature of a state of peace."

STINNES FOR HOLDING OUT.

"No Negotiations for Us," He Says in Brusque Interview.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—"I have seen Herr Stinnes, who, with Herr Thell, his general manager, bolted here on his journey from Essen to Hamburg," cables The Evening Standard's special correspondent from Muelheim. "He greeted me impressively on learning that I sought an interview, and scowled when I asked him:

'Does the position warrant German making opening negotiations?'

"He replied: 'No negotiations by us; we have it out. That is all I have to say.'"

REMINDS AMERICA OF THE 14 POINTS

Prince Max Says the Desire to Help Europe Is Still a Force Here.

HOPES FOR INTERVENTION

German Ex-Chancellor Declares That Poincare Has Lured France With False Prospects.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 8.—Prince Max of Baden, who lives the secluded life of a country gentleman at his fine estate at Salem, Lake Constance, and did not deign even to be disturbed by the sharp attacks against him in the ex-Kaiser's book, has at last broken his long silence by an interesting article in the Tageblatt about the Ruhr crisis.

Reviewing conditions just before Jan. 11 last, Prince Max comes to the conclusion that a state bordering on civil war prevailed in Germany. He writes:

"Class hatred was rampant and murderers moved among society without needing to fear ostracism. Awful crimes were committed daily, now under the sign of the Soviet star and again by men who swore by the swastika. One day we heard of preparations for pogroms, and the next day another city was terrorized by men in the black shirts of Fascisti.

"France chuckled to herself over these manifest signs of German degeneration, which impressed her with the conviction that the German people had lost their national conscience, and that if Cuno's Government said 'no' today, there would be another tomorrow that would say 'yes.' By such arguments Poincaré persuaded the French people to give him a free hand.

Says Poincare Allured French.

"In France one can clearly distinguish three different opinions—first, that of the large masses, who demand reparation plain and simple and who have been told 100,000 times that Germany will pay for everything. 'Let me go to the banks of the Rhine and see if Germany does not come out with the goods,' was the bait which Poincaré held out for these people.

"Secondly, there are very large numbers of peaceful citizens in France who fear nothing more than another war with a regenerated Germany. These good people Poincaré allured by telling them that an invasion of the Ruhr district would stab Germany's economic vitality in the heart and make a war with France impossible for ever.

"Thirdly, there is the opinion of pure imperialist circles, which are determined not to rest until France dominates Europe. This group is largely supported by the metal industry and capitalists.

Influence of America and Britain.

"Now, let us look at America and England. What was their position when the storm broke Jan. 11? I cannot help thinking that the Anglo-Saxon nations could have prevented the Ruhr invasion if they had seriously wished; for, for instance, their representatives in Paris had declared that a Ruhr invasion represented not only a violation of international law but also a breach of the Versailles peace. If that had been done, Poincaré would not have had the unanimous support of the French people.

"Millions of Frenchmen fear isolation and are impressed with Germany's fate. Not humane reasons nor consideration for Germany should have prompted the English Government to interfere, but the honor of Old England.

"America was even less concerned about Germany's fate than England. It seems as if America's foreign policy has been paralyzed since Versailles. America need no expert advice but fail to compel consideration for this advice. One American financial expert said last year: 'A loan is only possible if American banks can tell their clients that it is a paying proposition.' That is not the spirit that can help Europe, bleeding from innumerable wounds.

Holds Wilson Lacked Insight.

"A few days ago the American troops went home. What an inglorious end of the grand army that came across the ocean to save the Old World! At the time when Wilson's words broke upon the world like lightning during the dark days of the war: 'My aim is justice for victors and vanquished alike, and I have the power to enforce it.' At that time the world stood upon the threshold of a new era, but Wilson lacked insight into the world's affairs and great heart. It's my right to remind the United States of the fourteen points, because that contract was made with me.

"But what did we hear from America afterward! 'Let Europe perish in the chaos'—the chaos which the United States helped to create. However, Jan. 11, 1923, sounded an alarm not only for Germany but for America and England; also, perhaps, even for France.

German Divisions Healed.

"Among our people the rents and gaps have suddenly closed that had encouraged the French invasion. Class war has abruptly ceased in the Ruhr district. Workmen, officials and owners no longer fight for class privileges, but for soil of Westphalia for Germany. They defend their work which they wish to perform as free men, not as slaves. The world gazes with amazement at the unexpected spectacle of a suddenly born national energy after the Anglo-Saxon nations had been told by their newspaper correspondents that the soul of the German was burnt out.

"Still the American and English Governments look on in helplessness, waiting for the verdict of their nations. However public opinion in those countries moves much more quickly than their Governments. Large circles in England today condemn Bonar Law's attitude.

"Today no one who says the French are right will be applauded in England. The instinct of centuries asserts itself. A Frenchman who, ignoring justice and the treaty, invades the Ruhr district is capable of doing likewise in any neighbor's country.

"In America we observe very much the same conditions. The hesitating, cool precaution of the Washington Government is not the dignified reflection of the feelings of the people. Among the people there still lives, beneath the surface, a feeling of responsibility and it asserts itself now. I do not wish to exaggerate, but in both Anglo-Saxon countries forces are active that demand diplomatic intervention.

Poincare as False Prophet.

"France is obviously disappointed. Poincaré's principal predictions have failed, namely, 'that Germany will pay as soon as we use forces and Germany will crumble to pieces when our troops invade the Ruhr district. That will cost us little money and no mobilisation will be necessary.'

"However we must not deceive ourselves concerning the dangers that still threaten German unity—the radicals of the right and left who feel in peril of drowning in the wave of national enthusiasm. The nation will have nothing to do with either of them, but they are desperate and unscrupulous and must be watched. Furthermore, we must refrain from any action towards France that might place us in a wrong position. Frenchmen will commit crimes. They cannot master their tempers, but we must."

Prince Max then unreservedly praises the strategy of Cuno's government and finally declares that, though France broke the Treaty of Versailles, Germany must always be ready for the heaviest sacrifices for reparation if France returns to the limits of the Versailles peace.

AMERICAN SHIP EXEMPT FROM SMYRNA ORDER

Turks Regard Her as a Neutral—No Report of Protest by Our Vice Consul There.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Official advices today showed that Turkish authorities at Smyrna did not include the American destroyer Edsall as among foreign war craft ordered out of that port. The Turkish commander elected to construe orders from his Government closing the port to foreign warships of more than 1,000 tons burden as not applying to the American craft, although as a matter of official record the ship does slightly exceed that size.

It was assumed by officials here that the action of the Turkish military authorities in Smyrna in exempting the Edsall from the order was taken on the tonnage ground for the purpose of avoiding the necessity of passing upon the more delicate question of American neutrality. In any event the question which the allied nations have had to face in connection with the Smyrna order is not before the United States Government. The Edsall or some other destroyer will remain at Smyrna to look out for American interests.

Published explanations of the Turkish reasons for ordering foreign war craft out of Smyrna harbor would indicate that it was not intended by the Angora Government to include American or any other neutral craft in this prohibition. It has been stated that the Angora Government viewed the presence of allied warships at Smyrna as a possible source of danger to the Turkish army in the event of further hostilities between Turkish and Greek forces, as the ships of the allies of Greece might screen the landing of Greek troops there where they could strike at the rear of the Turkish army.

Since the United States is not an ally of Greece against Turkey and is not and has not been at war with Turkey, the same argument could not apply to American ships in Smyrna harbor, a condition which the action of the Turkish military commander there probably overlooked in holding that the exclusion order did not apply to the Edsall.

Reports that the American Vice Consul at Smyrna had protested jointly with the allied representatives against the warship exclusion order have not been confirmed in official advices. So far as the State Department knows no such action has been taken, nor have any instructions been sent to the Consul or to American representatives in Constantinople to make a protest. The advices saying that the Edsall at Smyrna had been exempted were construed as making any American action in the matter unnecessary on the basis of present information.

In view of the reported Turkish purpose to close Smyrna harbor by laying mines, it is to be assumed that American vessels stationed in Turkish waters will move in or out of Smyrna only when urgent errands require and then with the complete co-operation of the Turkish authorities, who would naturally furnish pilots. The closure of the harbor was expected to become effective today.

DEMANDS FRENCH TAX RISE.

Finance Minister Insists on Increase of 1,500,000,000 Francs.

PARIS, Feb. 8.—Finance Minister de Lasteyrie held to his demands for increased taxation to help meet the budget deficit when he appeared today before the Finance Commission of the Chamber of Deputies to oppose the subcommission's plan for meeting the deficit.

He proposed raising 1,500,000,000 francs by increasing some taxes 10 per cent. and others 20 per cent., getting 500,000,000 francs through the sale of war materials, 400,000,000 francs from increased efficiency in collection of the taxes, and the remainder of the deficit, which amounts in all to more than 3,500,000,000 francs, by various economies and by raising the estimate of the income tax receipts.

28 Soldiers Are Reported Dead, Many Hurt, in Ruhr Collision.

BERLIN, Feb. 8.—According to a reliable message received here, two French troop transports were in collision yesterday on the railway from Düsseldorf to Kittsig. French troops immediately drew a cordon around the scene of the disaster and no civilian was permitted to enter.

During the night twenty-eight bodies of soldiers found under the débris, it is said, were secretly buried in a cemetery. More than one hundred are said to be more or less seriously hurt.

Railway service in the Ruhr district is described by eyewitnesses as disorganized.

plaints of the Communists and the complaints of M. Tardieu are entirely different. The Communists want the French out of the Ruhr, whereas M. Tardieu wants stronger action against Germany. M. Poincaré is in the position of being unable to suit every one.

Strike Movement Is Denounced.

Most of the Paris papers do not emphasize the French strike troubles. However, the Temps, as an exception, gives a front page article tonight, saying:

"As expected, the extremists seek to profit by the present conditions to do dirty work for Moscow. Their appeals against the occupation of the Ruhr, their cries to workers to act against French imperialism, so-called, and finally their threat to provoke a strike of French miners deserve attention because it represents the first step in a movement to serve the German play against the allied nations.

"There is good reason to believe that the Sarre strike is due to German influence, and there is also reason to believe that the United Executive's plan to force a strike is for a sinister political purpose. In other words, that purpose is treason.

"No one is fool enough to believe the pretext put forward for such a strike at this time. The bait of wages is put forward to seduce the workers, who would never take part in what they thought was a political move against the republic in favor of Germany.

"The menace is clear. It is a general strike the Communists seek for a purpose for which the wage issue is only a pretext. What they seek is to provoke in France a strike of miners parallel with German resistance in the Ruhr and thereby exercise pressure on the Allies. Such a strike at such a time would be nothing less than a crime against the country, and we are confident that the miners will not lend themselves to such a game. The nation will defend itself against those who dare to menace its security at home as well as abroad and those who wish by treason to ruin our victory."

PARIS, Feb. 8 (Associated Press).—Representatives of 100,000 coal miners in Northern France will meet delegates of employers at Douai tomorrow in an attempt to arrive at an agreement regarding the men's demand for a 15 per cent. increase in wages.

FORBACH, Lorraine, Feb. 8.—Twenty-two thousand miners quit work today in the coal fields of Northern Lorraine, negotiations having failed of definite results. The strikers were counting on the suspension of Ruhr shipments to impel the owners to grant their claims, presented a week ago.

Reinforcements of troops have been sent to the principal centres, but no untoward incidents have occurred so far.

GO TO CONFERENCE ON WORLD CRISIS

Delegation of Leading American Business Men Sails Tomorrow for Rome Meeting.

TO DISCUSS REPARATIONS

And Also Interallied Debts—Representatives of All Nations Will Compare Views.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—German reparations, interallied debts and other international financial and economic problems will be discussed at the general meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce to be held at Rome March 18 to 24, according to an announcement made today by the American section of the chamber. The first delegation of about fifty American financiers and business men will sail on Saturday on the Caronia, headed by Julius H. Barnes, President of the Chamber of Commerce. It is expected that about 200 American delegates will attend the gathering.

The hope has been expressed by some delegates that the findings will have a helpful effect on the European situation, as there will be representatives present of the financial and business interests of France, Great Britain and a score of other nations.

The American section also announced that, at the direction of Secretary Hoover, there will be present at the sessions the American commercial attachés from the principal countries of Europe. In addition, O. P. Hopkins, First Assistant Director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the Department of Commerce, and Alan G. Goldsmith, chief of the Western European Division of the bureau, will attend.

The program for the Rome conference as given out by the American section of the International Chamber follows:

1. Finance—Four group sessions for detailed discussion and five general sessions for final decisions on the following subjects:
   (a) Financial measures necessary for the restoration of international trade.
   (b) Reparation.
   (c) Interallied debts.
   (d) Rate of exchange.
   (e) Double taxation.

   (a) Equitable treatment of trade as regards customs formalities and analogous questions.
   (b) Measures to prevent new import duties introduced by the different Governments of articles shipped or contracted for before the date of application of such duties.
   (c) Removal of export taxes on raw materials.
   (d) Protection of industrial property—unfair competition.
   (e) International commercial arbitration.

The conference, of course, has no official standing, but it is the intention to go thoroughly into the problems which are holding back progress toward stability on the Continent of Europe and recommendations probably will be made, presenting the viewpoint of the financial and commercial interests involved.

SWITZERLAND OBJECTS TO TRAFFIC HOLD-UP

Complains to Paris and Berlin of Loss Through Franco-German Quarrel.

BERNE, Feb. 8 (Associated Press).—The Swiss diplomatic representatives in Paris and Berlin have been instructed by the Federal Council to make urgent representation to the French and German Governments regarding the damage done to Basle, and to Switzerland in general, by the disorganization of railroad traffic due to French occupation of the Ruhr and Germany's resistance to occupation.

Switzerland will ask the French and German Governments to try to avoid creating such difficulties for Switzerland.

The French Ambassador here, independently of these representations, has explained to the Swiss Government the reasons for the railway disorganization and informed Switzerland that France would endeavor to insure regular railroad traffic.

WIFE SUES OIL PROMOTER.

Mrs. Albertus A. Reilly Asks $150 a Week Allmony, $1,000 for Counsel.

Supreme Court Justice Leander B. Faber, in Brooklyn, yesterday reserved decision on the application of Mrs. Josephine A. Reilly for $150 a week allmony and $1,000 counsel fees pending the trial of her suit for separation from Albertus A. Reilly, a wealthy promoter of oil properties. She states in her complaint that her husband is the President of the Victoria Oil Company and is worth more than a half million dollars.

They were married twenty-one years ago and have two children, Anne J., 18 years old, and Albertus A. Jr., 16, who live with their mother. In October, last, Reilly, according to his wife's complaint, came home intoxicated and searched the house for a revolver. When he could not find the weapon, she asserts, he told her that he would shoot her if he could lay his hands on it. He concluded by telling her that he would kill her with mental torture. She states that her husband openly boasted of his friendship for another woman.

Allmony Granted to Mrs. Hewitt.

Allmony of $125 a week was granted, with $3,000 counsel fee, yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Guy on the application by Mrs. Bertha Hewitt for support pending her separation suit against Maurice O. Hewitt, cotton goods broker, because of his alleged affection for his secretary, Eugenia Broadhead Dubois. The Court set the trial for next Tuesday.

CECIL WILL PRESENT BROAD PEACE PLAN

Guarantees Against Aggression Said to Be Part of Project Going Before League Arms Board.

GENEVA, Feb. 8 (Associated Press).—When Lord Robert Cecil arrives here tomorrow for the meeting of the League of Nations Mixed Commission for the Reduction of Armaments he is expected to have in his pocket for presentation a detailed draft of a general treaty providing for guarantees for the prevention of war and suggesting also practical measures for disarmament.

It is understood that the proposed treaty stipulates that if any nation is attacked the other signatories may adopt stated measures, provided there is a reduction of military forces, effected on a scale to be determined. If any State feels that it is menaced it may call for a special meeting of the League Council, which, if it decides that a menace actually exists, may arrange protective measures against the danger.

Similarly, if any State violates the armament restrictions agreed upon, another State may appeal to the Council. In case of actual attack, the League will decide which country is the aggressor and will work out effective restraining measures, perhaps even recommending to the members of the League joint military action against the convicted aggressor.

The mutual guarantees would operate by continents; thus, no European State would furnish troops against aggressions in the Americas, and the North and South American members would be relieved from furnishing policing troops for Europe.

The League leaders are not optimistic of definite action at the present moment, because of the existing political situation in Europe, which has reached a climax in the failure of the Lausanne conference to restora peace in the Near East.

Great Britain and France seem to be approaching a treaty of mutual guarantees from opposing standpoints, Great Britain desiring disarmament first and guarantees compact afterward, while France is disposed to demand guarantees first as a necessary condition of any disarmament arrangement. It is presumed that in these discussions military reductions would be in inverse ratio to the strength of the guarantees compact. The more nations that rallied to the guarantee treaty the less would be the authorized strength of national armies.

The Santiago conference will discuss disarmament, and the South American countries want close co-operation between the Santiago decisions and the work of the League.

The Commission for the Reduction of Armaments, which begins its session tomorrow, will have on its agenda, besides this question, that of control of the private manufacture of arms and arrangements for an international conference at Geneva, which will be summoned after the Santiago assembly, to extend the principles and conclusions of the Washington naval conference to those countries which did not participate in that conference.

REPORT U. S. DESTROYER DAMAGED IN COLLISION

Unnamed Vessel Is Said to Have Crashed With French Cruiser Ernest Renan.

LONDON, Feb. 8 (Associated Press).—A Constantinople dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph say the French cruiser Ernest Renan wash in collision with an American Torpedo-boat destroyer in Turkish waters.

The American boat was damaged, but the French warship was undamaged.

The French cruiser Ernest Renan, reported to have been in collision with an American destroyer in Turkish waters, was earlier reported in a Paris dispatch as being at Smyrna. Other advices have located the Ernest Renan between Smyrna and Constantinople. The only American destroyer at Smyrna is the Edsall, but Rear Admiral Long has thirteen destroyers at Constantinople and six others at various points in Turkish waters.

Almirall Juror Must Testify.

Supreme Court Justice Guy denied yesterday the application by Charles Friedenberg, a member of the Almirall Grand Jury, to vacate the subpoena for his appearance before Commissioner of Accounts Hirshfield. Counsel for Friedenberg contended that as Justice Mullan recently directed the Controller to pay the Almirall grand jurors their fees, the investigation by Commissioner Hirshfield is without effect as to that body.

and if it is the French intention to foster a Rhineland republic, nothing would give them either a better excuse or more chance of success than such a Royalist undertaking bound, as it would be, to fail from lack of the munitions and armaments which the Ruhr alone can give.

This excursion of William's is therefore taken by observers here as one more indication of the weakness of the German position.

At Socialist meetings here and throughout the Ruhr the Government is being urged every day not to neglect any single opportunity to negotiate with the French. From Berlin it is reported that emissaries are being sent in all directions seeking a mediator, but so far without success.

One of the strongest factors in the French position is that nothing has occurred which could in any way be twisted to give the occupation of the district an appearance of harshness. One clergyman, who is taking part in the resistance propaganda, admitted today in conversation that there was no resentment whatever against the troops and that these had behaved in the most exemplary fashion, especially as compared with the German troops during the communist rising of 1920.

At different points throughout the district where the French have instituted soup kitchens there have been attempts to prevent the people accepting this kindness "from the enemy." Posters have been issued telling the half-starved people, of whom there are plenty, that it is a crime against the Fatherland to accept such charity, though the very people who issued these posters are besieging the French with requests to assure a proper supply of milk and coal, which has been reduced by the railroad strike.

Arrests and expulsions continue each day, and two or three cases have come to notice in which Burgomasters and other officials who have given assistance to the French have been ordered to quit their posts either by the municipal councils or the home Government.

To counteract this an announcement will be made to all German functionaries that their salaries and pensions will be guaranteed them by France if they carry out French orders and in doing so incur the displeasure of their own Government. This move is of the greatest importance, as it is the first taken by the French in an attempt to drive a wedge between the Rhineland and Germany.

All the French expulsion orders have included the wives and families of functionaries and, naturally, there are many of those still in office who view with alarm the possibility of their being uprooted from their homes. They are in the position of having to choose between expulsion and the possibility of dismissal from the German service, with loss of their pensions, if they obey French orders and do not follow the policy of passive resistance dictated from Berlin. It is regarded as certain that the provision being made for them by the French will have some effect on their attitude if they are not unduly pressed.

An order has been issued that no tipping cars shall be sent out of the district, either loaded or empty. This measure has been taken to prevent gradual reduction in the number of available cars in the district. Ever since the establishment of the coal barrier, the Germans have been trying to deplete the district of coal cars by sending out general merchandise on special tipping cars which are permitted for the loading of coal on borges. That manoeuvre will now be stopped.

Work in the mines and factories is still fairly normal as far as the number of men employed is concerned. The factories have still their contracts to fulfil and with their special supplies of coal and enough ore for three or four months ahead are keeping on full blast, in strong contrast to the plants in Lorraine.

At the mines the men are being employed creating new depots, and at Rettinghausen the curious sight is to be seen of men tipping coal into the lake rather than hold up the output or risk fire by piling it too high. The coal thus disposed of is likely to be lost, but even that is preferable in the minds of the owners to closing down the mines.

Both in the mines and factories the Ruhr employers have granted a substantial increase of wages, which are being paid in full by the German firms.

Sufficient coal supplies for Düsseldorf have been assured by the French, and all food stores which formerly paid duty are now being allowed to enter free in order to keep down the cost of living.

French Rail Force Increased.

PARIS Feb. 8 (Associated Press).—France plans to double her efforts, hitherto blocked by German resistance, to restore the railroads of the Ruhr Valley to a satisfactory operating basis.

French railroad workers to the number of 4,523 have been quietly assembled, and will entrain tomorrow morning for the affected district. This addition will more than double the number of volunteer railroaders there.

The Minister of Public Works, M. le Troequer, is considering also a project for enlisting further volunteers from among the many railroad workers discharged during the last big general strike in France.

The best plans for operating the railroads will be threshed out at Brussels tomorrow by M. le Troequer and his staff of experts, who are leaving Paris in the morning for a conference with the Belgians.

"Scissors Clubs" in Elberfeld.

ELBERFIELD, Feb. 8 (Associated Press).—"Scissors Clubs" are being organized throughout the recently occupied Elberfeld zone. They are composed mostly of youths, and their object is the clipping of the hair of women associating with the occupation troops.

The German women are apparently as stubborn in their resistance as the men, as no case of shearing has yet been reported.

TANKS AWE RIOTERS IN RECKLINGHAUSEN

Entire City Goes on Strike Against French Occupation Measures There.

RECKLINGHAUSEN, Feb. 8.—Through the portholes of a French tank in which I had come from Essen today I viewed the first entire city in the Ruhr to go on strike against French occupation measures.

Fifty thousand persons, including workers, tradesmen and private citizens, revolted against the occupation forces after the police of the city had set the example by taking off their uniforms and abandoning their duty in protest against an order to salute French officers.

The second period came when allied officers issued an order to the shopkeepers to cease their refusals to sell goods to French and Belgians.

The crisis arrived when eight shopkeepers were arrested.

As the news spread through the town street cars stopped, public utilities closed down, and crowds massed in the public square demonstrating against the allied sentinels and other agents in the city engaged in attempting to force production of mines and industries.

In the main square the bitter feeling of the townspeople resulted in a clash between military and civilians, and a few shots were fired by the German population, no soldiers, however, being injured. A number of striking police officers were arrested.

The disturbances, which began about noon, continued late tonight, and so widespread is the spirit of resistance that only one drug store and one bakery in the whole city are open. These are constantly threatened by crowds of men, women and children, who are determined to cripple the town until the French yield.

Tanks bearing reinforcements of French left Essen at noon and lumbered their way to Recklinghausen, three American correspondents occupying one each of the armored whippets viewing the situation over the muzzles of 37 millimetre guns in the turrets.

Both the German population and the Allied forces fear the situation is one of the most explosive that has yet arisen and fear grave consequences unless the Allied order is rescinded.

REFUGEE PROBLEM VIEWED BY HASKELL

He Concludes That Much of the Panic Flight From Asia Minor Was Unnecessary.

EXILES WANT TO RETURN

But the Turkish Population in Greece Has No Desire to Be Exchanged.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Feb. 7.—Novel light on the Near Eastern muddle in general and the refugee problem in particular was thrown today by Colonel Haskell, head of the American Relief Administration in Russia and Chief Commissioner of the American Red Cross in Europe, who has just arrived in Moscow via Athens, Constantinople and Odessa.

Colonel Haskell saw the refugee situation with his own eyes. In addition, he talked with the Greek Ministers at Athens, the American naval and diplomatic authorities at Constantinople and General Kiasim Pasha, Mustapha Kemal's right-hand man at Smyrna, now Military Governor of the whole province. As a result he is convinced that Europe and America—and especially the latter—are lamentably misinformed on the facts of the case, which may be summed up as follows:

First, a large proportion of the wholesale evacuation of the Christian (mostly Greek and Armenian) population from Turkey was unnecessary and was carried out under the influence of panic fostered by well-meaning but hasty foreign organizations prejudiced against the Turks for personal and religious reasons. In the case of Smyrna, the region whence come perhaps half of the total of 1,500,000 refugees, there was danger to Greek life and property, due not so much to the innate savagery of the Turks as to the action of the retreating Greek armies who laid waste a region a hundred miles deep from the coast with fire and sword. Then Smyrna was burnt in revenge.

Second, it is impossible for Greece to assimilate this mass of refugees even if it wanted to, which it does not. For one thing, they are almost all old women and children, for another they speak only Turkish and their habits are Asiatic. Finally, Greece has failed to assimilate the 200,000 of the same type of refugees who came from Asia Minor two or three years ago. Third, a great majority of these refugees want to return to Turkey, where they are at home and where their men folk are detained. The Greek Ministers declared this was the best solution, and General Kiasim stated that there was no objection on the Turkish side if only he could save Smyrna Province was conserved. There, he thought, two or three years must elapse before the anti-Greek feeling died down sufficiently to permit of their return. The Greek Ministers added that the refugees themselves favored this return, which was confirmed by the refugee meeting Colonel Haskell attended at Saloniki. Nearly all are quite willing to take the oath of allegiance to Turkey and serve faithfully if only they are provided they are allowed to keep their own religion. This Kiasim said would be granted, but it must be understood that it did not include a free hand for foreign missionaries, some of whom, he asserted, had been stirring up anti-Turkish sentiment among the Greeks and Armenians and trying to convince them they had a right to special privileges.

Fourth, the Turkish population in Greece and Macedonia has not the least desire to return to Turkey. Like the Greek refugees from Asia Minor, they speak the language and have the customs of the land where they have been settled for generations and would simply be outlanders in their own fatherland.

Fifth, the relief needed in devastated Anatolia is no less than in Greece. The Turks do not want a war, or the Greeks either, and though there are certain troop concentrations on both sides of the Thracian frontier, none of the Americans in Constantinople best qualified to judge believes war will be renewed unless forced on one party or the other by the muddling of the powers.

UNTERMYER WARNS OF PRICE RISE PLOT

Asserts Combinations Will Increase Housing Costs Unless Checked by Legislature.

TO LEAD HEARING'S FIGHT

Will Interrupt Southern Vacation to Appear Next Week for Lockwood Bills.

LUSK APPEALS TO SMITH

Again Asks Governor to Announce His Support of Anti-Profiteering Measures.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 8.—Samuel Untermyer, who was counsel for the Legislative Housing Committee, now defunct, will interrupt his vacation in Florida and come North for the express purpose of leading the fight at hearings here next week on measures proposed for housing relief. The series includes a bill to create a State Trade Commission with powers of civil and criminal jurisdiction to prevent price-fixing combinations, and another to curb illegal practices on the part of labor organizations affiliated with the building trades.

The hearings are scheduled for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Four committees, including the Senate Judiciary Committee and the Assembly Committees on Insurance, Codes and Ways and Means, will hear the arguments. Senator Dunningan of the Bronx, who succeeded former Senator Lockwood as Chairman of the Housing Committee, received word today that Mr. Untermyer would arrive at the Capitol on Tuesday and remain throughout the hearings.

Senator Lusk, a stanch champion of the Untermyer legislation, made public today a letter he had received from the lawyer, warning against the perils threatening from a resourceful lobby that has been organized to oppose the measures.

Untermyer Writes Warning.

Mr. Untermyer added that with the impetus of building and construction now under way, the prices of building materials would be boosted sky-high and the erection of dwellings to relieve the housing stringency be stopped or retarded as a result unless the bills he advocated became law.

Senator Lusk, reciting the contents of the Untermyer letter, again called on Governor Smith to take his stand openly in favor of the Untermyer bills. Giving examples of abnormal increases in the cost of building materials, Senator Lusk asserted that the people had a right to look to the Governor for relief, following his campaign pledges.

Mr. Untermyer in his letter said:

"There are hundreds of these criminal combinations, many of them nation-wide, that are operating today within the State. They constitute the chief factor in the maintenance of the high cost of living. I predict that this trade commission, if it consists of the men of the character and ability that should be named, will be the most important of all the commissions ever appointed in the State.

"If the Federal Trade Commission, which has done splendid work, had been given the power to conduct its own prosecutions we would not have these vast combinations fastened upon us today. There are upwards of forty cases on which the Federal Trade Commission has reported to the Attorney General in favor of prosecution more than a year ago and on which no action whatever has been taken.

"If we get the right kind of commission we shall exterminate these criminal combinations within two years, insofar as our State is concerned, and we will have furnished an object lesson to every State in the Union.

Untermyer Cites Labor Bill.

"The bill to regulate labor unions, about which the members of our committee seemed wildly enthusiastic while we were taking evidence, is apparently destined to have hard sledding, and I propose to fight it out to the end with or without the support of the committee, and am glad to know that you are in sympathy with the purpose of this bill. It is a very conservative measure that safeguards all the fundamental rights of organized labor and is directed only against the intolerable abuses that were admitted by the labor leaders from the witness stand and against which they confessed that there is now no legal remedy. The oppression practiced by the unions upon the members, of which there is overwhelming evidence in the record, requires correction quite as much as the injury that is inflicted upon the public.

"I am hopeful that a thorough ventilation of the facts before the public will put a little courage into the members of the Legislature and will bring the necessary public pressure to bear in support of this much needed legislation.

"As a lifelong friend and champion of organized labor I am satisfied that this is the highest service we could do for that cause and that only the grafters will complain of it. If you could read the hundreds of letters I have received from members of unions urging relief against the despotism to which they are being subjected by their leaders, I am sure you would be deeply impressed, but above and beyond all this there is a still more important consideration that deeply concerns the future of our country.

"If these unions are to be permitted to limit their membership and the number of apprentices, what is to become of the rising generation? We shall have an increasingly alarming famine in skilled labor, and with the tightening of the immigration laws it is easy to see in what plight we shall find ourselves. There will come a violent reaction against all organized labor and a sudden loosening of the restrictions against immigration that will unsettle our industries and do incalculable harm. That is the picture of the future that I see before me, unless we have the vision and the patriotism to forestall such a catastrophe.

Combinations Showing Hands.

"I realize that in putting forth this ambitious program we have alienated many powerful elements and have encouraged lobby combinations for the defeat of the bill that may prove disastrous, but I have supreme confidence in the eventual power of public opinion, and that in the end it will be arrayed on our side if a thorough ventilation of the merits of these bills and the character of opposition to them can be secured. To that end I am most anxious to be given early and ample opportunity for public hearings on the bills, and will ask you to do your utmost to secure such opportunity.

"The impetus to building and the construction now under way has created an abnormal demand for building materials. Nothing but fear of the committee has prevented these people from boosting prices sky-high, for they know that there is so much construction under way that cannot now be stopped that no matter how exorbitant may be their rates they will have to be complied with, but so long as they can accomplish this result only by throttling competition they are afraid to do so, because of the committee and for no other reason.

"Already the cement, window glass, cast iron pipe and other large manufacturers of building materials who are welded together in the largest combinations in violation of law are beginning to show their hands, notwithstanding the fact that, after great pressure and in the face of bitter enmities, they are under indictments in the Federal Court.

"There are dozens of others, against whom we presented proof to the Federal authorities and who should be indicted, against whom no action has been taken. Most of these could be reached by the State Trade Commission if the law is passed and could be properly enforced."

Senator Lusk said that he was in receipt of communications from all parts of the State which indicated how keenly the people felt on the subject of extortionate prices for commodities. In his opinion it was the one big question before the Legislature.

Lusk Challenges Governor.

In his challenge to Governor Smith, Senator Lusk said:

"I have repeatedly asked you, Governor, to come out and throw the great influence of your office with the people in the fight to curb the profiteering combinations. I do not wish to embarrass you, but you cannot fail to understand that your assistance at this time is absolutely necessary.

"The hearings on these bills is at hand. They are up for consideration now. Further silence on your part is likely to mean their defeat. You have been very free in advocating other measures. Why are you silent on these? I cannot believe that you do not appreciate the pressing necessity of their enactment.

"Do you need further specific illustration of the way in which the public is suffering? Take window glass, an article of common use, as an example. The records of the Legislature show that the price of window glass has been increased over 400 per cent. Since the war it has been advanced at least 250 per cent. The manufacturers and distributers are combined. The manufacturers limit the output. The Secretary has boasted of the fact that the membership of the distributers' company comprises practically 100 per cent. of the country's flat glass distributers and manufacturers.

"The following is a further illustration of what I mean by profiteering on the part of labor unions: The records show that the inside electrical workmen's union, Local No. 3 of New York City, had a membership of about 3,800, while the number of electrical workers in the city is over 12,000. The workers outside the union are denied admission to that organization. The non-members of the union pay $2.50 per week to the union for the privilege of working.

"I cannot think that you approve of these practices. If not, why have you not come out and aligned yourself with the members of the Legislature who are trying to stop them?"

ASSEMBLY TO GET BILL TO CURB AUTO THEFTS

Requires Owners to Carry Certificates With Description of Cars —Imposes Heavy Penalties.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 8.—A bill prepared to check automobile thefts throughout the State will be introduced on Monday night by Senator McGarry of Queens and Assemblyman Van Wagenen of Ulster, Chairman of the Senate and Assembly Committees on Internal Affairs. The bill will have the backing of the Association of District Attorneys and Federal Attorneys of this State.

"The bill," District Attorney Wallace said, "provides that every owner of a motor car must carry in his car or on his person while driving a certificate of title containing a full description of the car and countersigned by the State Tax Commission. The certificate is subject at all time to inspection by police and other peace officers and representatives of the State Tax Commission. When application is made for a license the certificate must be shown before a license can be issued. A 50-cent fee is provided for the issuance of certificates."

Severe penalties are provided for failure to comply with the provisions of the proposed new law. When a car is sold by an owner his certificate of title, endorsed with the name of the buyer, must be sent to the State Tax Commission. Failure to comply is punishable by imprisonment for from two to ten years or a fine of from $100 to $1,000, or both. It is made a misdemeanor for a dealer to fail to issue a certificate of title and to transmit a copy to the Tax Department when a car is sold. Failure on the part of drivers to keep a certificate of title in their cars is punishable by fines of from $5 to $1,000.

FEAR CIVIL SERVICE BILL.

Albany Experts Believe It Puts Employes in Jeopardy.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 8.—Legalized ousting of State civil service employes is seen by some civil service experts here in a bill introduced today by Senator Byrne, Democrat, of Albany and Assemblyman Ullman, Republican, of New York.

The measure provides for a civil service personnel board with power to remove civil service employes for inefficiency, misconduct, or dereliction of duty, and even to oust heads of departments or superior officers for failure to report offenses by subordinates.

The New York State Civil Service Reform Association is responsible for the bill and intended it as a protection for civil service employes. Some authorities here on the civil service law, however, after study of the measure, believe the association is not aware that it would place civil service employes at the mercy of patronage hunting politicians.

Under the measure any citizen could lodge a complaint against a civil service employe with the proposed board, and in addition to the employe's immediate superior. Rulings of the board, if approved by the Civil Service Commission, would be final and mandamus proceedings would be the only appeal. Employes found guilty could be fined not more than thirty days' pay, suspended for not more than thirty days, or both; or reduced in rank, grade or compensation, or removed.

The board would be composed of a member of the Civil Service Commission or its representative; the Attorney General, or one of his deputies, and a representative from the competitive civil service class designated by the commission.

Should a Governor, for example, want the place of a departmental head, he could avoid attacks on the ground that the removal was for political reasons by having the personnel board complain that the department head had failed to report an infraction by a subordinate.

300 DOGS SHOT IN A DAY.

Blanchester, Ohio, Starts Slaughter After Mad Animal Bites Others.

Special to The New York Times.

BLANCHESTER, Ohio, Feb. 8.—Today will go down in this town's history as the "day of the slaughter of dogs," for more than 300 of them were killed by the police and orders were issued by the Mayor to continue the slaughter until every unleashed dog had been shot.

The death warrant for dogs was issued because a mad dog is known to have attacked and bitten thirty other dogs several days ago. It was shot by a policeman and its head was sent to Columbus for examination.

Mayor Warning received a telephone message from Columbus this morning informing him that the dog had an advanced case of rabies and directing him to kill every dog that could have been infected.

The population of Blanchester is 2,000 and Chief of Police Futte estimated that half of that number turned out to shoot dogs.

"We have arranged to dig a trench and bury all of the victims together," said the chief.

DECLARES HARDING 'INSULTED' SENATE

Harrison Asserts the President's Coupling of Subsidy and British Debt Unseemly.

SPURNS 'IMPOTENT' CHARGE

Senator Asks What the Administration Has Done to "Take Our High Place in the World."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—President Harding was arraigned in the Senate today by Senator Harrison of Mississippi, who interpreted the ship subsidy part of the President's address to Congress yesterday as "an insult" to the Senate. He declared that the President had clearly intimated that the Senate as now constituted is an impotent body. Senator Harrison does not think so.

"Why," the Senator asked, "should the President have come to the Congress and offered insult to the Senate of the United States? No other conclusion can be reached than that the President intended to have the country believe that we were but marks of impotence in the Senate.

"He raised that issue and did the unseemly thing of coming down from the high pedestal upon which he should always stand as President of the United States to tie a ship subsidy bill to his message and offer insult to the Senate.

"Mere avoidance by prolonged debate was believed in by the President when he was a Senator from Ohio and held up, with others who entered into the conspiracy with him, the Treaty of Versailles. It was not then a mark of impotence upon the part of the Senators to take that course.

Sees Cause for Laughter.

"It is almost enough to make one who is familiar with the attitude of the President—the attitude that has marked his course as Chief Executive—laugh when he hears him tell the Senate of the United States that it must show some mark of decision, some action, some program, some policy. The President telling us that we ought to evidence some qualities of decision! Why, the Executive Department of this Government does not know what the word 'decision' means, and it has not since it took control two years ago. The Executive Department has supplanted the word 'decision' with the word 'vacillation,' and no one, not only with respect to your domestic policies, but with respect to your foreign policies, has been able to tell one day what would be the policy the next.

"The Administration has worshipped at the shrine of isolation and has marched to the tune of a program of negation. Decision! The Administration does not know what the word is, yet the President comes to the Congress and offers an insult to the Senate by his expression as such because, forsooth, for a few days during this short session some of us have seen fit to oppose his program affecting the Ship Subsidy bill."

The entire blame for the failure of ship subsidy legislation, Senator Harrison declared, rested with the Republican Party. If the President would agree that "lame ducks" should not vote, the Senator said, he could get a vote tomorrow, but in such an event, Mr. Harrison added, the bill would be defeated.

"The President," continued the Senator, "says that the debt funding and the passage of this subsidy bill are related to 'our good fortunes at home and high place in the world.'

Asks What Administration Has Done.

"I ask what is it that this Administration has done which proves that we are trying to take our high place in the world? Has it done it by erecting barriers with tariff rates so high that they hamper our international trade? Does it do it by refusing to attend economic conferences in order to stabilize the world which is in distress? Does it do it by refusing to the majority Senators here the passage of the so-called Robinson resolution to remove the stranglehold which the Republican Party in Congress has incorporated into the law in the ratification of the separate treaty with Germany forbidding the President to name a representative upon the Reparation Commission without consent of Congress?

"Is the Republican Administration promoting good relationship with all the world by refusing to permit the distinguished Senator from Idaho (Mr. Borah) to get consideration of his resolution proposing to call an economic conference of all European powers? Yet the President has stated that because we have asked for a liberal discussion of the Ship Subsidy bill we are going to lose our high place among all the peoples of the world."

COL. GREENE TAKES OFFICE.

Offers Places to Three Former Deputies—Mrs. Smith Sworn In.

ALBANY, Feb. 8.—Colonel Frederick S. Greene assumed control of the State Highway Department at noon today, immediately after Secretary of State Hamilton administered the oath of office. Colonel Greene announced that he would offer Deputy Commissionerships to his former Deputies, Paul Schultze of Troy, Arthur Brandt of Albany and Charles Van Amburgh of Binghamton. None of the former Deputies have accepted.

Mrs. Charles E. Smith of Buffalo was sworn in as State Civil Service Commissioner at the same time Colonel Greene took the oath. This is Mrs. Smith's second term.

J. WANAMAKER SENTENCED.

French Court Acts on Charge of Checks Given to Deauville Casino.

PONT-l'EVEQUE, France, Feb. 8 (Associated Press).—John Wanamaker, son of Rodman Wanamaker of New York, has been sentenced to six months' imprisonment and to pay a fine of 50,000 francs by the Correctional Court here on a charge of having obtained 145,000 francs from the director of the Deauville Casino on checks for which it was alleged no funds for payment were available.

Judgment for $12,266 was entered in the County Clerk's office in New York on Dec. 4 against John Wanamaker in favor of the Deauville Casino at Cannes.

Hyacinthe Ringrose, counsel for the Casino, explained that the claim against Mr. Wanamaker was based on the failure of the American Express Company in Paris to cash three checks, alleged to have been issued by Mr. Wanamaker to cover one million francs lost while playing baccarat at Deauville.

Mr. Ringrose said that the Société Anonyme des Casino de Deauville et Cannes did not obtain the judgment on a gambling debt. He explained that the money was obtained by Mr. Wanamaker on three checks which he cashed at the Deauville Casino. The society, he added, did not gamble, but received 10 per cent. from the kitty derived through gambling.

ROBINSON WILL LEAD SENATE DEMOCRATS

Election to Succeed Underwood Is Assured by Simmons's Retirement From Race.

LATTER IS IN ILL-HEALTH

Senator Overman Announces Decision of His Colleague Not to Make Further Contest.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas will succeed Senator Underwood as leader of the Democrats in the Senate as the result of the action today of Senator Overman in withdrawing the name of Senator Simmons, who was the only other contestant.

Senator Simmons has been ill at his home in Newbern, N. C., several weeks, and it was this which led him to quit the race. He is 67 years old.

In his statement Senator Overman said:

"My colleague Senator Simmons from his sick bed in Newbern has asked me to make public request that his name shall no longer be considered for the post of Democratic leader in the Senate. Notwithstanding the fact that more than half the members of the present Senate are supporting him, and he has other assurances that justify him in feeling most hopeful of success, Senator Simmons feels he must take this action, in part upon consideration of his health and in part for reasons of party harmony. My colleague's physicians have advised him that he must take the best of care of himself for several months to come and they strongly warn him against undertaking any new burdens until he shall have fully recovered his strength.

"It is well known here that Senator Simmons in the beginning consented to the use of his name for the Democratic leadership only upon what seemed to be satisfactory assurances that there would be no considerable opposition. He stated then that he would not under any circumstances enter into a scramble for the place. Since Senator Robinson, for whom Senator Simmons feels high esteem and friendship, was offered as a candidate Senator Simmons has refrained from withdrawing his name only because he has felt that loyalty to his own friends and supporters would not permit it.

"My colleague now feels, however, in view of the condition of his health and of the fact that the contest between his friends and those of Senator Robinson has grown so closely and promises to be so long drawn out, with the consequent neglect of that necessary concentration by Democratic Senators of mind and effort on party and national affairs all through this year, that the highest national and party considerations demand that the contest shall proceed no further. Senator Simmons therefore has asked and obtained the consent of his friends to leave the field clear to Senator Robinson, whose leadership my colleague believes will be in every respect able and satisfactory.

"Senator Simmons wishes me to express for him his deep and grateful appreciation of the loyal support given him and of the splendid zeal and generalship that his friends have exercised in his behalf. He appreciates no less, too, the kind solicitude and regard for him and his present state of health that have prompted his friends in the Senate to yield without hard feeling to his desire to take himself out of consideration and bring the contest to an end."

Senator Robinson is 50 years old and has been in this Congress one of Senator Underwood's principal floor lieutenants. He is regarded as one of the ablest parliamentarians in the Senate.

SHOOTS A POLICEMAN.

Bandit in Stolen Taxi Draws Gun and Fires When Halted.

Policeman Thomas Walsh of the East 104th Street Station was shot and probably mortally wounded shortly after 11 o'clock last night by an unidentified man whom he was about to arrest at Second Avenue and 116th Street for the theft of a taxicab, which he was driving.

The machine, which was owned by the Yale Taxicab Company, had been stolen from in front of 162 East 109th Street. Walsh, who was 29 years old, was appointed to the force about a year ago. He had just turned from receiving the alarm for the taxicab when he saw a machine coming down Second Avenue. The policeman jumped to the middle of the avenue and halted the vehicle.

"Let me see your license," commanded Walsh.

"All right," replied the driver, as he reached into his overcoat pocket.

The next instant the man fired two shots at Walsh. The first missed its mark, but the second passed through the policeman's abdomen. Walsh started to draw his pistol. The driver shot away in the stolen car, sped down Second Avenue and disappeared east through 112th Street before the arrival of other policemen. Walsh staggered to the sidewalk and fell.

Word of the shooting was telephoned to the station. Detectives and policemen, who had assembled there preparatory to going on duty at midnight, started a hunt for the gunman. In a few minutes one group of policemen in a police car found the taxicab in East 112th Street near Third Avenue, where it had been abandoned.

Walsh became unconscious almost immediately. No description of the man who shot him was obtained by the police.

HOUSE WILL PASS DEBT BILL TODAY

Democratic captains that their party was not represented on the commission and that they did not receive sufficiently enlightening information at the sessions of the Ways and Means Committee today, but in the end this criticism will amount to little more than political tactics. It is believed that a large number of the Democrats will vote for the passage of the bill.

Representative Burton of Ohio, the author of the bill, appeared before the Ways and Means Committee in support of an amendment to the present law, explaining that it would make a settlement possible not only with Great Britain but with other debtor nations. A considerable part of the testimony both in open and executive session dealt with limitation on future settlements. There was a controversy over how to word the change, which resulted in the provision that the terms should be "similar but not more favorable."

Some members wished to make this as discretionary as possible, contending that the inclusion of the words stated would make it impossible for the American Commissioners to ask higher or lower interest rates. Other members held that if a change in interest rates was considered necessary in another settlement it would be easy to come to Congress and ask for it just as is now being done through the Burton bill.

The agreement is an American one, Mr. Burton told the committee, and it had its initiative with this country's representatives. He said that if Congress insisted that it must approve future settlements this would delay matters greatly, as from present indications Congress would be in recess until December. The fixing of the interest rate at a lower figure than that in the existing law, he said, became necessary in view of the financial situation of Great Britain and the desire not to place the United States in the position of a pawnbroker.

The American Commission has no desire to make more favorable terms with other nations than with Great Britain, he said in reply to questions. At this juncture he gave the committee confidential information bearing on the European financial situation. Liquidation of the debt with Great Britain will be allowed at any time on receipt of 90 days' notice, it was testified, Mr. Burton citing a "possibility" that Great Britain might be able to make a full settlement in a little more than ten years.

Oldfield Still in Doubt.

The attitude of the three Democratic Committee members who voted against a favorable report was voiced by Representative Oldfield, after the executive session.

"We did not know all about the bill," he said. "No Democrat was a member of the American Debt Commission. The Ways and Means Committee did not call Secretary Mellon before it.

"As far as I am concerned, while it is said that this settlement comprises the best terms possible, I do not know whether the terms are the best possible or not. If the terms are not the best, I don't believe in taking the people's money to give to Great Britain, and that is what it would amount to when money now costs 4½ per cent. in the United States. The difference between that interest rate and the one in the bill might be from $600,000,000 to $1,000,000,000."

The committee disposed of the bill speedily. In the forenoon a short open session was held, followed by the executive meeting. In the afternoon another executive session of perhaps an hour was held, after which the bill was favorably reported.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (Associated Press).—After the passage of the British Debt bill in the House, there may be a delay in the Senate. There are indications that the Administration Shipping bill will have precedence there, at least, for a time. Advocates of early action on the debt question had not given up hope tonight, however, of displacing the ship bill with the debt legislation.

AMERICAN TRANSPORT IN FRANCE IS PRAISED

Gen. Sir Henry Thornton Pays Tribute to Work of Railway Men Behind the Trenches.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 8.—General Sir Henry Worth Thornton, President of the Canadian National-Grand Trunk Railways, paid tribute to the splendid work of American railroad men in France during the World War, at the annual banquet of the Pittsburgh Traffic Club tonight.

"I have long wished an opportunity to express publicly the admiration which those who were employed in the British Transport Service felt for our American allies, and the successful way in which they met the serious transportation difficulties which confronted them in France," said General Thornton. "I have also hoped upon some occasion to pay my humble tribute to the skill, the energy, the courage and the patriotic devotion which characterized your railway department during the war. So far as my observation goes there has been an unmerited silence upon this subject, and it is time it was ventilated. * * *

"The people of the United States know little the debt they owe to the genius of their railway officers who perfected and administered the wonderful American transportation in France. The American people may indeed be very proud of their fellow citizens who went overseas in railway service. Much has been written, and properly so, of the magnificent work of the soldiers in the trenches, the officers who commanded them. Much has been said in praise of fighting Generals and the anxieties they must have experienced; many other services have received their just and merited praises, but I am here to say that none of those would have had even an opportunity to display their courage and their patriotism, and to perform the service they did, had it not been for the efficiency of the American transport department, which day by day kept the front supplied with food, explosives, munitions and all of those things which enter into the conduct of a great war.

TEN STOLEN AUTOS FOUND IN GARAGE

Car Leads to Their Recovery by Police.

Through the arrest last night of Joseph Berk, 24, a chauffeur, who gave his address as 217 West Twenty-second Street, it became known that detectives of the Automobile Squad during the day had recovered nine high-priced automobiles in a garage in the Bronx which they alleged were stolen. Berk was arrested by Detective Sergeants Ford and Murray as he was driving a $5,000 car, owned by Dr. Louis Sunshine of 243 East Eighteenth Street, into a garage at Tiffany Street and Whitlock Avenues.

The car had been stolen less than two hours before from in front of 45 St. Mark's Place, while Dr. Sunshine was visiting a patient. In the interval of its theft and its recovery somebody had changed the engine serial number of the car.

Berk told the detectives that he knew nothing about the theft of the car. He said that earlier in the day he met a man at Southern Boulevard and 149th Street, who at about 9 o'clock last night gave him $10 to drive the car to the garage at which it was recovered.

The detectives said that yesterday forenoon they made an investigation of the garage and alleged that they identified nine cars there as having been reported stolen in recent weeks. They took the cars to Police Headquarters, they said, and returned to the vicinity of the garage last night to watch for the possible arrival of other cars.

Shortly after 9 o'clock, they said, they saw a new coupe drive up and a man, who later proved to be Berk, get out. They said they watched Berk go to the garage, turn on the light and then drive the new car inside. As he was about to close the garage door, the detectives said, they drew their pistols and ordered him to throw his hands up. Berk then was hurried in the car to Police Headquarters where Dr. Sunshine identified it as his property. He said he bought it only a few days ago.

MOVIE CONFERENCE PLAN.

Leaders to Be Invited to Formulate Set of Principles.

"For the purpose of formulating a set of principles for the artistic development of motion pictures," says a statement issued yesterday by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, "leading novelists, artists, dramatists, editors, educators and others prominent in public affairs in this country and Europe will be invited by Adolph Zukor (President of the corporation) to attend a conference to be held in New York in the near future."

The announcement precedes Mr. Zukor's departure for Europe on the Olympic tomorrow. While abroad he will attempt to interest different persons in the conference.

In addition to laying down "artistic principles," it is proposed that the conference appoint "a supervisory board of well-known men and women" to "award a series of prizes" for the most valuable contributions to the artistic development of the screen during the ensuing year. Mr. Zukor will donate the prize money, which will amount to several thousand dollars, according to the announcement.

CHARLESTON GREETS THE RHINE SOLDIERS

Third Battalion of the Eighth Infantry Arrives at Fort Moultrie.

WELCOME BY MAYOR GRACE

Former Coblenz Comrades Who Have Been There Since May Renew Ties.

Special to The New York Times.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Feb. 8.—The last battalion of the American Army of Occupation returning from the Rhine debarked from the transport St. Mihiel here today. It was the Third Battalion, Eighth Infantry, and it will be stationed at Fort Moultrie, near the entrance to Charleston harbor, where the Second Battalion of the Eighth Infantry, which arrived from the Rhine in May, is also stationed.

The Third Battalion is comprised of eight officers and 281 enlisted men. Four American officers' wives and eleven German wives of enlisted men were landed with the battalion. With these were twenty-one children.

The St. Mihiel arrived in the harbor at 10:45 o'clock in the morning, anchoring between Forts Sumter and Moultrie. An official party, headed by Mayor John P. Grace, boarded the transport and extended a welcome to the returning soldiers. Shortly afterward several large lighters were brought alongside the St. Mihiel and the men began to file down the gangplank.

Members of the Second Battalion, who have been at the fort since May, greeted and were greeted by the new arrivals. Anxious inquiries were made concerning friends in and around Coblenz, where the battalions were stationed. The warmest greetings were those of the German wives of men of the Second Battalion, who have made their homes in America for many months to the wives who arrived on the St. Mihiel.

Major General F. S. Farnsworth, who had gone from Washington to attend the welcome coming in Savannah yesterday, arrived here by rail from Savannah at midday, being met at the station and escorted to the Fort by Colonel C. H. Ball, commanding at Fort Moultrie. General Farnsworth reviewed a dress parade of the Second Battalion at 5 o'clock this afternoon. Lined up on two sides of the parade ground for the review were 426 army recruits, who will sail for the Hawaiian Islands Feb. 12.

The soldiers of the battalion, although glad to return to their native land, spoke of pleasant days in the Rhine territory. Their faces were lighted with smiles as they explored their new post, which overlooks the ocean on one side and Charleston Harbor on the other.

The German brides manifested great interest. They questioned their husbands in German and were answered for the most part in the same language. Many of them held chubby blond babies in their arms, the youngest being Jack Joseph Smith, who has spent about half of his life at sea, having been born at Coblenz Jan. 14.

It was announced at the fort that all of the married men, with the exception of any Sergeants who prefer to remain in the service, will be immediately discharged and allowed to return to their homes. Of the eighty-one brides who arrived in May approximately a dozen are still at the post.

The Third Battalion arrived in France on the day of the signing of the armistice and after nine months' service at Brest was sent to Coblenz, where it remained until its departure on Jan. 26.

The St. Mihiel, after taking on fuel oil here, will proceed to New York tomorrow. At New York, forty-five officers and men, assigned to posts in various sections of the country, will be landed along with a number of wives and children.

ENRIGHT ORGANIZES A DETECTIVE SCHOOL

All Future Appointments to Be Made From Graduates of the Department Academy.

ATTENDANCE IS OBLIGATORY

Elaborate Curriculum Includes Psychology—Result of Enright's Trip to Europe.

FOR MORE ESPRIT DE CORPS

"In Some Ways We Are 25 Years Behind the Times," Says Commissioner.

Police Commissioner Enright announced yesterday his plan of organization of a Police Department detective school. All future detectives, he said, would be appointed from the graduates of the school. The present detectives must attend courses and will seriously endanger their positions, Commissioner Enright announced, if they fail to make a satisfactory showing in their academic training.

Commissioner Enright has had under consideration for more than a year the plan of founding a college of detection within the department, and his trip abroad last Summer was partly for the collection of material for this purpose. He announced yesterday that he was having various European textbooks on crime detection translated for use in the curriculum of the new school. Several specialists among the present staff of detectives are to be sent abroad to study advancement in their lines in European police departments, and on their return will hold positions corresponding to professorships in the detective academy.

District Attorney Joab H. Banton, Judge Frederick Kernochan, Chief Magistrate William McAdoo and ex-Deputy Commissioner George S. Dougherty, detective and writer on detective methods, are to be announced later, it was said yesterday, as members of the faculty of the detective school. Instruction in the art of testifying concisely and convincingly and in the preparation of cases require the help of legal experts.

There is a famous school for detectives in the Paris Police Department founded by Bertillon, the measurement expert, and similar schools in some other European capitals. The candidate for the uniform force has a stiff schooling in New York before his appointment, and detectives have been thoroughly drilled in some subjects, but no formal educational institution with a regular curriculum has been worked out before. Police Commissioner Arthur Woods founded a detective school, less pretentious than that now projected. Commissioner Enright has discussed his plan with police officials in Europe and with Sir Basil Thomson, former head of Scotland Yard, and other famous policemen who visited New York last Summer when the International Police Congress was held here.

This is said to be the first elaborate detective course projected in America. The school idea of training detectives has seldom been favored by practical policemen in this country, and the theoretical instruction has been abandoned largely to correspondence schools, which agree to turn out McParlans and Lecoocqs in six weeks.

A rather encyclopedic training is outlined in Commissioner Enright's communication establishing the school which is to begin operation at the old Elizabeth Street Station in ten days.

The Commissioner's Announcement.

Commissioner Enright's announcement follows:

The following are appointed a committee to organize a training school for detectives, to be established on the second floor, front, of the old Sixth Precinct Station House at the earliest possible date:

Third Deputy Commissioner Joseph A. Faurot, Chairman; Special Deputy Police Commissioner Carleton Simon, Captain Arthur A. Carey, Captain Thomas M. Fay, Captain Patrick J. Randles, Lieutenant John J. O'Connell and Detective William L. Roddy.

The Quartermaster's Department will put this room in order, install steam heat and desks, so that the training school may be inaugurated within the next ten days.

I desire that this school should have an elaborate curriculum and conduct a course of training approximately along the same lines as the detective training schools in some of the largest departments of Europe.

I am having translated into textbooks which I procured from several police departments during my recent visit to Europe, and these will be available for the use of the instructors in the detective training school.

The curriculum might include the following:

1. Elementary Psychology—

A—Study of mental impulses and emotions such as grief, fear, anger, revenge, &c.

B—Study of motives and mental antagonisms.

C—Emotional stress and its influence upon crime and methods used to cover up such crime.

D—Motives as a cause of crime.

E—Motives, normal, insane and criminal.

F—Useful methods to improve memory and perception of detectives.

G—Involved mental processes following certain stimulation of emotions and instincts.

Study of Criminal Types.

"2. Elementary criminology:

A—Classification of the various criminal types, accidental, born and habitual.

B—Study of moron, mental defects, border-line cases of criminals and insane.

C—Identification of physical stigmata found in certain criminals.

D—Various identifications, abnormal in shape and position of eyes, mouth, nose, ear, head, &c.

Determination of race by hair, skin, eyes, shape of head, &c.

F—General structural changes of landmarks, including such as gesticulation, &c.

G—Methods of cross-examining criminals and obtaining information based upon psychology and showing the advantages of a knowledge of emotions, instinct and physical and moral cowardice.

"3. Practical instruction:

A—Study of various methods to be used in following or trailing suspected persons.

B—Methods to alter or conceal identity of detectives.

C—Study of methods employed by criminals, not only in committing crime but also to evade detection.

D—Practical lessons in noting prominent identification marks and actual tests in picking out an individual from a group by such description.

Course of Lectures Proposed.

"4. Lectures:

A—By members of the department on practical detective work.

B—By criminologists and penologists on the science of criminology, penology and criminal investigation.

C—By men expert in the science of observation which would educate our detectives in the most advanced methods of criminal investigation.

"5. Fire arms, &c.:

A—A training in the use of fire arms and other equipment connected with the police or other detective work. There are a number of other subjects which will probably suggest themselves to the committee, which can become a part of the general course.

All candidates admitted to the Detective Bureau must first qualify through the Detective Training School. All members of the Detective Bureau must attend the Detective Training School in turn and qualify for continuance in the service. Their failure to qualify in the Detective Training School may seriously affect their standing in the detective service, although this may not be absolute.

This committee will meet without delay and outline the plan and scope of the proposed Detective Training School for immediate approval, subject to such improvements as may be determined on from time to time.

Take up with the Quartermaster Department the matter of equipping the training school without delay, and report with recommendations not later than the 15th inst.

R. E. ENRIGHT,
Police Commissioner.

To Develop Esprit de Corps.

Besides imparting instruction to detectives, the school is expected, according to Commissioner Enright, to improve the esprit de corps of the department. He indicated that there was occasionally a tendency on the part of detectives possessing special knowledge is sometimes the case with other experts. Other police officials have complained of the disposition of some old-timers and a few younger specialists to make a secret of what they knew, in order to exclude competitors from their particular departments. Commissioner Enright's idea is to force the pooling of all knowledge of this kind and to increase team work.

The possibility that the establishment of the school might mean a shake-up in the personnel of the present force and the loss of detective pay by many of the 850 detectives was expressed yesterday. Widespread shake-ups have been repeatedly forecast before, but have not occurred. Numerous changes have been made under Commissioner Enright, but there has been no sweeping revolution in the detective ranks.

After making his announcement, Commissioner Enright said that it was the purpose of the school to bring the Police Department Detective Division to the use of modern and scientific methods used in some of the police departments of Europe.

"In some ways," he said, "the detective workings of this city are twenty-five years behind the times. Under the circumstances it is remarkable they function as well as they do. With the new school we hope to overcome the lack of scientific and up-to-date methods from which we have hitherto suffered."

George S. Dougherty, who was reported yesterday to be one of those selected for the regents or counselors of this detective university, said that he had received no word to that effect. He said that he had discussed the idea with Police Commissioner Enright. Mr. Dougherty made a tour of all the police departments of Europe recently and wrote a book about them.

"The idea is undoubtedly a good one," he said. "There is much that a detective can learn from the right kind of instructors. They learn a great deal at the school in Paris, although theoretical instruction is a little bit overdone there. For instance, in Paris they have an exhibition of every kind and color of human hair, and they make detectives attempt to study this until they can tell one from another at a glance. This and many other things like it are too finespun. There is too much effort to make a detective a specialist in everything. But the right kind of men, teaching them slowly and carefully, can show them a lot.

"There are many kinds of practical instruction in Paris that are highly valuable. They have dummy crimes and dummy mysteries performed before the detective in training them to use their eyes. They have a man muffled up and bent over who dashes into a dark corner and goes through the motions of murdering a man. Then the detectives or students are taken into another room, where the make-believe murderer and scores of others pass by.

Training in Identification.

"The detectives have to pick out the guilty man. Some mark or characteristic of his has been exhibited to them during the commission of the crime, and those who are very alert and quick-eyed can detect these features. About ninety-five out of the hundred detectives failed at this test when I saw it, but they practice away at it until they learn to pick out some characteristic and hang on to like a bulldog.

"The personnel of the detectives is changing rapidly in this city. All over the world the police departments are learning that they don't want detectives who look like detectives. In Paris, for instance, they had a rule that no man over five feet seven inches was to be used for secret service work. As far as possible, they wanted men who look the opposite of the standard detective.

"This change has been taking place rapidly in recent years in New York. You can't pick out a detective now the way you could a few years ago. Most of them haven't got the old stamp on them. On the whole, the average detective is a little better today than he used to be. The game requires more knowledge. The detective in or out of the department needs more education and more mental ability than he had to have a few years ago."

—accentuating the straight lines of their silhouette with hand-drawn-work—

At 25.00

Such smart, slender-looking frocks as these of lustrous crepe de Chine are the latest evidence that Spring is going to follow very straight lines.

They rely upon the richness of their own material, having no other decoration but long tracings of drawn-work and embroidery on the blouse—and, you will agree, very wisely.

A fluttering sleeve drapery reveals the same Georgette lining as that of the straight front and back panels. In navy blue, cocoa, tan, black and many other delightful shades.

STARTED SLOW FIRE, THEN TOOK FURS

HELPS RECOVER $1,000 LOOT

Grows Nervous When Detectives Search Shop for Fingerprints and Calls Off Deception.

Harry Glick, 35, of 107 East 116th Street, employed by J. Kanter & Co., manufacturing furriers of 419 Sixth Avenue, was arrested yesterday, charged with stealing $1,000 in furs from the firm. An investigation showed that an effort had been made to burn the store by means of a connected electric iron.

The arrest was made by Detectives Harry Porter and Joseph Anderson of the West Thirtieth Street Station, who found that a pane of glass in a lavatory window had been removed and a burglar alarm system ripped out. The shop presented every appearance of a genuine burglary.

Upon opening the shop yesterday morning Glick telephoned Mr. Kanter at his home to tell him of the burglary. Mr. Kanter notified the police and hurried down to take an inventory of his loss.

When he arrived at the store the detectives were there. Glick was leading them through the establishment, where he pointed out the removed window pane and called their attention to the condition of the burglar alarm system. On a wooden table in one side of the shop the detectives found a pile of furs through which a wire was suspended from the ceiling. This wire was connected to an electric iron on the table and furs piled around the iron with the electric current switched on. The iron scorched the furs as it slowly burned its way through the wooden table without igniting the table. The iron, with the filament burned out, was swinging by the electric cord when the detectives found it.

"This is not the first case we have come across in this neighborhood in which thieves tried to set the looted building afire with an electric iron," said a police official.

"Apparently it is their belief that the electric iron will start a fire slowly, giving them time to make a get-away, and that if the building or its contents are not entirely destroyed the evidence of the burglary will be obliterated."

The detectives went over the ground a second time without the assistance of Glick. They took note of the fact that the dust on the window sill where the window pane was missing was not disturbed. They also found that the burglar alarm system switch was open.

Glick was led back to the window and asked how entry could have been made without disturbing the dust on the window sill. Glick, according to the detectives, betrayed increasing signs of nervousness. They picked up the pane of glass that had been removed to examine it for finger prints. Glick at this point is said to have admitted that he was the burglar.

Glick's employer was absent from the shop all day Wednesday, when Glick is said to have made the elaborate preparations for the crime.

Glick next led the detectives to another fur store at 120 West Thirty-first Street, where the loot was recovered.

Glick had been in the employ of J. Kanter & Co. for about a year. His employer said he was an industrious furrier and that there had never been any question about his honesty. The prisoner was arraigned in Jefferson Market Court before Magistrate H. Stanley Renaud, and in consideration of the evidence he had given against himself he was not charged with burglary, but with larceny. He was held in $3,000 bail for examination on Feb. 14.

Glick is a tall, heavy set man. He said he was hard pressed for money, according to the detectives.

The finding of the electric iron and the burned table and scorched furs was reported to Fire Marshal Thomas P. Brophy, who began an investigation with a view to determining whether there was sufficient evidence on which to base a charge of arson.

FIGHTS THREE POLICEMEN.

One Drink of "New-Fangled Stuff" Responsible, He Tells Magistrate.

James McNeil, 50 years old, who said he was employed in the Metropolitan Hospital on Welfare Island, was brought into Night Court last night, after three policemen, Patrolmen Cohen, Fitzpatrick and Gillen, had a spirited battle to subdue him at West Forty-second Street and Eleventh Avenue. Policeman Cohen, who was the first to encounter McNeil, said the latter had refused to pay his check and put up a fight in the Parfait Restaurant in that neighborhood and then had wrecked the West Shore tailor shop next door.

"I had only one drink, Your Honor," McNeil told Magistrate William A. Sweetser. "This new-fangled stuff makes a man fighting mad."

Magistrate Sweetser found McNeil guilty of being drunk and disorderly and sent him back to Welfare Island for a thirty-day term in the workhouse.

CHURCH WON'T FAIL, SAYS DR. MANNING

lation from God, that we believe in "Jesus Christ, the same yesterday and today and forever," and that amid all the changes, and speculations and passing opinions of men, this Church will stand to bear her witness to the truth and power of the Gospel in the present and the future as she has in all her past.

Bishop Manning was introduced by Henry A. Mobart, the Chairman, as the first speaker. His address was received in complete and respectful silence until he reached the portion alluding to the issue raised by Dr. Grant. The applause which followed this mention was the most spirited of the evening. At the close of his address his hearers stood in acknowledgment of the principles he avowed.

The Rev. Dr. H. R. L. Sheppard, vicar of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, London, in his address said:

"We still have about 80 per cent. of our people who are out of touch with the established church in England. And the trouble with us in my country is that we as a Church have largely lost the hearts of our people. Perhaps this is because we have not been simple and human enough in telling them about the divine kindness of Jesus of Nazareth."

Dr. Sheppard remarked about the elaborate dinner, which cost $8 a plate, and added: "I wonder if a carpenter would feel at home in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel at such a magnificent gathering!"

Those at the speakers' table included Edward Sanford Pegram, Charles A. Tompkins, John H. Cole, the Rev. Franklin J. Clark, the Rev. Dr. E. Clowes Chorley, the Rev. Dr. Arthur H. Judge, James J. Pershing and Everett P. Wheeler of Denver, Colonel Charles Gerhardt, Haley Fiske, President of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company; the Right Rev. Frederick F. Reese, D. D., Bishop of Georgia; the Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, the Right Rev. William Cabell Brown, D. D., of Virginia, President of the House of Bishops; the Right Rev. Thomas F. Gailor, D. D., of Tennessee; Stephen Baker, the Right Rev. James Dewolf Perry, D. D., of Rhode Island; R. Fulton Cutting, the Rev. Dr. James E. Freeman, the Right Rev. Arthur Selden Lloyd, D. D., Captain Gloster Armstrong, British Consul General in New York; the Rev. Dr. H. E. W. Fosbroke, the Rev. Dr. F. J. Foakes-Jackson, George W. Hulsart, the Rev. The Rogers Trunk Corporation found it advisable to liquidate a large number of Trunks. The move was part and parcel of what might be termed a reorganization of the company's plan of operation. The Rogers Trunk—the Pacemaker—will from now on sell for much more money, everywhere. Yes, even at Gimbels.

But we bought these at much less than the old wholesale price. And these we shall sell now at much less than the lowest price at which the Pacemaker has ever been sold. Needless to say, we have had to shade our profits to do so.

The result is for the public—this wonderful trunk at $31.50. A price hitherto unknown.

SEEK $25,000 GEMS LOST AT HOTEL FIRE

Department Officials Start Inquiry as to Origin of the Blaze.

OTHER JEWELS UNTOUCHED

Mrs. C. O. Scott's Pearl Necklace Said to Have Been Dropped From Blackstone Window.

The Fire Department yesterday began an investigation of a charge that a pearl necklace said to be worth $25,000 had disappeared from the apartment of Mrs. C. O. Scott, in the Hotel Blackstone, at 15 East Fifty-eighth Street during a fire in her apartment last Monday morning.

The necklace, containing seventy-seven pearls, was said to have been dropped out of the window during the excitement of the blaze. The fire was caused by defective wiring, it was said at the Hotel Blackstone last night. An alarm was turned in and firemen put out the blaze. Many persons were said to have gone in and out of the room at the time. Mrs. Scott was burned in attempting to save her jewels. At the hotel it was said that her burns were slight, but another report was that burns and shock had made it necessary for her to go to a sanitarium.

Just who was reported to have dropped the pearls out of the window was not made public yesterday. Nothing was disclosed to indicate whether a conspiracy to steal the necklace was suspected, or whether it was believed that somebody picked it up after it dropped out of the window and then decided to keep it.

Fire Marshal Thomas P. Brophy said certain facts had already been discovered in connection with the disappearance of the pearls.

"The origin and circumstances of all fires that occur in this city are investigated," said the Fire Marshal. "This particular fire was not reported as a suspicious blaze, but on investigation certain facts developed which caused us to broaden our investigation."

A reward of $2,000 and a promise that no questions would be asked were advertised in the Lost and Found columns of THE NEW YORK TIMES in connection with the disappearance of the pearl necklace. The advertisement was as follows:

"$2,000 reward, no questions asked, for return of pearl necklace, containing seventy-seven graduated pearls, diamond clasp, dropped from apartment window on East Fifty-eighth Street during alarm of fire at Blackstone Hotel on Feb. 5. Communicate J. A. Gronau, 14 Stone Street. Telephone Bowling Green $2590."

It was reported to the Fire Department that the necklace was one of a large number of pieces of jewelry in the apartment at the time. The necklace is said to be the only piece which disappeared. Mrs. Scott's story of the occurrence could not be obtained yesterday.

The cause of the blaze has not been officially reported as yet, and Fire Marshal Brophy said he did not know just what had started it. One of the employees at the hotel said:

"I understand that some trouble with the wiring caused the blaze. How the jewels came to be lost is a mystery to us."

Mrs. Scott was not seriously burned and the report that she is at a sanitarium is probably a mistake. She was all right after the fire and walked out of the hotel. She left here the day of the fire and I understand that she went to another city. We don't know where she is now."

Police detectives questioned employes of the hotel and members of the Fire Department as to the circumstances surrounding the alarm of fire. Agency detectives also were busy trying to recover the necklaces.

GIRL STUDENT DIED FROM DOSE OF POISON

Autopsy Shows Cyanide of Potassium Caused Marie Bloomfield's Death.

The autopsy on the body of Miss Marie Bloomfield, the eighteen-year-old student at Barnard College, who committed suicide on Wednesday night, revealed that she had taken cyanide of potassium. But as to the reasons for her act, what went on in her morbid mind, what sad meditations on life and death, there was no further indication than the few lines she wrote.

Dr. Benjamin Schwartz, Assistant Medical Examiner, made the autopsy that showed what the poison was. Dean Virginia Gildersleeve said last night that nothing had been found to indicate directly why Miss Bloomfield had taken her life, and that she was as much puzzled to account for it as ever.

The book of Bruce Cummings, a man condemned by disease to die and leave a wife to whom he was devoted and a child he loved, was one of the things in which friends of Miss Bloomfield searched for light as to her act. Cummings, an English naturalist, who wrote under the name of W. N. P. Barbellion, revealed himself at times as bitterly fighting against the death which confronted him, and again as longing for it as an ecstacy in which he might find relief from his suffering.

Miss Gildersleeve said she could not see what there was in such a book that would have found a responsive chord in the mind of a young, healthy girl.

Miss Gildersleeve received a letter from Miss Bloomfield's brother, Leonard Bloomfield, of Columbus, Ohio, saying that he would arrive in New York today. The funeral will be held at the Campbell Funeral Church, Broadway and Sixty-sixth Street, where the body was taken yesterday. Several floral pieces, including one of white roses from Brook Hall, where the dead girl lived, were sent to the church, and many of her friends went there to see her for the last time.

OPPOSES PUTTING NEW IN HARDING'S CABINET

Wood, Congressional Chairman, Says Defeated Senator Should 'Take His Medicine.'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Representative Will R. Wood of Indiana, Chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, announced today that he would oppose the appointment of Senator Harry S. New of that State to President Harding's Cabinet, because Mr. New had been retired by his constituents and should "take his medicine."

It has been indicated that the retiring Indiana Senator would succeed Postmaster General Work when the latter is transferred within the next few weeks to the Secretaryship of the Interior.

Mr. Wood, who publicly supported Mr. Hoover in his unsuccessful fight for renomination last year, said today he would go to the White House in a day or two and enter his protest with President Harding.

PROTEGE PRINCIPAL HEIR

But Nephew Who Contested Will Settled for Several Millions—Profits of New York Globe.

The estate of Edward F. Searles, who died Aug. 6, 1920, was appraised yesterday as that of a non-resident of New York on the ground that Mr. Searles' legal residence was at Methuen, Mass., and because he occupied only two rooms in New York, at the Murray Hill Hotel, and came here only infrequently in connection with his business. The State of New York will collect a tax on only $3,397,853, of which $232,000 was the value of the property at 120 and 121 West Street. The remainder of the New York estate was in stocks and bonds.

The appraisal shows that the total estate was $22,219,826, of which $21,288,-830 was in personal property. The will gave the bulk of the estate to his friend and protegé Arthur T. Walker, who receives under the will $2,280,544 of the New York estate and a corresponding share of the entire estate, but Mr. Searles's nephew, Albert Victor Searles, who was the nearest next of kin and got only $250,000, contested the will in Massachusetts and settled with the estate for a sum said to be $4,000,000. Under the will the University of California got $60,000 in the event of the contest by the nephew.

Mr. Searles's New York estate included 7,125 shares of the Bush Terminal Buildings Company, valued at $367,812; 1,479 shares of preferred stock in the Bush Terminal Company, worth $236,135, and 1,752 shares of common stock, worth $141,192. He owned 1,500 shares of Brooklyn Edison Company, valued at $130,125. Other holdings were 480 shares Mechanics and Metals National Bank, $146,875; 400 shares National Bank of Commerce, $88,400; 1,500 shares Lackawanna Railroad, $122,250, and 1,000 shares Royal Dutch Company, $105,000. Mr. Searles owned 108 shares of the Commercial Advertiser Association, publisher of The Globe and Commercial Advertiser, having a par value of $100 a share and appraised at $6,944 a share, a total of $750,000. Elgin E. Rudd, who was Secretary to Mr. Searles, submitted an affidavit concerning the stock of the Commercial Advertiser Association, pointing out that a deficit of $3,321,456 appearing in the balance sheets of the newspaper represented the difference between the assets and liabilities and that the figure of $3,754,372 appearing on the liabilities side represented the sum contributed by the stockholders from time to time to make good the annual deficits down to 1918. He said that the entire sum had been expended except as was represented in the assets of $617,135. Eliminating the deficit and paid-in-surplus, Mr. Rudd pointed out that the assets at the date of Mr. Searles's death were $432,915 in excess of the liabilities.

The balance sheet of Aug. 6, 1920, listed assets of $617,135, which included $33,044 cash, $173,033 as the value of the advertising ledgers, $84,809 for paper on hand and $270,928 equipment and plant. The capital stock of the newspaper is $14,400.

The profit and loss sheets showed the following losses: 1914, income $1,043,761 and loss $128,597; 1915, income $1,322,-440 and loss $75,827; 1916, income $1,-832,165, and loss $26,852; and 1917, income $1,455,341 and loss $12,764. In 1918 the newspaper first began to show a profit, which continued as follows: 1918, income $1,783,127, profit $39,029; 1919, income $2,580,473, profit $221,469; 1920, income $2,919,063, profit $95,771; 1921, income $2,884,725 and profit $112,964. For the first nine months of 1922 there was a profit of $47,351. The total dividends declared aggregate $201,600 and the remainder of the profits was retained as a working capital.

The report shows that the assets of Mr. Searles not taxable in New York included stocks worth $4,082,715, bonds valued at $11,534,128; mortgages, notes, etc., $2,668,206, and contents of his home at Pine Lodge, Methuen, Mass., $405,894. He had total debts of $1,671,221 of which $829,656 were due in New York.

The will gave $2,500,000 in trust to Benjamin, George R. and John Bruce Allen, sons of his second cousin, Mrs. May Allen Rowland, and left her $1,000,-000 and the use of Pine Lodge during her lifetime.

MAINE GUIDE'S WIDOW INDICTED FOR MURDER

Mrs. Ethel Bean Accused of Shooting Husband, for Whose Killing Two Woodsmen Were Held.

FARMINGTON, Me., Feb 8.—Mrs. Ethel Bean, whose husband, Otis A. Bean, guide and mail carrier at the Pleasant Island sporting camps at Rangeley Lakes, was shot and killed Oct. 6 last at Haines's Landing, Rangeley, was arrested here late today, charged with murder. Two lumbermen —Norman Mawson, of Methuen, Mass., and Jeremiah W. Wheaton of Elmira, N. Y.—had been held in jail here since Bean's death.

The arrest of the widow came twenty minutes after the Grand Jury in the Supreme Court for Franklin County had found an indictment against her. Officers investigating the murder had kept secret that they were trying to connect Mrs. Bean with it.

The Grand Jury did not report indictments against Mawson and Wheaton.

Bean's body was found in front of a garage at Haines's Landing. He had been shot through the head, neck and body. The police believed he had been killed while resisting an attempt to rob him.

The two woodsmen were captured by a posse soon afterward. They had been in the vicinity of the garage when the shooting occurred, police alleged.

MEETS TOO MANY VICTIMS.

Swindler Drops Plea of Innocence When Confronted at Trial.

John Kostek, 30, who gave his address as 15 Mangin Street, Philadelphia, had almost convinced a jury in Judge Nott's part of General Sessions yesterday that he could not possibly have been the man who swindled Sigmund Sadowy of 158 India Street, Brooklyn, of $500 when Assistant District Attorney Wallace brought two other men into court to identify him, and he immediately pleaded guilty.

Sadowy told the jury that he had met Kostek in an employment agency and that Kostek took him to the Fifth Avenue Building, where he introduced him to a man posing as the "Superintendent." They induced him to deposit $500 as security for his honesty in protecting the building, after the "Superintendent" had employed him as a watchman at $25 a week.

Kostek had told the jury that it was a case of mistaken identity when Mr. Wallace called William Koshak and John Rabiak to identify the defendant as the man who had robbed them of $100 and $500, respectively, in a similar manner.

"Do you know these men?" asked Mr. Wallace.

"Yes, I know them," Kostek replied, "and I'm going to plead guilty right away."

Judge Nott said he would impose sentence on Kostek today. The maximum penalty is five years in State's prison.

GRANT PHONE RATE HEARING

Brooklyn Civic Bodies' Complaints Will Be Advanced Feb. 19.

Responding yesterday to complaints from a number of civic associations in Brooklyn about the new telephone rates, effective March 1, the Public Service Commission announced that, beginning at 2 o'clock, Feb. 19, it would hear arguments in favor of reopening the case. The chief complaint is directed against the monthly contract plan, which fails to provide rebates if less than the maximum number of calls is made.

Chairman Prendergast said that everybody would have an opportunity to speak, although the application was made by the Brooklyn Heights Forum. Mr. Prendergast said the new rate was not a new idea, but was already in effect in 437 cities. He said it has been in effect in the City of New York for four years. He said the commission already had held sixty-six public hearings. It is expected that committees representing the eleven Brooklyn civic organizations will be appointed to attend the hearing.

SIGNALS TRAP A BURGLAR.

Raps on Radiator Bring Policeman, Who Stops Fight With Arrest.

Five robberies in his apartment in sixteen months caused Frederick Barron of 366 St. Nicholas Avenue to devise a system of signals which resulted in the arrest of Frank Ramos of 245 West 123d Street yesterday. According to the police, Ramos had a jimmy and a set of skeleton keys.

Barron was awakened by the persistent ringing of his signal bell at the door. He went to the rear of the apartment and knocked on the radiator, giving a signal to Patrolman Fred Langdon, who was asleep in his apartment on the next floor. Barron then opened his door and found a man in the hall. Barron grabbed a milk bottle and attacked the man, and Langdon, who ran down the stairs with his pistol found Barron and Ramos wrestling on the floor. Ramos was overpowered and taken to the West 123d Street Station, where the police say he confessed to plans for several robberies.

Furniture in Largest Choice at Lowest Price

Consistent With Sound Quality

The showing of high grade suites is unique, but if there is any one feature more than another in which the sale is conspicuously supreme it is in furniture at medium and low prices.

Here is an avenue of low-priced and medium-priced dining-room suites.

They range in price from $150 to $500 and in this one group there are thirty-seven different styles to select from.

A typical example is a Queen Anne suite of ten pieces made of finely figured walnut veneers, priced at $225. The buffet has one long and two small drawers, one of them lined, for silver. A cabinet type serving table, five side chairs and one arm chair complete it—a suite rich enough and beautiful enough to put into any home, a suite for which any one would expect to pay twice as much.

It came from a factory that specializes in high class furniture. It takes a factory of just that kind to make low-priced furniture of supremely good quality, a fact of which this suite is a convincing illustration.

Even the lowest priced dining-room suite in the whole vast collection is of an exceptionally sound grade and excellent appearance.

10-piece mahogany veneer suite in Sheraton design has cabinet-type serving table, oblong dining table, five side chairs and one arm chair, drawers well finished inside, one fitted with removable partitioned tray and two side closets. Price $375.

10-piece Louis XVI. suite includes a combination walnut buffet 72 inches long, oblong table, china closet, five side chairs and one arm chair with leather covered seats is $477.

STRANSKY RESIGNS PHILHARMONIC POST

Conductor of Society's Orchestra for the Last Twelve Years Is Out.

GOSSIP AS TO SUCCESSOR

Announcement Within Ten Days Is Possible—Mengelberg and Toscanini Mentioned.

Clarence H. Mackay, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Philharmonic Society of New York, announced last night the resignation of Josef Stransky, conductor of the society's orchestra for the last twelve years. Mr. Mackay would not comment on the statement as issued, when asked later as to the reasons for the change.

The retirement of Mr. Stransky was by many believed to be a triumph of the "new" influences which took over the control of the Philharmonic at its amalgamation with the former National Symphony Orchestra, retaining the Philharmonic name. Mr. Mackay became Chairman of the Executive Board at that time, with Frederick A. Juilliard, Arthur Curtiss James, Otto H. Kahn, Charles Triller, Alvin W. Krech and Arthur Judson.

Mr. Judson, who has been manager and Executive Secretary of the Philharmonic since its reorganization two years ago, said that the resignation of Mr. Stransky as conductor was received at a meeting of the Executive Committee yesterday and formally accepted by it. It was decided to make an announcement of that action merely at this time. Within the next ten days, however, there would probably be further disclosure of plans as to choosing a successor to Stransky.

Came From Berlin in 1911.

Mr. Stransky led at Carnegie Hall two Sundays ago the last concert of his twelfth season with the Philharmonic, Mr. Mengelberg taking up the baton since for the remaining half of this season. Josef Stransky came to the Philharmonic from Berlin in 1911, following the death abroad of Gustav Mahler during that year and a brief interim when the orchestra was led by its former concertmaster, Theodore Spiering.

Felix Leifels, then the Society's manager, visited European capitals for a new leader and engaged Mr. Stransky, who was conducting one of the newer orchestras of that period in Berlin. It was said at the time that Stransky came to America at a salary of $22,000 a year, presumably continued during reengagements for his first ten years here, and for the last two seasons, according to report, at a higher figure. His quarter-million earnings in American dollars would make him now a multimillionaire in his native Bohemia.

Speculation as to the Philharmonic leadership next season was heard wherever musicians met last night. The orchestra itself, playing a subscription program in Carnegie Hall, rose to greet Mengelberg as he entered the stage, a demonstration in which the audience, all unaware of its cause, was quick to join. Mr. Mengelberg, it is already reengaged here for half of next season, as for the last two years. His conductorship of the Amsterdam Concertgebouw has been virtually a life job, and aside from definite contracts there next year, it was not thought he would undertake in future a more extended absence.

The name of Mr. Toscanini was mentioned, as it has been when other orchestras sought a leader since the famous Italian's retirement from the Metropolitan. Mr. Toscanini, too, is understood to be bound for another season to the opera in Milan. His eyesight and his physical strength have hitherto prevented him from accepting any post involving so wide a repertory, so large a number of concerts and so many tours afield as are required to make up a season of any of the principal orchestras of New York or other American cities today.

Stokowski Stays in Philadelphia.

A suggestion that Mr. Stokowski, conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra at its crowded concerts here as well as in its home town, might be sought by the Philharmonic directors was promptly denied. Mr. Judson, who happens to be manager of both organizations, said that, while he could not discuss the matter, it was no secret that Mr. Stokowski had renewed his Philadelphia contract a year ago for a term of five years. As published then, Philadelphia subscribers were told that Mr. Stokowski had accepted a salary of $40,000 a year, in order to remain with their orchestra, although a higher price was offered him then by "other organizations."

From an official source last evening it was learned that the Philharmonic was not now considering any man conducting an orchestra in this country today," since practically all those so engaged are under contracts extending beyond the present season. This was said to be the case as regards Mr. Gabrilowitsch in Detroit and Mr. Stock in Chicago.

Negotiations here, it was said, had not gone beyond the stage of diplomatic "pour-parlers," but it was believed the Philharmonic would within a few days sign contracts with "one of the world's distinguished musicians," most of whom are at the moment in America. Those in charge declined to name any one musician as the directors' choice.

$31,800 FEES FROM ACTRESS

Attorney Testified He Was Paid That by Miss Frederick.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 8.—Pauline Frederick, actress, paid George Edwin Joseph, New York Attorney, $31,800 for services rendered her under a contract whereby he was to procure engagements for her as a motion picture actress, he testified in the Superior Court here today in his suit against Miss Frederick for $36,000.

The actress has filed a countersuit against Joseph for $46,647.

Referring to telegrams introduced yesterday by the defense in support of its contention that Joseph's services were "more personal than professional," he testified that he had talked with Miss Frederick about his "foolish notes and telegrams," when some of them became public some time ago. He said he told Miss Frederick that he objected to the publicity given the messages, and advised her that it would hurt her professionally. She expressed great surprise, he testified, that any of the communications had become public, and said:

"It's a frightful thing to do this to such a splendid friendship as ours."

40-Cent Concerts in Providence.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 8.—A series of three concerts by high-class artists will be given in this city for 40 cents under an arrangement announced today by the Providence Music League, a recently organized society formed for the purpose of stimulating a love of music among the mass of people. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will be the attraction at the first concert a week from Sunday. The plan is supported financially by a music lover who will not permit his name to be made public.

Vaudeville for Hospital.

A vaudeville entertainment, to be followed by cards and dancing, will be given tomorrow evening at the Twelfth Regiment Armory, Sixty-second Street and Columbus Avenue. The proceeds will go to the Community Hospital, 19 West 101st Street. The Regimental band is to play for the dancing.

Stothart and Youmans Composed "Wildflower."

In a review of "Wildflower" printed in THE TIMES yesterday the score was erroneously credited to Rudolf Friml. The composers of "Wildflower" are Herbert Stothart and Vincent Youmans.

SEASON'S FIRST FAUST AT THE METROPOLITAN

Edward Johnson, in the Leading Role, Is Well Received by a Large Audience.

FAUST, opera in four acts and six scenes. Book in French by Jules Barbier and Michel Carre, from the German dramatic poem of Goethe. Music by Charles Gounod. At the Metropolitan Opera House.

Faust	Edward Johnson
Mephistopheles	Leon Rothier
Valentin	Giuseppe Danise
Wagner	Paolo Ananian
Marguerite	Frances Alda
Siebel	Ellen Dalossy
Martha	Kathleen Howard

Forty years since it opened the Metropolitan as a social and musical centre, Gounod's "Faust," still best known of the three operatic "Faust" versions, was sung there last evening to a largely filled house. It became in other days "the headstone of the corner," earning for this theatre its now forgotten nickname of the "Faustspielhaus." Though the music today has definitely "dated" as of the last century, its most hackneyed melodies yet have the haunting charm that age cannot wither nor custom stale—melodies hummed by grandmothers of the present generation, who heard them sung first at the old Academy in the sixties, by Clara Louise Kellogg and the Italians.

Few, indeed, have been the French singers of Gounod in what we still called the "famous American casts." Last evening's polyglot list contained but one, with one also American and one each Canadian, British, Italian, Hungarian and Armenian. In the Metropolitan's first quartet of 1883 were the Swedish nightingale, Nilsson, with the Italians Campanini, Scalchi, Del Puente. A débutante of that year was the American Nordica. The great casts of Abbey, Schoeffel & Grau began with the American Eames and Polish De Reszkes, or these again with Australian Melba, later productions of Conried and of Gatti in this century adding Caruso and Farrar. A rare French Marguerite was Emma Calvé, and one Frenchman of the Grau days was Jean Lassalle. It may be like to say that "Faust" is not French because other nations sing it.

Particular interest on the present occasion was in the appearance of Edward Johnson as Faust, the ninth leading rôle he has sung in a half-season. Mr. Johnson's youthful physique, ardent spirits and fine dramatic gifts made a hero to pair with his recent Romeo, and he sang with equal delicacy, with admirable diction, phrasing and style this music of aristocratic and artificial beauty. Mme. Alda was a familiar Marguerite of late years, Mr. Rothier an authoritative Mephisto. Others were Mmes. Dalossy and Howard, Messrs. Danise and Ananian, while Mr. Hasselmans at the baton held a firm hand of true Gallic fervor.

Rossini's "Barber of Seville" was repeated at a special Metropolitan matinee yesterday for the benefit of the Wayside Home for Girls, at Valley Stream, L. I., whose influential patronesses filled many parterre boxes. Mme. Galli-Curci again appeared as Rosina, with Mr. Lauri-Volpi for the first time as Almaviva, while Mr. Ruffo as Figaro took his leave of the opera for this season. There was accordingly much manifestation of individual enthusiasm from the crowded standees. Mme. Gahnz Walska was a guest in an orchestra chair, much observed during intermissions of the matinee.

"ANATHEMA" IS PLAYED.

Production at Yiddish Art Theatre Once Suppressed in Russia.

A remarkable play, with a presentation that was at all times adequate and frequently approached the superb, came to the Yiddish Art Theatre, at Madison Avenue and Twenty-seventh Street, last night. It was Leonid Andreyev's "Anathema." The play was originally done by the Moscow Art Theatre, with Katchalov, Vishnevsky, Germanova and Gorev, but was suppressed, with the sanction of the Czar, after thirty-seven performances because it placed the Jews, its leading protagonists, in too favorable a light.

In a sort of "Faust" frame—a resemblance heightened by the first scene, in which Anathema, the spirit of evil, crouches at the gates of heaven and ends an angry argument with their guardian by boasting of his intention to possess the soul of an unoffending mortal—Andreyev portrays the struggles of a simple-minded honesty and clarity in a man-made world of cupidity and suspicion. His methods are offensive, plodding, only finally cheats Anathema—again the "Faust" motifs and earns his immortal surcease from the petty struggles of life.

The seven scenes—requiring four different sets—are artistically and intelligently treated. In one of them unfortunately Samuel Ostrofsky, their creator, has defeated his own end by all too obviously attempting a design suggestive both of fantasy and reality. The result is the illusion of neither.

There are several excellent individual performances—notably those of Maurice Swartz as the Spirit of Evil, Munie Weisenfreund as the poor, bewildered, heart-sick Jew, Bina Abramowitz as his wife, and Mark Schweid, a youth with the mark of death upon his brow and a pathetic yearning to learn to dance before he breathes his lastbut there is no cohesion, no relation, no bond, visible or invisible, of union among the players.

Olanoff in Recital.

Max Olanoff gave his second violin recital in Aeolian Hall last evening, including in his program compositions of Handel, Mendelssohn, Aulin, Ford, Kreisler, an arrangement of Haydn's "Capriciletto" by Burmester, and the popular Pugnani-Kreisler "Prelude and Allegro." Of Mendelssohn's classic concerto the young player gave an unusually vigorous interpretation; its involved passages were played with accuracy, but throughout warmth of tone color was lacking. A waltz by Franklin Ford was cordially received in its first public hearing and a repetition demanded. John Warren Erb provided the piano background for the violinist.

MOTION PICTURE NOTES.

"Driven," a photoplay of Southern mountaineer life, produced independently by Charles Brabin and purchased by the Universal Pictures Corporation, will begin an indefinite engagement at the Criterion Theatre next Sunday.

Other new photoplays on Broadway next week will be "The Christian," an adaptation of Hall Caine's novel, directed by Maurice Tourneur, at the Capitol; "Fury," with Richard Barthelmess, at the Strand; "Adam and Eve," with Marion Davies, at the Rivoli, and "The Last Hour," with Milton Sills, at the Cameo.

"Java Head," directed by George Melford, and "Dog Sense," an animal comedy, now showing at the Rivoli, will be moved to the Rialto next week.

A screen version of Gilbert Emery's play, "The Hero," with Gaston Glass and Barbara La Marr, will be shown at the George M. Cohan Theatre next Sunday, for one day only.

The motion-picture version of "The Einstein Theory of Relativity," made in Germany and edited heer by Garrett P. Servis and Max Fleischer, will be shown at the Rivoli next week, the full four-reel edition daily at 11 A. M., beginning Monday, and an abridged two-reel edition daily in the regular program, which begins Sunday.

"Evolution," a motion picture made by Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars and Charles Urban, was shown last night in the auditorium of the American Museum of Natural History.

The principal musical numbers on the program of the Broadway theatres next week will be a prologue to the photoplay, including Huhn's "Invictus," sung by Eric Rye, at the Capitol; a pastoral sung by Miriam Lax, Susan Ida Clough and Inga Wank, at the Rivoli, and a prologue to the photoplay, including "Three for Jack" and "Silent Bells," sung by a male quartet, at the Strand.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Intermezzo," a play by Arthur Somnitzler, will be produced next season with Bertha Kalich as its star.

A Shakespearean travesty by Edith Isaacs and Anita Rice was added to "The Greenwich Village Follies" last night.

Kate McLaurin, who adapted "Whispering Wives" from a story by Henry Leverage, is dramatizing "The White Cipher," also a story by Mr. Leverage.

MUSIC

By RICHARD ALDRICH.

The Philharmonic Society.

When Mr. Mengelberg came upon the stage to conduct last night's concert of the Philharmonic Society in Carnegie Hall, the orchestra rose in a body to greet him. Are orchestras nowadays so accustomed to standing up that it was an involuntary act, or was it for some special reason? The audience, too, added its cordial greeting.

The performance was a very fine one. It began with Berlioz's overture to the opera of "Benvenuto Cellini"; and the brilliancy of the impulsive opening measures and the rich sweep of the orchestral tone through the piece almost concealed the poverty of its ideas and its shaky construction. Vincent d'Indy's "Symphony on a French Mountaineer's Air" was played with a similar splendor and brilliancy, with Alfredo Casella at the obbligato piano, which rarely emerges from its place as a part of the orchestral ensemble.

The symphony is not unknown to New York, though it had not been heard for some time. Though it is one of Mr. d'Indy's earlier compositions—dating from 1886—it shows that he had already to a certain degree freed himself from Wagnerian influences that are manifested in his first works, as in the "Wallenstein" that the Boston Symphony played here a few weeks ago. It also shows that he had already learned from his master, César Franck, the use of a pervading theme, developed and transformed as material for all his three movements. This theme, the "Mountaineer's Air," is from the Cévennes, in France, but it has a strong kinship with the Celtic and a touch of the "snap" that is ordinarily called Scotch. It is a beautiful theme, and d'Indy's use of it is ingenious and fertile; his symphonic structure sonorous and nobly wrought.

Mr. Casella then appeared in a solo with orchestral accompaniment; his own orchestration of Albeniz's "Spanish Rhapsody." The piece was originally written with orchestral accompaniment, but the orchestral score, like Rosina's air in the lesson scene, has been lost. Mr. Casella's is the second attempt at a reconstruction, the first having been made by Mr. Enesco.

The Spanish characteristics in the music have been ingeniously wrought out in successive dance rhythms. Mr. Casella's orchestration seemed a little noisy; more often noisy than brilliant, and showing that insatiate fondness for stopped horns and trumpets that is a standing rule for modern orchestration. He played the piece with an abundance of character and rhythmic decision.

The last number was Ravel's "choreographic poem," "La Valse," in which different schemers have seen different all sorts of things, tragic irony, a sinister undertone, and implied anguish. The piece was first introduced here last season by Mr. Stransky.

The New York Symphony.

A richly colored and fascinatingly rhythmed performance of Rimsky Korsakoff's symphonic suite "Scheherazade" opened the concert of the New York Symphony Orchestra in Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon, under the direction of Albert Coates. The piece was played "in another place" a few days ago; and it bears repetition, especially when it is so savored as it is by Mr. Coates.

Rimsky Korsakoff has been the target for a good deal of destructive criticism lately. He brought it on himself by what he did for and to Moussorgsky's music on more than one occasion. One of the most destructive shafts leveled at him has been that he was a "professor of counterpoint." But "Scheherazade" remains a very creditable achievement for such a one, and the reproach implied in the taunt does not count for much with those who listen to his brilliant and diverting piece. It has little of the academic in it except a great knowledge of how to dispose of original and striking ideas, how to harmonize, how to catch the spirit of the Orient, how to write for the orchestra. All these things were a part of Rimsky's professional equipment, and they come out in his music.

Mr. Mischa Levitzki was the soloist, and played Liszt's E flat concerto. He is rather too good a musician to do this work full justice. Being a swaggering piece of rhetorical bumcombe, with a little cheap sentimentality for contrast, the performer should swagger and storm and sentimentalize in it. Mr. Levitzki did a little of this sort of thing, mostly toward the end, but not enough. His good taste was too much in evidence, his reluctance to violate it too evident. But the audience encouraged him greatly for what he did and gave him much applause.

The program ended with two "Parsifal" selections for orchestra, the "Prelude" and the "Good Friday Spell."

A slight accident happened near the beginning of the "Good Friday Spell": a cramp seized Mr. Coates's right hand and caused him to drop the baton, and this has caused the orchestra to stop. A new beginning was made and the piece was played through.

Purcell's "Dido and Aeneas" to Be Given.

A performance of Henry Purcell's opera, "Dido and Aeneas," will be given at the Plaza Hotel on Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock for the benefit of the Rosemary Building Fund of the Rosemary School in Greenwich, Conn.

The opera is generally said to be the first one ever written in English. It was composed probably about 1690 and is scored for a quartet on strings, with harpsichord. It will be so performed, with a chorus of forty voices, which has a preponderating part.

The choice of this opera for this purpose is particularly appropriate from the fact that Purcell wrote it originally for a girls' school, Mr. Josias Priest's, in Chelsea. One of Purcell's biographers says of it: "In dramatic directness, characterization, adaptation of means to ends, feeling for climax as well as actual beauty, the opera is as much alive in the twentieth century as are any of Gluck's." So the New York public should hear it. Tickets are to be had of Miss Juliana Cutting, 542 Fifth Avenue.

COLUMBIA STUDENTS GIVE 'JULIUS CAESAR'

Philolexian Society in First of Four Performances of Shakespeare's Tragedy.

The Philolexian Society of Columbia University presented Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" last night at the Town Hall, maintaining its tradition of presenting an Elizabethan play each year. The performance, which will be repeated this afternoon and tomorrow afternoon and evening, was under the direction of Louis Calvert and Moffat Johnson.

Most of the applause last night fell to Warner Tufts as Brutus, Perry Ivins as Cassius and to Mary Benjamin as Portia. At times Tufts's acting was such as to give real vitality to the role of Caesar's assassin. The scene in Brutus's garden in which Portia pleads with him to confide in her his secret held the audience most intently. Rome never produced a more self assertive mob than that which last night interrupted Mark Anthony's funeral oration. William Haskell Coffin Jr., 12-year-old son of Frances Starr, took the part of the boy Lucius.

Among the patrons and patronesses of the performance were: President Nicholas Murray Butler, Dean Virginia Gildersleeve of Barnard, Dean Herbert E. Hawkes of Columbia, Professor Brander Matthews, Augustus Thomas, Stuart Walker, Mrs. Willard Straight, Mrs. E. H. Harriman, Professor John Erskine, John G. Milburn and T. Ludlow Chrystie.

NEW LEHAR OPERETTA.

Continental Managers Flock to Vienna for Opening.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Feb. 8.—Theatrical managers from all over the continent have come here for Franz Lehar's new operetta "The Yellow Jacket." It tells a quite simple story of a Viennese girl falling in love with a Chinese diplomat. She marries him and goes to China? Homesickness attacks the bride and her husband sets her free. In the end the couple are happily reunited.

In his melodies Lehar cleverly combines quaint Chinese airs with his own delightful Viennese music.

JEWTRAW CLINCHES ADIRONDACK CUP

Wins 220-Yard Dash at Lake Placid and Cannot Be Beaten for the Gold Trophy.

WORLD'S RECORD EQUALED

Victor Skates Distance in 19 Seconds in Semi-Final Heat—Reed Captures Mile.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 8.—Charles Jewtraw of Lake Placid clinched the Adirondack Gold Cup championship and possession of the fine trophy this afternoon when he won the first event of the day, the 220-yard dash. Today saw the beginning of the fourth and last tournament of the Adirondack Cup series. The first of the previous meets was skated in Endicott-Johnson City, the second at Plattsburg and the third at Saranac Lake.

The conditions of the championship designate as the winner, the skater receiving the greatest total of points at the four meets. In each tournament the events are 220 yards, 440 yards, half-mile, three-quarter-mile, one-mile and three-mile. Jewtraw is the holder of 300 points, having scored 170 at Johnson City, 160 at Plattsburg and 30 today.

Charles Gorman, St. John, is Jewtraw's nearest competitor, with 200 points. There are still four races to be skated before the championship comes to a close. Should Gorman win first place in all for a total of 120 points he would still be 40 points behind Jewtraw if the latter failed to place in any event.

Richard Donovan, Endicott-Johnson City, and Harry Kaskey of Chicago, are tied with 150 points each for third honors.

Equals World's Record.

The 220-yard event was skated in five heats, two in each qualifying for the semi-final. Alfred Neuhefer, Johnson City; Paul Forsman, New York; Joe Moore, New York; Charles Gorman, St. John; Charles Jewtraw, Lake Placid, and William Steinmetz, Chicago, qualified for the final. The semi-final, in which Jewtraw, Moore and Steinmetz finished in that order, was skated in 10 seconds, equaling the world's record held jointly by Morris Wood and Charles Jewtraw.

Jewtraw beat the gun in the final and went out in front, two yards ahead of his nearest competitor, Joe Moore, and held the lead safely to the finish. In the stretch, with the skaters behind Jewtraw in a bunch, Steinmetz fell and Gorman went down over him. Paul Forsman of New York and Joe Moore of New York finished second and third, respectively, inches apart.

Edward Reed, Chicago, won the mile race over the two laps, fast time of 2 minutes 50 4-5 seconds, with Charles Gorman of St. John a stride behind and Valentine Bialis, Lake Placid, third. Alfred Neupher, Johnson City, set a terrific pace for the first lap, but was overtaken by Tony Hollander of Milwaukee on the line, finishing second.

Hollander led the third and fourth laps, setting a dizzy pace, and Bialis came to the fore in the fifth. The latter looked a sure winner until the skaters turned into the stretch. Here Reed and Gorman passed Bialis and fought for the lead, the former breasting the tape a fraction of a second ahead of the skater from St. John.

Jewtraw Starts Too Late.

Jewtraw tarried too long before beginning his sprint, and, although he made a great effort to finish among the first three, his attempt fell short by several yards. He finished fourth.

PENN ALUMNI HEAR NEW COACH'S PLANS

Louis Young Discusses Next Football Campaign Before Meeting at Local Club.

Two hundred University of Pennsylvania alumni gathered at the University of Pennsylvania Club, 35 East Fiftieth Street, last night and listened to the new Penn football coach, Louis A. Young, outline his plans for the coming season. At the conclusion of his talk, the two hundred departed with buoyant hopes for the rejuvenation of the gridiron game at Pennsylvania and a return of the Red and Blue to her former position as one of the strongest elevens in the East.

President W. L. Saunders of the club, in his introduction of Coach Young, called attention to the fact that the new coach, who returns to rejuvenate Penn football, was graduated in 1914, the first honor man of his class. "It is rather an unusual thing for a man who was the first honor man in a class as large as those at Pennsylvania to come back to take charge of football," said Mr. Saunders, "but it is indicative of the calibre of man that Coach Young is. Penn men all over the country are impressed by the appointment of Mr. Young as football coach and we feel that the Red and Blue will cut a much more important figure in the football world in the future than it has for a long time past."

Young declared that he was returning to Pennsylvania because of his love for the game and his great ambition to teach men who love to play the game. He said that far too much stress was laid these days on winning and losing and not enough on the love of playing.

Young played on Penn teams during the seasons of 1911, 1912 and 1913. After his junior year, 1913, Young, who was regarded as one of the most promising ends in the country, was switched to the backfield because of the shortage of backfield material, and this change to a position new to him undoubtedly kept him from getting All-American honors as an end. He was captain of the team in his senior year. Penn men declare that he ranks as one of the greatest ends that ever wore the Blue and Red. After his graduation he coached the freshmen for two years and has assisted varsity coaching since that time, acting without pay.

Hoppe Not to Shake Hands Until He Meets Schaefer

Fearing that his right hand might be injured in some way Willie Hoppe, the world's professional 18.2 balkline billiard champion, has decided to refrain from hand shaking before or after the various exhibition matches he is scheduled to play with Charles Peterson in this vicinity prior to his championship match with Jake Schaefer at the Hotel Pennsylvania on March 12, 13 and 14. Hoppe will return to this city tomorrow from an exhibition tour in the middlewest. He will play Peterson at the Hoppe Peterson Club tomorrow night. Through his manager, R. B. Benjamin, he has requested that his friends eliminate hand shaking. "It is surprising how tired a billiard player's hand becomes," explained Benjamin, "and there is always the danger of having the muscles of the arm strained."

CONFLICT IN GOLF DATES IS AVOIDED

Women's Metropolitan and Eastern Tourneys to Be Held in Successive Weeks.

There will be no conflict between the 1923 women's metropolitan golf championship and the women's Eastern championship such as was feared when the dates for the two fixtures were first announced.

Mrs. Myra D. Paterson, President of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association, announced yesterday that the week of June 11 had been decided on for the metropolitan classic, which will be played at the Westchester-Biltmore Country Club, at Rye, and that the Eastern championship would be decided at Philadelphia during the week of June 4 over the Whitemarsh Valley Country Club course.

The change in dates, if indeed one of the conflicting dates ever actually existed, will not, however, bring about all that could be desired, for there still remains a choice between the Eastern event and the Metropolitan Amateur Championship. The latter tournament, which has been awarded to Shawnee, will start on June 4, the same day as the Eastern. Both being of major importance in the golf calendar, the one being a strictly metropolitan affair and the other drawing heavily from the metropolitan district, it is unfortunate that the conflict exists. However, the golf calendar is getting to be a difficult affair to arrange without conflicts.

Four new members have been added to the Executive Committee of the women's association in accordance with the provisions of the new constitution which was adopted at the last annual meeting. They are Miss Eleanor Mellon, Mrs. Charles Dulles, Mrs. G. J. S. Fraser and Mrs. R. Percy Thompson.

The Executive Committee of the Metropolitan Golf Association has fixed the dates of the metropolitan open championship for July 18, 19 and 20, according to an announcement sent out yesterday by C. W. O'Connor, Secretary of the M. G. A. The event will be played over the course of the Canoe Brook Country Club, Summit, N. J.

WILLOUGHBY VICTOR ON FLORIDA LINKS

Defeats Hanson in Sensational Semi-Final Match, One Up—Langford Also Wins.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 8.—By virtue of their victories in the third round of match play in the South Florida championship golf tournament today, Ralph L. Willoughby, Marion Cricket Club, Philadelphia, and William B. Langford, Glen Oaks Country Club, Chicago, will play 36 holes of match play tomorrow on the links of the Palm Beach Golf Club for the 1923 title.

Langford beat Chris Dunphy of Washington on the sixteenth green, 3 and 2. Willoughby found a more difficult opponent in R. E. Hanson, Pine Valley Club, Philadelphia, and although he was four up on the fifth hole and still three up on the eleventh, failed to keep this lead and the match went to the twentieth hole before Willoughby won.

The ending of this match was one of the most spectacular ever seen in this annual tournament. Willoughby's drive from the nineteenth tee landed in a clump of trees while Hanson lined out a 220-yard drive straight up the fairway. Willoughby made a wonderful second shot with a mashie niblick and succeeded in halving the hole when he sank in eight foot putt. Willoughby drove 245 yards from the twentieth tee and was on the edge of the green in two shots, while Hanson's second shot was hole high but thirty yards away. Hanson used up two shots in getting within sure putting distance of the cup, but Willoughby thrilled a large gallery by sinking a 24-foot putt for a birdie three and the match.

Judge A. Brandenburg of Denver beat O. L. Brailey of the Inverness Club, Toledo, 1 up, in the second flight, and W. L. Kingsley, Rome, N. Y., beat R. C. Wilson, New York City, by the same score.

ONE FALL WINS FOR ZBYSZKO OVER RIVAL

Defeats Siegfried in Sensational Wrestling Match at 71st Regiment Armory.

Wladek Zbyszko, brother of the former world's wrestling champion, last night defeated Ernst Siegfried at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory in a sensational wrestling bout on a fall after the two had wrestled continuously for one hour and sixteen minutes. It was the first time that Siegfried has ever had a fall scored against him. Zbyszko finally accomplished his opponent's downfall with a Cornish back heel hold, a hold which is seldom seen in wrestling in this country. Zbyszko, who had been trying to wear Siegfried down with a head lock, suddenly released that hold and reaching between his own legs caught Siegfried with the unexpected back heel hold and threw him heavily and then leaped on him and pinned his shoulders to the mat for the only fall of the two-hour limit match. After a ten minute rest the men resumed hostilities, but Siegfried tried desperately to even the count the remainder of the two hour period was a stalemate. Siegfried was the aggressor, particularly during the early part of the match and punished Zbyszko severely without being able to score a winning hold.

The Armory was packed and the big crowd went home well satisfied that it had got its money's worth.

In the semi-final match George Calza, champion of Italy, won from Henry Lebmayer, Austrian champion, on a fall scored in 26 minutes and 20 seconds with an arm roll.

The summaries:

Charles Disch and Mike Romano, draw. Time—30 minutes.

MRS. MALLORY MAY NOT PLAY ABROAD

Ill Health Likely to Prevent Her Competing on Riviera Courts—To Sail Tomorrow.

Although Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, women's national tennis champion, will sail for Europe tomorrow, it is not at all certain that she will be in sufficiently strong physical condition to play in the tournaments along the Riviera in which she has planned to appear. The announcement was made yesterday by Franklin I. Mallory, husband of the champion, that Mrs. Mallory was still suffering so acutely from the attack of bronchitis which prevented her from finishing her competition last week in the Heights Casino invitation tournament in Brooklyn that she might not be able to play in Europe at all. There is hope that the ocean voyage may so far improve Mrs. Mallory's health that she will change her mind about competing in the several Riviera tournaments, but the situation at present makes her participation unlikely. She will watch the tournaments, however, and it is thought that the vision of her dearest opponent in action, Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, may cause her to appear.

When Mrs. Mallory originally announced the trip she stated that she would play in the tournaments at Nice, Mentone, Monte Carlo and Cannes for the various Riviera titles. Inasmuch as Mlle. Lenglen is always a contestant in those tournaments, it was taken for granted that the trip would bring about a renewal of the rivalry between the world's champion and the American champion, which was so sensationally manifested in the Wimbledon tourney last Summer and in the American women's championship at Forest Hills in the preceding Summer.

Mrs. Mallory clings to her original statement that she will not remain over for the Wimbledon tournament this season, but will return to the United States with her husband immediately after the conclusion of the Riviera season. Thus the likelihood of a meeting between Mlle. Lenglen and Mrs. Mallory, generally conceded to be the two foremost women players in the world, approaches the vanishing point. The one hope is that Mrs. Mallory's health may be so far improved by her ocean voyage that she will be able to play at Mentone and the other Riviera tournaments.

The regular Lavender five will start the contest, with the single exception of Frank Salz, the diminutive forward, who has just been declared ineligible. He will probably be replaced by Leo Palitz.

AMHERST DEFEATS CLARK.

Takes Lead in First Half and Captures Basketball Game, 33 to 23.

Special to The New York Times.

AMHERST, Mass., Feb. 8.—Amherst defeated Clark University here tonight, 33 to 23, in a loosely played game. Amherst took the lead early in the first half and kept well ahead until the last few minutes of play. Walker played well for Amherst, while Fowler scored all the points for Clark.

DR. ROSCOW BEATEN IN BILLIARD MATCH

Loses to Steinbugler in Class B Tourney—Beardsley Wins From Johann.

Dr. Richard Roscow, the Baltimore billiardist who made such a favorable impression in his first match in the national Class B 18.2 balkline tournament at the Amateur Billiard Club of this city on Wednesday evening, was defeated yesterday by Charles Steinbugler by a score of 200 to 187. The result was a distinct surprise for, after the showing the Maryland player made against Joseph R. Beardsley, when he made a high run of 57 and averaged 11 13-17, he seemed to have an excellent chance of completing his schedule without defeat. Yesterday, however, Steinbugler played sound billiards, while Dr. Roscow misjudged the speed of the table in his early innings and did not get going until it was too late. The winner made high runs of 20, 19 and 17 and averaged 8 8-24. Dr. Roscow made high runs of 25, 23 and 19 and averaged 7 6-23.

An analysis of the game shows that Steinbugler did not fail to count in a single inning. Briefly that tells the story. While he made no big runs, he was consistent and played some pretty ball to bail billiards. Whereas Dr. Roscow's judgment of speed caused him to lose control of the ivories on several occasions and upset his position play, Steinbugler exercised excellent judgment in this respect. It was not until the tenth inning that Dr. Roscow ran into double figures. Then he made a cluster of 11. At the end of the fourteenth inning Steinbugler was leading by a score of 123 to 66, but seven innings later the Baltimorean was within seven points of his opponent, the score then standing 165 to 158 in favor of Steinbugler. From that stage of the game to the finish the ultimate winner piled up points and won by a comfortable margin.

The score by innings:

Charles Steinbugler—16 2 0 3 9 17 3 8 9 2 20 16 7 5 9 3 1 19 3 3 6 15 16. Total, 200; high runs, 20, 19, 17; average, 8 8-24.

Dr. Richard Roscow—0 8 1 0 5 2 1 0 0 11 5 3 16 0 0 49 23 16 3 23 5 5 8 4 6. Total, 187; high runs, 25, 23, 19; average, 7 6-23.

In a second game, played last evening, Joseph R. Johann, who recently won the Class B championship of New York State, was defeated by Joseph Beardsley by a score of 200 to 158. In this match the winner averaged 6 8-32 and made clusters of 30, 26 and 20, while the loser's average was 5 3-31 and his best innings produced 29, 24 and 21.

Johann started well and for a time seemed destined to take his opponent's measure, but then he ran into a succession of misses and soon lost the advantage. Beardsley played with precision and showed to better advantage than he had on the opening night when he fell a victim to Dr. Roscow's cue.

The score by innings:

Joseph Beardsley—1 20 1 7 6 5 4 0 4 1 9 15 7 11 7 0 7 1 0 6 20 16 3 1 9 4 0 0 11 0 25. Total, 200; high runs, 30, 26, 20; average, 6 8-32.

Joseph R. Johann—0 3 14 24 3 4 0 1 7 8 0 0 14 11 2 0 5 4 7 1 7 13 0 0 0 1 1 20 0 1. Total, 158; high runs, 29, 24, 21; average, 5 3-31.

Billiard Results.

The last games of the finals for the national Class C amateur balkline billiard championship will be played at the Recreation Billiard Academy, Brooklyn, tonight. In one Emmett Crozier will meet Frank L. Gray and in the other the contestants will be L. A. Servatius and Joseph Neustadt. Should Gray win tonight's game he will capture the title, but if Crozier wins there will be a three-cornered tie for the honors among Gray, Spears and the winner of the Servatius-Neustadt game.

Two games were played last night. In the first Servatius defeated L. W. Fisher, 150 to 108. Servatius had a high run of 14 and an average of 3, while Fisher's best run was 13 and his average 2 10-49. In the second game Crozier defeated Spear, 150 to 116. Crozier averaged 4 2-37 and had a high run of 16, while Spear averaged 3 8-30 and had a run of 23. It was Spear's second defeat in the tournament.

In a New York three-cushion tournament played at Cranfield's 181st Street Billiard Academy last night, Fred Owls defeated Jack Van Gilder, 35 to 3. The game required 42 innings. Owls had a high run of 5. In a tournament game at Cranfield's 145th Street Academy, Harry Frisch defeated George LaRue, 50 to 25, in 64 innings. Frisch had a high run of 8. LaRue one cluster of 4. At the same time the final games of the preliminary tournament to decide representatives for the Greater City pocket billiard tournament were played. Carl Vaughan defeated Frank Frenzel, 100 to 44, in sixteen innings, and Edward O'Brien defeated Frank Greenfield, 100 to 54, in twenty-five innings. Vaughan had a high run of 28 and Frensel 13. O'Brien's high run was 21. Vaughan will represent the 181st Street Academy in the tournament and O'Brien the 145th Street Academy.

George Moore, one of New York's two entries in the Interstate Three-Cushion League, won a double victory over Charles McCourt of Pittsburgh in yesterday's games played at Thum's Billiard Academy. In the afternoon he defeated McCourt by the score of 50 to 46 and in the evening he won by the score of 50 to 30. Moore had a high run of 5 in the afternoon and of 9 in the evening. McCourt's best run was one of 5 in the evening game. The afternoon game took 81 innings, the evening 58. Both are former holders of the world's professional three-cushion championship.

NAVY IN HARD BATTLE.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 8.—West Virginia gave the Naval Academy a game fight on the local basketball floor this afternoon. A flash of speed and clever shooting sent the midshipmen into a comfortable lead towards the last, however, the score standing 31 to 15. The visitors put up as aggressive a defense as has been seen here this year, completely breaking up the Navy's team play during most of the game by their intercepting of passes.

Superior staying qualities and changes in the line-up made the Navy look like a new team in the latter part of the second half and the scoring then was rapid, while the visitors were compelled to use long shots on almost all of their trys.

Harris, a regular forward, kept out of the game for the last month by a cracked elbow, played a short time in the second half today.

NAVY (31).		WEST VA. (15).
McKee	L.F.	Oliker
Parrish	R.F.	Hill
Walshe	C.	Hawley
Shapley	L.G.	Rhorobough
Barnes	R.G.	Bowers

Goals from field—Naval Academy: Parrish (3), McKee (3), Walshe (2), Harris, Jones, Barnes. West Virginia: Bowers (2), Hill, Bartell, Hawley. Goals from fouls—Naval Academy: McKee (8 in 16), Mills (0 in 0). West Virginia: Hill (5 in 6).

Substitutions—Naval Academy: Harris for Parrish, Mills for McKee, McKee for Mills, Jones for Walshe, Barnes for Jones, Jones for Barnes, Barnes for Jones. West Virginia—Bartell for Hill.

Referee—C. E. Celliflower, Georgetown. Umpire—Mentch, University of Maryland. Time of halves—20 minutes.

GIRLS' FIVES IN BATTLE.

Borough President Quintet Seats Education Department, 14 to 11.

The girls' basketball team representing the Borough President of Manhattan department in the Municipal Basketball League defeated the Education Department five in last night's game played at the East Fifty-fourth Street gymnasium, 14 to 11. The Plant and Structures department forfeited its game to the Health Department team. In the men's division, the Fire Department basket-tossers defeated the Plant and Structures Department team, 27 to 21.

Duluth Beats Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Feb. 8.—Duluth defeated Milwaukee at hockey here tonight in a well played game by the score of 3 to 2. The second game of the two-game series will be played here tomorrow.

THE FINN SOLD TO COE FOR $110,000

PRICE SETS NEW RECORD

Is Highest Ever Paid in America for a Sire Bought for Stock Purposes Only.

John R. Madden and Montfort Jones yesterday sold The Finn, an eleven-year-old stallion by Ogden out of Livonia, to W. R. Coe for $110,000, a record price in America for a sire bought for stock purposes only. The price is also the fifth highest ever paid for a thoroughbred in this country. The deal was consummated at the Waldorf-Astoria by Mr. Coe and Mr. Madden and Kay Spence, who represented Montfort Jones. Madden came here from Kentucky in order to expedite the sale.

The Finn has shown fine promise as a sire and among his get are to be found such well-known racers as Kai Sang, Oceanic, Bud Lerner and Zev. Last year The Finn took a place among the first twenty American sires, a fact which is all the more noteworthy when it is realized that only two crops of his offspring are racing, numbering in all but thirteen performers. The Finn himself came to the races in 1914 and competed with great success that year.

Late in the year he was sold to Louis Winans and later was a starter in the Futurity. He was so badly injured in that race that he did not compete again that season. When his racing career was over he was bought back by Madden and remained in the possession of the owner of Hamburg Place until yesterday.

Ogden, the sire of The Finn, is the only imported colt which ever won the Futurity. Livonia was a daughter of Star Shoot and Woodray, which in turn was a daughter of Rayon d'Or and Wood Nymph. Thus may The Finn's pedigree be traced back to the best English lines. Star Shoot was for many years the leader of the American stock horses. His name still appears among the first twenty of 1922, although he is now dead. Ogden's name is also in the charmed list, so The Finn came by his place in the first twenty honestly.

Fair Grounds Profit $100,000; Racing Body Pays Dividend

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 8.—A dividend of 10 per cent., the first distribution of profits among the stockholders in five years, will be paid next week by the Business Men's Racing Association, it was announced today. It was stated that the association had cleared more than $100,000 on the racing meet now in progress at the Fair Grounds.

EULALIA IS FIRST AT NEW ORLEANS

Captures Feature Race on Fair Grounds Track After Strong Stretch Run.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 8.—Weather and track conditions were both conducive to good racing at the Fair Grounds this afternoon and the big mid-week crowd got several real runs for its money. Close finishes were abundant and as a general thing were not confined to two horses, but found several contenders battling at the end.

Three-year-olds had a chance in the featured race of the program—the Belmont Handicap. Six of the original eight named reported at the barrier to test their respective speeds over the mile journey. The winner turned up in the Spanish Prince II. filly, Eulalia, which had scored a handy victory in the Tally-Ho Purse on Monday. Eulalia, a bay three-year-old, owned and trained by C. Phillips, was figured as a contender on the strength of her showing Monday. At that time she went to the post at odds of 15 to 1, but yesterday 6 to 2 were the best odds obtainable against her chances.

Eulalia was rated off the pace by Jockey Chalmers during the first three-quarters, but when the boy set her down she came down the stretch like an arrow from the bow and was going away from the tiring Setting Sun and the heavily-backed Blue Nose at the finish. Both these horses showed good speed until the last eighth was reached, when they started fading from the picture. Setting Sun took the place money by the tip of a nose from the E. R. Bradley colt.

A. U. to represent the association in the National A. A. U. senior indoor track and field championships to be held at Buffalo on Feb. 17. Heading the list is Bob McAllister, national 100-yard champion, who was selected to compete in the 60-yard dash in the Buffalo meet. The others are Yardley Chittick, Newark A. WHITE IS FAVORED TO DEFEAT KANSAS

Lightweights Box Tonight in Important Bout in Garden—Winner May Meet Leonard.

Two of the foremost contenders for Benny Leonard's world's lightweight championship title will be seen in action at Madison Square Garden tonight, when Charlie White of Chicago clashes with Rocky Kansas of Buffalo in the featured bout scheduled for fifteen rounds. White arrived in town yesterday afternoon in time to indulge in a short workout at the Garden. Kansas also breezed into town later in the day and was accompanied by a delegation of followers who will be on hand to cheer for their favorite tonight. Both boxers will weigh in at the Garden at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the stipulated lightweight limit of 135 pounds.

Tonight's bout will be an important one in the careers of both boxers, as the winner is likely to be matched at a later date with Leonard. It is also possible that the winner of tonight's match will be signed for a battle with Lew Tendler, Philadelphia contender for Leonard's laurels. Leonard has promised to be on hand tonight to see his rivals in action.

Both boxers reported themselves to be in the best of physical condition yesterday and each is confident of gaining a victory. White declared that he expects to dispose of the Buffalo Italian in seven or eight rounds, and Kansas also expressed the opinion that he would win by a knockout.

White's last fight in the Garden was against Ritchie Mitchell, whom he stopped in ten rounds after one of the most sensational battles ever seen in the old amphitheatre. Previous to that bout the Chicagoan knocked out Sid Marks and Bobby Barrett. White has lost only one bout here under the amended Walker law and, in addition to scoring the three knockouts just mentioned, he also has beaten Willie Jackson and Johnny Dundee.

Kansas first appeared in the Garden in a bout against Willie Jackson, and although on the short end of the betting odds, the Buffalo lightweight easily defeated Jackson. Kansas was then matched with Tendler in October, 1921, and gained the decision over the Philadelphian in a fifteen-round match. Kansas's last battle in Tex Rickard's arena was against Leonard. The champion won this bout easily, but Kansas managed to stay the limit.

Since Kansas broke his arm in the eighth round of a bout with Leonard at Michigan City last Summer he has engaged in three matches. In two of these he defeated Sammy Berns and Chubby Brown and the other battle was a no-decision affair with Johnny Donnelley. Kansas declares that these three bouts have put him on edge for tonight's match.

White is favored to win tonight and odds of 2 to 1 have been offered against Kansas, but the Buffalo Italian has upset the dope in the past and may do it again.

Three other bouts are on tonight's card. The semi-final match, scheduled for twelve rounds, will bring together Pete Latzo of Hazleton, Pa., who recently defeated Paul Doyle, and Johnny Nichols, a fast welterweight from St. Paul. A bout slated for six rounds will have as principals Phil Logan of Buffalo and Jack Lawlor of Omaha. These men are lightweights. The opening bout of four rounds will be between two middleweights, Irish Fagan of Newark and Tommy McAleer of the west side.

WILLARD TRAINS INDOORS.

Boxes With Three Sparring Partners in Garden Gym.

Jess Willard, former world's heavyweight champion, who signed on Wednesday to meet Lloyd Johnson in a bout of fifteen rounds at the Yankees' Stadium on Saturday, May 12, visited Madison Square Garden yesterday afternoon and indulged in a short workout in the gymnasium. He went through one round with each of three sparring partners, but did not attempt to extend himself. The ex-title-holder remained on the defense, and permitted his opponents to do most of the hitting. Ray Archer, Willard's manager, declared yesterday that the Kansas giant will remain in town for probably two weeks, and will indulge in short daily workouts in the Garden gymnasium. When the weather moderates, Archer declared, it is almost certain that Willard will go to Saratoga to begin his outdoor training.

DEMPSEY PICKS WILLARD.

Champion Says Jess Should Beat Floyd Johnson.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Jack Dempsey, on his arrival here today enroute to Salt Lake City, where his father is seriously ill, said he planned to take his parent to Rochester, Minn., to consult specialists. The elder Dempsey is ill of stomach trouble.

Of the New York boxing situation Dempsey said he anticipated an adjustment and believes that his manager, Jack Kearns, will be able to arrange at least two bouts.

The champion boxer expressed the opinion that Jess Willard, from whose brow Dempsey pounded the crown in Toledo, should be able to beat Floyd Johnson, Iowa heavyweight, when they meet in New York next May.

"If Willard can't whip Johnson, then he ought to step down and out," Jack said.

ENGLISH POLOISTS IN FIRST WORKOUT

LINE-UP STILL UNCERTAIN

Visitors Must Settle Problems of Team Play Before International Contests Start.

Members of the English indoor polo teams who have come here as challengers for the Townsend International Trophy to be played for early next month, will be guests at a dinner at the Riding Club tonight. Yesterday they were entertained at a luncheon given in their honor by Thomas L. Leaming, President of the Riding and Driving Club of Brooklyn, at the University Club.

Their first day in the United States gave the English experts an opportunity for a little exercise to rid themselves of their sea legs. On their way to the Squadron A Armory they stepped at the Riding Club to get a look at the International Challenge Cup and there they met the donor of the trophy, John R. Townsend.

A considerable part of the afternoon was devoted by the English players to getting acquainted with the ring in the big Ninety-fourth Street Armory in which the matches will be played next month. F. W. Egan, leader of the invading forces, and Captains W. F. Holman, P. L. Walford and H. McMullin all got into the game. They were mounted on ponies furnished by the squadron and had their first real practice as a team.

Never Together as Team.

Captain Egan, after they had called it a day's work, said that, while they had played a few periods in London just before sailing, the men had never been together as a team in a regular contest and had all their team play to work out in theory and practice before the international matches. He said that indoor polo is not played in England, but that arrangements are being made to introduce it, and he expected that it would become popular.

The advantages of the indoor game are that it is quickly learned, is less expensive to play because fewer ponies are required and the playing enclosure is so much smaller. Mr. Egan believes that the indoor form of the game will be quickly adopted in England, where it will be welcomed by beginners and also by army players. He told of his experience in France when he introduced the game there to show how quickly players can pick it up. At the beginning of the season his team allowed opponents twelve and fifteen goals by handicap and had no difficulty in defeating them decisively. Meeting the same teams in September and allowing them only eight goals, his team had a hard time winning.

The Englishmen expressed themselves as delighted with their reception and with the prospect of playing for the International Cup. They found conditions a little strange in the Squadron A ring, especially as they were entirely unfamiliar with their mounts and could not get used to the big, soft ball. In their few brief practice sessions in London they had to use regulation polo balls, as indoor polo balls were not available. The light, too, was not of the best yesterday. The afternoon sun shone through the upper windows and the dampness of the ring and the heat of the sun's rays created something of a fog, which made stroking uncertain.

Try Various Combinations.

The four players paired off in various combinations, two to a team, and knocked the ball up and down. Team play, of course, was lacking, although all four players demonstrated their horsemanship when they could get straightened out for a run. That there was much missing and over-riding of the ball was to be expected. How the trio will line up in the international matches probably will not be decided until the eve of the first match, as various combinations will have to be worked out. Captain Egan said yesterday that they would have to lay out their plan of play on paper as well as in actual practice.

Egan and Captain Holman have usually played at back in outdoor polo, while Captain Walford's position customarily is at No. 3. Captain McMullin, who is the team substitute, is the only regular forward, having played No. 1 last season with the Twentieth Lancers of the Indian Cavalry. It may be, therefore, that Captain McMullin will play No. 1 on the indoor combination, although he is not handicapped as high in the outdoor list as his team mates.

The visiting players will have a practice session at the Riding Club today, which will be their only other opportunity for work in the saddle before leaving tomorrow morning for West Point, where they will play against picked teams of army officers tomorrow and Sunday.

TO BENCH MANY TERRIERS.

Combined Clubs Will Exhibit Nearly 500 Dogs Today.

It is expected that nearly 500 terriers of various breeds will be benched today in the big combined terrier clubs specialty show in the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, 34th Street and Park Avenue. This is a splendid tribute to the judges in the different breeds, including among whom are two from Great Britain and one from Canada. Judging will begin at eleven o'clock this morning and, because of the several breeds, the judges may have considerable difficulty in awarding the ribbons.

The Airedale Terrier Club of America has arranged 15 classes, and 35 specials are in the list for judgment by Joseph Russell, the Toronto expert. The American Fox Terrier Club will have 24 classes and as many specials, James W. Spring of Boston having been selected to judge the smooth fox terriers. The Wire-haired Fox Terrier Club named George Howick of London to make the awards.

HARVARD LOSES GEHRKE.

Last of Trio of Star Pitchers Obtains Leave of Absence.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 8.—Harvard's baseball team lost the last of its star pitchers of last season when Erwin Gehrke obtained leave of absence today until the Fall. Gehrke, whose home is in Cleveland, plans to enter business in Cambridge, but to return to college in the Fall in time to play football. He was a member of the varsity backfield last Fall.

Schalk Starts Training.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Ray Schalk, catcher for the Chicago American League club, has returned to Chicago after a three months' rest at his home in Litchfield, Ill., and has started conditioning for the coming season.

First Big League Players Depart for Training Camp

CLEVELAND, Feb. 8.—The first squad of major league baseball players to leave for the South for Spring training departed from here today for Hot Springs, Ark. It was composed of the veteran batterymen of the Cleveland Indians. In the party were Pitchers Coveleskie and Uhle and Coach Jack MacAllister. They will be joined at St. Louis by Coach Frank Roth. Pitcher Sherrod Smith will go direct to Hot Springs from his home. After three weeks at Hot Springs the players will join the remainder of the club at the training camp at Lakeland, Fla.

GIANTS NOT TO PAY BONUS TO BENTLEY

Declare They Will Give Ex-Oriole No Extra Money and "Await Signed Contract."

Jack Bentley's threat to secede from organized baseball unless the Giants pay him a sum equal to a percentage of the purchase money given to Baltimore for him was answered yesterday in a statement by the New York club. After pointing out the financial advantages that will be Bentley's if he makes good in the big league and declaring that the club had promised to pay him no bonus, the statement says that the Giants "await his signed contract." Beyond this fact "the matter is closed," so far as the New York club is concerned.

In short, the Giants have served notice on Bentley to sign his contract or show a better reason for not doing so than he has shown thus far. The club, it was said, has no intention of paying any extra sum of money to the Baltimore southpaw, which he was quoted as demanding in a dispatch published yesterday morning. In fact, such a thing is forbidden by baseball law. At least, Commissioner Landis has frowned on the practice of paying players a bonus for signing, and it is considered extremely unlikely that he would sanction such an arrangement between Bentley and the Giants.

The club's formal statement as given out by Secretary Jim Tierney follows:

In regard to Jack Bentley the New York club in paying $65,000 opens the way for him to make good in the National League, which would mean, in the event of his success, a large salary during all his playing years.

Without any solicitation upon the part of the New York club, Bentley called up a few days ago on long distance and said that he was entirely satisfied with the contract sent him—in fact, was surprised at the size of the contract.

In view of the fact that Bentley has been paid for by this club, and, further, that we entered into no contract to pay him a bonus because of our purchasing him from the Baltimore club; and, still further, in view of the fact that he assured us of his satisfaction with our terms, we will await his signed contract. Beyond which fact, so far as the New York club is concerned, the matter is closed.

Tierney Doubts Reports.

Secretary Tierney was not unduly perturbed by Bentley's threat to hold the club up for a slice of his purchase money. Tierney was loath to believe that the player had been correctly quoted by Baltimore newspaper men. So far the New York club has received no notice of this action from Bentley himself, and the Giants prefer to believe what they heard over the telephone themselves several days ago—that Bentley is gratified at the contract offered him and has no grievance with the club, but only with Jack Dunn, the Orioles' manager and owner, who refused to divide the $65,000 with him.

That the Giants will steadfastly refuse to cross Bentley's palm with any bonus money is to be taken for granted, in the absence of any agreement to that effect. They have already paid $65,000 and three players for him, and that is the third largest sum ever handed over for a minor leaguer. It is improbable that they would ever see the need of further rewarding a player for the privilege of giving him a coveted trial in faster company.

Heinie Groh has decided, after all, not to go to Marlin Springs with the advance squad of pitchers. "My knee feels so fine," he has written Jim Tierney, "that I think I will pass up the Marlin trip and take it easy until time to go to San Antonio."

Ruth Back in Town.

'Twas a sad day for Sudbury, Mass., yesterday, for Babe Ruth closed up the old homestead there and left for the Gay White Way, not to return for a long time. The Bath Ruth farm is now empty and desolate, the blinds drawn, the shutters bolted and not even a wisp of smoke curling up from the chimney before which the Babe sat through the long Winter evenings. No longer does the crisp ring of the Ruthian axe felling giant trees echo through the great open spaces, where, as some one has said before, men are men.

No, the Babe has thrust the pastoral life firmly behind him. He is now in New York with Mrs. Ruth and the baby—ensconced at the Ansonia and getting ready to embark for Hot Springs next Thursday. Babe is coming back to civilization by degrees—first New York, then Hot Springs and finally New Orleans. By that time it will be a long call to Sudbury, Mass.

Looking extremely effective in the paternal role, Ruth was in the Yankee office yesterday with the baby. When not engaged in a proud display of the child's talents, the Bambino flexed his muscles and showed how fit he is for the dexterous wielding of a baseball bat. He expects to reach the proverbial pink in his ten days at Hot Springs.

Another visitor was Waite Hoyt, the returned pilgrim from the Orient, who dropped in for a chat with Ed Barrow, the contract dispenser. The matter of a contract for next season was not discussed, according to Barrow, and Hoyt left after requesting Edward to mail his contract to his Brooklyn home. The right-hander did manage to get in the information that he will not be in the Hot Springs squad of Yankees. After his baseball tour, Hoyt said, he wanted a rest instead of a boiling out in the Arkansas baths. His arm, he declared, is free and easy and ready for a nine-inning workout this very minute.

Garry Herrmann, owner of the Reds, is due here Sunday night for the National League meeting Tuesday. Herrmann, they say, is coming early to gather his legions for the big battle over Rube Benton, whom the Reds bought from St. Paul, only to find that the National League was skeptical about readmitting him to its ranks. Garry will insist that the pitcher be given a clean bill, and he is busy lining other clubs up with him. One of these will probably be the Giants.

COLUMBIA CAPTAIN RESIGNS FROM NINE

Harris Smith Announces He Will Not Return to College —Battery Men Called.

Columbia's baseball prospects suffered a severe blow yesterday when Harris K. Smith, captain-elect of the varsity nine, tendered his resignation. He gave as his reason the fact that he is not returning to college this semester.

Smith's loss will be a serious one to Coach Andy Coakley, who was counting on the captain to play centrefield and do the bulk of the hitting. Smith played in the middle field during 1921 and 1922 and was the most consistent batter on the team. His average in 1921 was .320 and last season .350, this including a great number of extra base hits. As a base runner he was one of the leaders on the team, Tedford, captain of the 1921 team, being the only varsity player with more stolen bases to his credit.

In an effort to bolster up second base last season Coakley transferred Smith to that position, where he performed satisfactorily. Later, however, he was shifted back to centrefield. His fielding average in the two positions was .900.

A new captain will not be elected until the season starts on March 21.

The gong will ring for the pitchers and catchers at 1:30 tomorrow afternoon. At that hour Coach Coakley will assemble his battery candidates in the auxiliary gymnasium three times a week, on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, until about the first of March, when the remainder of the squad will be called out in the batting cage. By that time Coakley hopes to have his pitchers warmed up in shape for heavy work.

The pitchers who are counted on for the early practices are Bliss Price and Van Brocklin, right handers, and Wunderlich and Saxe, left handers, all veterans; Dockerill, Gehrig, who played first base last year; Barber, hitherto ineligible, and Ben Roderick, fullback on the football team and an experienced pitcher before coming to Columbia. As for catchers, Clark has entered Medical School and will probably be detained by his studies, and Hartman, his hard-hitting assistant, has left college and entered professional baseball. The receivers so far available are Ed Meyer, member of last year's squad; Biscay, a freshman masekman last year, and Brophy, who was used regularly in the outfield in 1922.

COLUMBIA RALLIES TO AID OF CREWS

Undergraduates Hold Annual Meeting in Behalf of Rowing —Alumni Help.

Four hundred Columbia University undergraduates turned out at the annual crew rally, held in the University Commons last night to arouse enthusiasm for crew work. Frank Brodil, captain of the 1923 Blue and White eight, acted as Chairman, and speeches were made by several old-time Columbia rowing stars, among them Morton G. Bogue, Chairman of the Rowing Committee and of the Board of Stewards of the Intercollegiate Regatta Committee.

Robert W. Putman, Chairman of the Advisory Committee in Football, was another speaker. He declared that rowing was one of the finest sports in the curriculum, a great exercise and the best medium in the world for the building up of friendships. Fred Miller, ex-varsity oarsman and assistant coach, asked for a greater turnout of candidates for the freshmen eight, while Chester W. Cuthell, former Columbia coxswain and President of the Columbia University Alumni Association, called attention to the fact that this year marked Columbia's fiftieth anniversary in rowing. He said that the alumni were solidly back of the sport and were manifesting great interest in the Blue and White's welfare.

The last speakers were Jim Rice, Columbia's veteran coach, and Captain Brodil. Coach Rice, who is beginning his eighteenth season at the helm of Columbia rowing, urged that more men come out for the sport, while Captain Brodil announced that there would be another rally just before the Childs Cup race this Spring. "Rowing is the best sport in college," said Brodil, "better than football, baseball or any other. I wouldn't give one year of my work with the crew for my three years of varsity football."

RECEPTION OF THE MESSAGE.

It does not appear that President HARDING'S eleventh-hour appeal for the Subsidy bill really altered the black outlook for it in the Senate. The determination not to permit it to come to a vote before March 4 seems to be as fixed as ever. One of the most significant comments is that of Senator WATSON of Indiana. He quietly remarked: "I do not believe it will result in a vote on the subsidy, but I am glad to see the President made the effort." Call you this supporting your nearest friend in the White House? It is too much like ostentatiously patting Mr. HARDING on the back for doing something that is magnificent but not practical politics.

To the President's demand that the British debt settlement be speedily accepted by Congress, the response has been instant and gratifying. No considerable opposition in either house is indicated when the vote is taken on the main question. Doubtless there will be objection to the exact terms of the bill introduced by Representative BURTON in the House and Mr. SMOOT in the Senate for the purpose of carrying out the President's recommendations. While in form merely an amendment of the Debt Funding act of last February, it really cuts the vitals out of that measure by providing that agreements similar to the one just made with England may be effected, if the President approves, with the other debtor nations. This is plain business sense, but presumably Congress will pour many vials of oratory over it before assenting in advance to what it certainly will have to admit in the end.

It is all very well to seek the opinion of members of Congress, bankers and business men, but is this to be another case in which they reckon ill who leave out the embittered Irish-Americans? It might seem so if we were to take with due solemnity the verdict of Judge COHALAN on the British debt settlement. He says of it that "no greater triumph of English diplomacy has been won against America in a hundred years." Admitting the "extraordinary skill" displayed by the agents of England, he affirms that "they have used the American Commissioners as tools." The vigilant and indignant Judge does not believe that a majority can be found in either house of Congress that will be "brow-beaten, or wheedled, or coerced, into making this settlement." But if that awful event should follow, it will not be for lack of due notice of the consequences served upon the Administration. Judge COHALAN, with that air of controlling millions of votes of which he cannot divest himself, asserts:

> MR. HARDING may think, as did his predecessor, that he can look out for the interests of another country in this way. I beg to remind him that just as we gave notice to his predecessor what would happen to him if he continued along his course, so we now give notice to Mr. HARDING. We gave notice to Mr. WILSON of what would happen to him when he failed to stand up for the interests of America. We now give the same notice to Mr. HARDING.

We don't observe that Judge COHALAN sheds any tears over the desertion of the Hearst newspapers, his former allies in exposing the knavish tricks of British statesmen. But The Gaelic American does shed, not tears, but vitriol over those renegade editors who now print "rigmarole" about English credit, and friendship and good-will between Great Britain and the United States, instead of painting, as they should, our "honest debtors" as really no better than "crooks and confidence men engaged in the great game of international profiteering and grab." These weighty financial opinions ought to be good for at least two days' debate in Congress.

THAT COMING WAR.

Untroubled by the fact that wars predicted yesterday haven't broken out, Berlin and Moscow, with the connivance of other capitals, predict new wars today. "Even yet hostilities may be averted if Paris can induce the Poles to remain quiet"—this is the opinion of the Russian rulers, as reported in a dispatch to The Herald. The Poles, however, would feel safer if the Russians remained quiet. This same dispatch says that for the first time in their history the Bolsheviki are "saying little and doing much." In view of the volume of their sayings, what they are doing must be prodigious.

It is hard to believe that these continual tales from Moscow of the imminent attack by Poland on Germany, a nation twice Poland's size, which would probably result in a Russian invasion of Poland—and the Red Army is three or four times as large as the Polish Army—are sent out in sheer ignorance and suspicion. A malicious motive is probable, but the effort may be merely to rouse suspicion against Poland on general principles, rather than any deliberate whipping up of war. The Polish Information Bureau here lately sent out a long and impressive list of false stories about Poland sent out from Berlin in the past six weeks. Certainly Russia and Germany will do everything they can to bring Poland into disrepute, and will be joyfully aided by their friends here and in England. But there is not the slightest indication that Poland wants a war.

On the other hand, the latest Associated Press dispatch from Moscow indicates that Russia does not want a war either. "Russia will defend herself if attacked, but will take no active part in a conflict outside her own territory, even to aid German workers should a revolution develop in Germany." But it would be greatly to the interest, not of Russia, but of the oligarchy that rules Russia, if the rest of Europe got into a war which Russia could watch as a happy spectator. Even so, one can hardly see reason for the suspicion expressed in Paris that ISMET Pasha's stiffness at Lausanne, followed by the order to foreign warships to keep out of Smyrna harbor, shows the workings of a German-Russian plot. ISMET held out at Lausanne because he knew his Assembly back in Angora wouldn't ratify. The order to the warships at Smyrna seems to have come from a Turkish General on a tour of inspection, who as a military man thought they endangered the virtually undefended town.

At any rate, upon learning that a couple of British dreadnoughts are waiting at Mitylene with steam up, the Turks hastily postpone execution of the order and show some willingness to talk it over. However, as soon as this war cloud passes Moscow and Berlin will get up another.

NOT A SAINT'S DEFENSE.

Mr. EDGAR T. BRACKETT of Saratoga is almost too shrewd, experienced, humorous and cynical a man of the law and politics to be the counsel for a persecuted saint in whose behalf the Anti-Saloon League defies the world, the flesh and the devil. There is a little too much briskness and airiness about Mr. BRACKETT'S support of his eminent client. "I can point to some ancient scars on my person inflicted by Brother ANDERSON," said Mr. BRACKETT the other day. His letter to Acting District Attorney PECORA seems to inflict wounds on Brother ANDERSON that will be some time in cicatrizing. Mr. ANDERSON is accused of "splitting commissions," but for a good end. "The books," says Mr. PECORA, "seem to show corrected entries." Some $24,700 was spent for "publicity," and the spending approved without vouchers, apparently, by the League Directors, in 1913 and 1914. None of it went to ministers or legislators. That Mr. ANDERSON has been good enough to say.

To whom was it paid? The Directors don't know. Mr. ANDERSON, instead of involving himself in his own virtue, asked Mr. BRACKETT if he should answer Mr. PECORA'S questions. Mr. BRACKETT explains very curiously why he advises his client to say "No." He makes a kind of plea of confession and avoidance. When the League "had not reached the popularity and power that it possesses today," says Mr. BRACKETT, carefully concealing the expected grin, its work had to be done secretly. The Superintendent may have acted indiscreetly and unjustly; but we mustn't think of trifles like that.

Mr. BRACKETT makes a great flourish, which must be unpleasant to the friends of Mr. ANDERSON and rigid virtue, with the statute of limitations. Mr. ANDERSON will never claim the benefit of that statute, of course; but really, all this trouble "occurred more than eight years ago." Part of it at least is too recent to be sheltered by the statute of limitations; and shocking is the mention of what might be a defense for a bootlegger or a horse thief in connection with charges which Mr. ANDERSON, secure in his high purpose and record, attributes to revenge, extortion and other bodyguards of the world, the flesh and the devil.

The records of the League establish expenditure by Mr. ANDERSON personally and the indebtedness of the League to him therefor. How can that indebtedness "now be challenged, whether in civil or in criminal proceedings"? asks Mr. BRACKETT. Why that jarring phrase "criminal proceedings"? But let the clever lawyer speak for himself:

> I do not, therefore, see the usefulness of any disclosures of the names to whom the items constituting this $24,000 were paid. The payments were made for proper League purposes. Not a dollar of League funds has ever been spent for any corrupt or improper purpose. The payments were made under a pledge by Mr. ANDERSON that the names of the recipients would never be disclosed. That pledge holds good today. Mr. ANDERSON cannot decently violate it.

Thus Mr. BRACKETT begs the whole question. For what purposes, proper and incorrupt, was the money spent; and, if proper and incorrupt, why must they be undisclosed? Is the Anti-Saloon League so impeccable and sacred that neither its collection nor spending of funds must be inquired into? Is Mr. ANDERSON so infallible that the rest of us must believe in him as implicitly as do the Directors of the League? Some of the most generous givers to the League's funds have now closed their purses against it. They cannot stand the methods and mysteries of its present Superintendent. Either here or at Albany, or at both places, the League should be investigated. If it is to live as anything more than a rump, it needs, in the words of the wicked cafés, to "open under new management."

DELAY IN THE RUHR.

The British Government declined to go along with France in the further occupation of German territory, for the reason that it couldn't see how such action would turn out. Mr. BONAR LAW said, in effect, to M. POINCARE: "I wish you good luck, but can't figure out how you can have it." This was discouraging, even though friendly. Secretary HUGHES was positively chilling in his warning to the French Government against "forcible measures." He said that what their consequences would be no man could predict. This was safe enough, as even the French Prime Minister told the Chamber at the very beginning that it must be patient, since two or three months might elapse before definite results of the advance into the Ruhr would manifest themselves. One month has now passed, and the highest French hopes have not been realized. Yet with every new difficulty that has arisen the French determination to stick it out and see the thing through to the end has apparently been strengthened.

One thing has become clear. The longer a settlement with Germany is delayed, the more difficult it becomes. An adjustment that might have been successful three weeks ago would not be accepted today. It is this fact which throws doubt on the frequent rumors of an agreement between the industrial magnates of Germany and those of France to bring about a private settlement. The thing has gone beyond a mere question of the division of shares in great manufacturing plants, or of the allocation of raw material. Economic determinism may be valid up to a certain point, but it cannot sweep before it powerful national sentiment. The Germans would not be inclined to yield now just because STINNES had made up his mind that it would be good business to do so. And the French would not feel that their fear of another invasion by Germany, and their purpose to take full security against it, could be waived merely for the sake of a useful working agreement between the industries of Lorraine and those of the Ruhr. The test of endurance continues, but every week that it is prolonged makes intervention by an outside nation more improbable and the terms of settlement that will be insisted upon more exacting.

THE CENTRAL AMERICAN RAINBOW.

The test of the value of the Central American Conference, which Secretary HUGHES brought to a close on Wednesday with an address befitting the occasion, will be fidelity to the agreement to limit armaments. Of the five States, only Costa Rica can point to her Government as democratic in operation. It encourages industry, assists agriculture, protects the citizen, and minds its own business. The peace strength of the Costa Rican Army is 500; on a war footing it could be raised to 52,208 officers and men. The people of all the Central American States are averse to war, but in regard to Guatemala, Nicaragua, Salvador and Honduras it should be said that they are only too familiar, as the record shows, with civil conflicts. In each the ruling class is confined to a comparatively few families and their followers. Men of wealth and influence with military tendencies have striven for control in these States. Armies have been maintained to keep them in office. There have been Presidents who held power for long periods and governed on the whole wisely, if arbitrarily. But when they have been ousted it was in most cases by a rival who had the backing of the army. In Guatemala MENDEZ headed a reform movement based on Central American federation, but he did not last long.

Large armies, of which the officers only were well uniformed, have been the bane of all these republics except Costa Rica. The convention to limit armaments provides that the strength of the standing armies and National Guards of the Central American States shall be as follows: Guatemala, 5,200; Salvador, 4,200; Honduras, 2,500; Nicaragua, 2,500; Costa Rica, 2,000. There is a qualification to the effect that the land forces as assigned shall not be increased "except in case of civil war or impending invasion by another State." The agreement is to be binding for five years.

Much of the work of the conference was a duplication or revival of what was done at the conference of Central American States called by President ROOSEVELT in 1907. It was in session from Nov. 14 to Dec. 20. Of the eight conventions signed the most important was the general treaty of peace and amity, in which an attempt was made to bind the parties to it to respect the civil rights of the citizens of other States, to bring to trial fomenters and leaders of revolutionary movements and to establish permanent legations. The other conventions provided that Governments set up by revolutionists in disregard of the Constitution should not be recognized; that there should be no intervention in the case of civil wars; that a Central American Court of Justice should be established to take cognizance of international questions; that there should be extradition of criminals; that custom house regulations, weights and measures, and fiscal systems should be made uniform; that transportation and communication should be improved, and that public education, commerce, agriculture, industry, and civil and criminal legislation should be dealt with by an International Central American Bureau. In opening the conference of 1907 Secretary ROOT paid a tribute to the character of the delegates assembled and expressed the hope that their work would be permanent. At the same time he regretted that "agreements which have been elaborated, signed, ratified, seemed to have been written in water." The conventions of 1907 were ratified, but it cannot be said that they became effective. In the intervening fifteen years there have been civil convulsions and revolutions; and Central American federation has failed again.

Nevertheless, a rainbow of promise marks the deliberations of the conference called by President HARDING. It was a businesslike body, and under the guidance of Secretary HUGHES it not only reconstructed the conventions of 1907, but added others providing for electoral legislation, freer commerce, protection of workmen, regulation of the practice of the liberal professions, and, what should be epochal, limitation of armaments. Well might Mr. HUGHES say in his farewell address: "You have development, progress and the utmost prosperity within your grasp." Without peace and stability Central America cannot have public works and civilization. The Canal Treaty of 1916 between the United States and Nicaragua has been a scrap of paper because there was no tranquility. With these conventions effective the new waterway can be built. An obstacle has been removed by the protocol that has just been signed with Costa Rica.

A UNIQUE LABOR CORPORATION.

So many inquiries have reached us about the only Labor Corporation that the details regarding it are worth printing. It resulted from the difficulties between the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railway and the workers in its locomotive shops. These former unionists incorporated under the laws of Indiana as the "Associated Employés of Beech Grove, Inc." The object is to permit the adjustment of any individual's wages or grievances without disturbing the relations of all other employés in the organization. This repudiates the practice of unions, or at least of some members of some unions, in seeking the largest pay for the least work. Instead, the corporation, by its constitution and by-laws, declares for the principle of payment by results, aiming to increase the output of the shop by increasing the individual production. Nowhere does the corporation disavow Rule 1 of the shopcrafts' national agreement. That required payment by time and included punitive overtime. Neither does the corporation reject a living wage. It merely stood for payment by results, and provided a method of settling differences of opinion about results, or working conditions, or anything else. This looks to a constructive policy, adaptable both to workers and their employers.

The Beech Grove shops had been operated on a piece-work basis since 1906, until the shopcrafts' national wartime agreement substituted the eight-hour day. The Labor Board confirmed Rule 1, but afterward reconsidered and raised its ban on piece-work. Among the Beech Grove workers there arose two factions, for and against piece-work. There was another difficulty. The union rules required a vote of all the workers, and the Labor Board did not favor separate pay bargains. The Beech Grove workers were in a minority. The company closed its Beech Grove shops because the work cost double, yet on petition of its discharged workers reopened the shops under a lease to an outside company. The wages and the costs fell together, to the satisfaction of both sides of the contract, but contrary to the rules of the union and the Labor Board.

This was a clear case of evading the jurisdiction of the Labor Board by "contracting out" from its administration. The board has declared that to be unlawful in the case of seventeen railways. The minority of the men in the shop struck in favor of time pay. The way out of the dilemma seemed to be to form a corporation of the majority in avoidance of both union and Labor Board rules. That is an agreement, and the Labor Board has jurisdiction only over disputes. Thus workers and employers dealt together directly. Twelve rules were substituted for 186 Labor Board rules, and the members of the corporation made individual contracts, with an undertaking to submit their differences to their own representatives acting with the company in administering a standard contract. The idea is group bargaining on a unit smaller than the system. It is a return to normalcy rather than an absolutely new departure.

ALL SAVED BUT JONAH.

A week ago Mr. WILLIAM MORRIS HUGHES, Prime Minister of Australia since 1915, resigned. The recent election had put his National Party, which he founded during the war to combat pacifist tendencies in the Labor Party, to which he had formerly belonged, in a minority. Of the seventy-five members of the House, twenty-nine are Laborites, twenty-seven Nationalists, fourteen belong to the Country Party and five are scattering. But all the forty-six non-Labor members were willing to get together against Labor. The only condition made by the minority groups was that Mr. HUGHES must get out.

It is only four years since Mr. HUGHES was toughest-minded of all the statesmen of the British Empire. London Conservatives were looking to this ex-labor leader as the one strong man who might succeed the tottering LLOYD GEORGE as dictator. But LLOYD GEORGE tottered on to victory and Mr. HUGHES had to confine himself once more to Australia. Secure in his position there, he used a painful harshness of language when he had occasion to mention the seceding Nationalists who organized the Country Party. He said things of the sort that are neither forgiven nor forgotten. Consequently, after the election, the Country leaders let it be known that, while it was a patriotic duty to collaborate with the Nationalists in order to make possible the formation of a coalition Cabinet, it was equally a duty to get rid of Mr. HUGHES.

Mr. STANLEY BRUCE, a wounded war veteran, who has been Treasurer of the Commonwealth and is a Nationalist, undertook to form a Ministry. The price was perhaps a little higher than he expected, since the Country Party demanded an equal division of the portfolios. Still, a Cabinet was formed, and Mr. BRUCE now carries on the work. No doubt he will be a little more careful than his predecessor in his comments on rival politicians.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

They're Far From Only a War Tool.

That there has been in the United States, not exactly indifference to aviation, but a failure to show an interest in it and an appreciation of it commensurable with either its achievements or its possibilities, may be due to a lingering impression that the dangers incidental to aerial navigation in machines heavier than air are so many and so great as to preclude its systematic use for purposes other than those of war.

For this feeling there is, of course, some excuse in the long and ever lengthening record of fatal accidents to fliers, but to balance these are many more journeys safely made, and especially the regularity with which this branch of the mail service has been carried on through all sorts of weather. Every once in a while, too, the utility of the airplane in peace times is illustrated by the performance of some beneficent task that would have been impossible without it.

The latest of these was reported yesterday in a dispatch which told how an airman summoned from Selfridge Field, near Mount Clemens, had carried a doctor to an ice-beleaguered island far out in Lake Michigan and enabled him by prompt treatment to save the life of a woodsman suffering from a fractured skull.

That was a fine bit of work, and both the aviator and the doctor showed the self-forgetting courage characteristic of their two professions, for both risked their lives in making a flight that would have ended disastrously for them both if the engine had failed in the course of their passage across the ice floes. Fourteen hours after their arrival on the island another doctor succeeded in making his way there over the ice on foot. That, too, was an effort characteristically heroic, but the man with the broken head probably would have been dead except for the earlier assistance which he owed to the doctor who came by the quicker way.

Wherein He Really Is Guilty.

It is more than a little irritating that, of the rather numerous and rather severe criticisms directed at the latest of ROSSAR HEMRICK'S novels, almost all are based on passages in the book which do not constitute by any means its worst feature. Those passages violate what used to be—for a while—the conventions of English literature, and they offend what once was—for a while—and by some still is, considered good taste; but there is nothing sacred about conventions, and good taste is so largely a matter of time and place that no particular standard has much claim to reverence. Mr. HEMRICK'S lack of reticence is not what makes "Homely Lilla" a bad book, nor does that lack give it whatever power it may have to harm some of its readers.

The real fault—the fault that justifies calling it a demoralizing book—is to be found in its treatment of the war. Mr. HEMRICK has chosen to take the tone of half-cautious, half-insolent pacifism which is fashionable these days in certain minor literary circles. To him what the Germans did was no worse than what was done by any other participant in the great contest. Indeed, like all others of that opinion, his reluctance to give any praise to those who fought against the Germans has led him into something so near pro-Germanism as to be practically indistinguishable from it.

His favorites among the book's characters all speak with sorrow, contempt or anger of everybody who saw something more in the war than stupid, promiscuous killing, and he labors industriously to inspire the belief that his villains were typical of all who worked to arouse the patriotism of the nation.

These are the reasons why Mr. HEMRICK should be charged with misusing what has been and still is a real talent. Even in this book his people really are alive and recognisable. During the war every one of us met just such folk. The trouble is that in the group he pictures so well he so often likes and dislikes the wrong persons.

If Only Luck Will Hold!

So far this Winter New York's snowstorms have been wonderfully considerate of the city's peculiarities. The storms have been rather more than ordinarily frequent, and in several of them the fall was sufficient to have made serious trouble for us if conditions had been what they often have been. Fortunately, the snow has been either so light and dry that it caused next to no interruption to traffic or else it was followed by a thaw so prompt and effective that most of it departed without much help from the street cleaners.

That this luck will last all through February and into March up to the well-remembered date of the Great Blizzard is to be hoped rather than expected, but for present mercies we all can be truly thankful, especially when we compare our lot with that of our neighbors further inland and a little to the northward. They have had a real Winter of the kind about which oldest inhabitants boast so tiresomely. For our inches of snow they have had almost as many feet, and, instead of coming down gently and staying where it was put, their snow has been whirled by fierce winds into drifts that blocked roads of all kinds for days and some of them for weeks at a time. And an ill-disposed snowstorm can make such terrible trouble in this city! Also, it can cause an enormous direct expense and, indirectly, money losses almost incalculable.

So we should not be discouraged, even though the worst may be still to come.

Much Like Other Wars in That.

In "Black Oxen," her new—and astonishing—book, GERTRUDE ATHERTON makes in writing about the recent test of strength between Germany and the rest of the world the thought-provoking statement that, "after all, it had been a middle-aged man's war"; "not a single military reputation," she adds, "had been made by any one of the millions of young fighters, despite promotions, citations and medals. Statesmen and military men long past their youth would alone be mentioned in history."

Does Mrs. ATHERTON by this mean that she thinks the late war different from other wars? It wasn't, except from so few of them that the difference hardly counts. It takes a Napoleon and most unusual conditions to break through the barriers of military discipline and custom, and the young officer, like the private, can do little more than obey orders with intelligence and courage. If fortunate, he gets his reward for both, but his duty is to win the battles planned by his elders. History does not always forget his name, but usually his personal fame is brief.

That probably must be, else it wouldn't be, and Mrs. ATHERTON is not a writer of the kind that see grievances in the inevitable.

Baile Atha Cliath.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

This morning's TIMES speaks of "Baile Atha Cliath, a village near Dublin." Not so. Baile Atha Cliath (not Claith) is Dublin. You'll find all the mail from Dublin postmarked that way now.

SEUMAS O'DOYLE.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 5, 1923.

TO TUT-ANKH-AMEN.

Tut-ankh-Amen,
Through the ages
Still survives your fame.
You appear on countless pages,
Millions speak your name.
Tell me, theme of fools and sages,
Was just this your game?

Tut-ankh-Amen,
Was your longing
Not to cease to be?
Midst the billions ever thronging
Still to live and see
Fighting, scrambling, righting, wronging,
Through eternity?

Tut-ankh-Amen,
Still our life here
Goes on much the same.
Wickedness and want are rife here;
Sheared and shearer, hale and lame,
Rich and poor are still at strife here,
Life's the same old game.

Tut-ankh-Amen,
Did life's puzzles
Rack your youthful brow?
Did the priesthood fit you muzzles
Just to teach you how Truth beneath their mitres nuzzles
Even the same as now?

Tut-ankh-Amen,
In your sadness
Did you dream of love?
Did you meet your bride with gladness?
Have you kept her glove?
Or did rapture turn to madness,
Tiger grow from dove?

Tut-ankh-Amen,
That dear child-wife—
Was she heavenly fair?
Did she want to dance a wild life?
Would she bob her hair?
And was wedded bliss beguiled strife
Sometimes—here and there?

Tut-ankh-Amen,
Keep on sleeping,
Do not lift your head.
Vain the laughter and the weeping,
All the prophets said.
Take your rest now in good keeping
And stay safely dead.

HARDING IN TERCENTENARY.

Accepts Honorary Chairmanship of New York Commission.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—President Harding has accepted an honorary chairmanship of the Huguenot-Walloon New Netherland Tercentenary Commission, organized by the Federal Council of Churches to arrange for a fitting observance, particularly of the religious significance, of the founding of New York City in connection with the tercentenary celebration in April of next year.

In making this announcement today the Federal Council of Churches also stated that the last Sunday of that month had been designated for special services in the churches commemorating the landing of the Huguenot and Walloon pilgrims under the direction of the Dutch West India Company. Honorary chairmanship on the commission was also said to be accepted by Queen Wilhelmina of Holland, President Millerand of France and King Albert of Belgium.

In his letter to Dr. John Baer Stoudt, Director of the commission, accepting the honorary chairmanship, President Harding wrote that the acceptance gave him greater pleasure "because of my deep appreciation of the contribution of this splendid people to the founding, the development and the present state of our common country."

"It was the fortune of our America," the President added, "to have blended in its beginnings a number of the finest stocks of the world; as it has also been our good fortune to have afforded opportunity and inspiration for the best services which they were able to render in making the nation. It is good for us to be reminded of so great a debt to those who laid the foundation of our nation, and we cannot too much honor them on occasions of this sort."

URGES NEW WATER SUPPLY.

Merchants' Association Favors Tri-State System for the Delaware.

Development of a new source of water supply for New York City by the utilization of the watershed of the upper Delaware River, which would exceed in magnitude and cost the present Catskill system which takes in the waters of Esopus and Schoharie Creeks, is contemplated in a recommendation for a study of this project which the Merchants' Association will make to Governor Alfred E. Smith.

The Board of Directors decided yesterday to present this matter to the Governor after considering a report made by Henry R. Towne, Chairman of the Association's Committee on Water Supply, which finds that the water supply drawn from the Croton and Catskill watersheds would be adequate only until 1935.

In view of the fact that the Delaware River runs through the States of Pennsylvania and New Jersey as well as New York, the association will recommend that Governor Smith begin negotiations with the Governors of these two States for the appointment of a joint commission to investigate the Delaware River as a source of water supply.

In its report the committee recommended that an inquiry into additional sources of water supply be begun at once as about ten years would be required for the construction of the necessary works.

300 MIDSHIPMEN DEFICIENT.

Influenza Blamed for Large Number Who Fail in Examination.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 8.—About 300 midshipmen are deficient in their scholastic work for the term just completed, according to the official announcement at the Naval Academy today. It is explained, however, that about 100 of these did not take the recent semi-annual examinations at all on account of illness, the epidemic of influenza being largely responsible.

It is stated that between 50 and 60 per cent. of the deficients are among members of the new fourth class.

Commander Kurtz, Commandant of Midshipmen and acting Superintendent, said tonight that he understood that there was no greater number of deficiencies than usual at this time. The matter would be taken up at the meeting of the Academic Board next Friday, and each case would be handled individually.

Not all of the deficient midshipmen will have to resign. Some will have a re-examination, and on passing it will continue with their class, while others will be dropped to the lower class.

SAYS NATION NEEDS BIG MAN

Dudley F. Malone Would Put Industrial Leader at World Council.

Arguing that bankers and financiers, not politicians, control the reins of Government here and abroad, Dudley Field Malone, former Collector of the Port of New York, declared in an address here yesterday that the United States should select an industrial leader of vision to represent it at the world's council tables.

"We all know perfectly well that the big men in banking and finance run the governments of the world, here as elsewhere," Mr. Malone told the members of the Rotary Club of New York at their luncheon in the McAlpin. "Since the world is run on an economic basis, it is high time to take an economic mastery of it. Until the United States chooses as its delegate an industrial leader of ability and vision, a Bernard M. Baruch or an Otto H. Kahn, we won't be talking business with the rest of the world. Let each country take one of its economic masters, give him full powers as a delegate and sit him down at the world's council table to thrash out its problems on a cash basis."

ART NOTES.

Visitors to the Union League Club this week will find the monthly art exhibition something quite apart from the usual exhibition lines that run more or less parallel in different galleries. The pictures shown are the diploma paintings of members of the National Academy of Design, and among them are many treasures of art. Here, for example, is the portrait of Claude Monet by John Sargent, serious inquiring eyes (and what was Monet if not inquiring), a big blond beard, a weather-beaten ruddy face, a true master of the outdoor school, and painted with a rugous surface as though the tip of the brush handle had freely been used to break up the patches of flat pigment.

In the opposite corner is Alden Weir's portrait of Albert P. Ryder, also looking a little like a Frenchman, but like an American Frenchman, with a soft black beard that probably was much admired by the bearded generation to which he belonged. The hair of his head also is soft and dark and the bit of face that shows between these hirsuts fortifications is warm and ruddy. Weir made more of a design of the head that Sargent, but the head with its odd elevation lent itself to design.

Robert Blum's "Japanese Beggar" is a reminder of the slowly swelling tide of appreciation of Blum, who creeps toward Duveneck in the public esteem and who will never reach him in the esteem of artists. Other pictures are by Gifford Beal, F. W. Benson, Carlton T. Chapman, Henry Golden Dearth, Louis Paul Dessar, F. C. Frieseke, A. L. Groll, Robert Henri, Samuel Isham, F. W. Kost, R. W. Lockman, Louis Loeb, H. W. Ranger, Robert Reid, Charles Rosen, Carl Rungius, E. E. Schofield, E. C. Tarbell, J. T. Van Laer and Frederick Ballard Williams.

ALL SUPREME COURT CASES TO BE CALLED

Drastic Measure Adopted in Effort to Clear New York County Calendar.

27,000 ISSUES ARE PENDING

Justice Wagner Heads Committee at Work on Measures to Relieve Congestion.

Every case on the calendar of the Supreme Court in New York county will be called beginning Feb. 19 in an attempt to clear off some of them and reduce the congestion. It is estimated that there are 27,000 cases on the calendar and that at least one-fifth of them have been settled and should not be cluttering up the Court records.

Justice Robert F. Wagner, Chairman of a committee to study the causes of congestion and relieve it, if possible, said yesterday that he hoped the calling of all cases would improve conditions. He said that probably 2,000 cases would be called in a day, and that the Clerk of the Court would be designated to hear attorneys and learn whether cases should stay on the calendar.

"We have all been hearing about the great number of cases that are jamming the calendars of the Supreme Court," said Justice Wagner. "I believe the figures show there are about 27,000 cases. Of this number, it is our belief that a fairly large percentage are dead issues. Lawyers settle cases and fail to inform the Court, and the cases stay right there on the calendar until they are called and the settlements become known.

"Members of the bench and bar as well as laymen have determined to take steps to get rid of the congestion. It is a menace to our administration of justice. The committee of Supreme Court Justices, of which I am a member, feels that it would help us in adopting relief measures if we had exact information regarding how many untried cases there are in the Supreme Court today. That is why we are going to have a call of the calendar."

If it is expected that the work of determining what cases to strike from the calendar will take about a month. Attorneys on both sides will have to be present as their cases are called. Hours will be set for calling different groups so that the lawyers will not all try to crowd into the Court House at once.

The procedure will also centre attention on the congestion in the courts, it is hoped, and so arouse public opinion. Justice Wagner pointed out that while nearly every Judge and lawyer realized what conditions are, it was not often that the layman became interested. Public opinion is expected to aid in working out a solution, it is said.

At a meeting on Jan. 21 Justice Wagner was authorized to appoint a committee to investigate the condition of the courts and report back to the committee of Justices at a meeting to be held on Feb. 17. The membership of that committee, announced yesterday, follows: Samuel Seabury, Henry W. Taft, J. Noble Hays, Edmund L. Mooney, Martin Conboy, Joseph M. Proskauer, L. Maurice Wormser, Lyman Spalding, Morris Hillquit, Frank Herwig, Henry Sherman, Moses Weinstein, I. Montefiore Levy, Justice Joseph E. Newburger, Justice James O'Malley, Justice Thomas F. Donnelly and Justice Wagner.

Members have been requested by Justice Wagner to make definite suggestions at the meeting on Feb. 17. If legislation is needed, it is hoped to get a measure drafted to take before the present Legislature.

SAN JUAN CHEERS REILY.

Political Enemies of the Governor Stay Away From Reception.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Feb. 8.—Governor E. Mont Reily arrived here this morning from New York and received a rousing reception. Bands played "Home, Sweet Home" as the Governor appeared on the deck of the ship smiling, his arm in a sling.

Many thousands of persons joined the Republicans and Socialists in their demonstration, marching from the pier to the palace, where the Governor told the crowd:

"I am human enough to appreciate this reception, but not physically strong enough to make a speech. These flags show that Porto Rico is American, and will so remain until the end of time."

He told the correspondent: "The way I feel, it will take me a year to recover. Acting Governor Hayke will take charge for a few days." As for himself, he was going to bed.

The counter-demonstration which had been feared did not develop, the President of the Unionist Party, Antonio Barcelo, having telegraphed yesterday to all the Unionist leaders instructing them to remain at home and make no demonstration.

SEES ILL IN PREPAREDNESS.

Can Be Carried So Far as to Be Cause of War, Says Gen. O'Ryan.

Major General John F. O'Ryan in a speech yesterday at the Army and Navy Club before the Army and National Guard chaplains of the Second Corps Area, said, "When preparation for war becomes thorough, it becomes automatically an almost irresistible influence for war. Another great cause for war in any country is the craving for adventure and travel in the young men of military age."

"Our army officers and chaplains in particular should study the causes and effects of war so as to help our statesmen and pacifists in preventing war by protective methods instead of aggravating it by a militant, aggressive spirit. The conference and debate plan of co-operation with the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America to try to bring into closer harmony and liaison the military chaplain and the civilian ministers among those present were Major General Robert E. Ballard, commandant of the Second Corps Area, Colonel John T. Axton and Rev. Robert E. Speer.

TO REHABILITATE COLOMBIA

Professor Kemmerer of Princeton Heads Financial Commission.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 8.—Heading a commission appointed by the Republic of Colombia to reorganize its finances, Professor Edwin Walter Kemmerer of the economics department of Princeton University, will sail Feb. 14 for South America.

Among the other members of the commission are F. Fairchild, professor of economics at Yale, and F. B. Luquiens of the Spanish department at Yale. The commission plans to spend at least six months in Colombia for the accomplishment of its work, the greatest part of which will consist in placing the credit of the South American State on a firm basis, the floating of loans for public works and the establishment of a national bank, besides improving the economic situation. Labor conditions will also be ameliorated.

Professor Kemmerer, whose knowledge of financial matters is perhaps unequaled in this country, has been the financial adviser to several other Governments previous to this appointment.

PRINCESS AND BABY CAPTIVATE ENGLAND

WHOLE NATION AT THE CRIB

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Princess Mary and her baby son are both doing well, and the former was well enough to receive the King and Queen this afternoon.

The baby, who is of average weight, has his mother's blue eyes and fair skin.

Princess Mary is in the care of two trained hospital nurses, while the baby is being looked after by Mrs. Bill, familiarly known to members of the royal family as "Lalla." She was Princess Mary's nurse, and with assistants she is now the proud and happy nurse of the Lascelles baby.

A night nursery, day nursery, bathroom and little kitchen were prepared some time ago in Chesterfield House, and Princess Mary took great pleasure in having them equipped with the most modern and attractive nursery furniture. Most of the baby's wardrobe has been made by Princess Mary and the Queen.

Some doubt exists as to the title the baby will bear, as his father is a Viscount by courtesy only; he has not even the prefix Honorable, and must be plain "Master Lascelles." Had his grandfather been created an Earl in his own right, he would then receive the courtesy title of Viscount, and in any case he will obtain this when his father succeeds to the Earldom of Harewood. But as the baby is also a grandson of the King, and would therefore a few years ago have been "His Royal Highness," he may receive the courtesy title of "Prince" by the King's express command, though there has as yet been no authoritative ruling on the subject.

The right to the title of Royal Highness was reserved to the children of a sovereign and the sovereign's sons when in 1911 King George took Windsor as his family name.

LONDON, Feb. 8 (Associated Press).—Britain rejoiced today with King George and Queen Mary, who are grandparents owing to the birth of a son born last night to Princess Mary, the wife of Viscount Lascelles.

The baby has already made something of a stir. All the morning newspapers "made over" to announce his arrival in the largest type they possessed. Pictures of all the family are printed, together with the minutest details of the history of the baby's parents and their parents. One newspaper devotes much space to a genealogical tree, showing the descent of the child on both sides of the family from King Henry VII.

The King and Queen are being showered with congratulations upon the arrival of their first grandchild, and as much excitement is being shown as was caused by Princess Mary's marriage a little less than a year ago.

The newspapers, however, know their public, and it may be said safely that for one person today who reads about the Ruhr and the American debt, 100 will peruse every inch of space devoted to the baby.

"There never will be a royal baby in whom greater interest will be taken," says one paper. Probably this is not far from the truth.

Various orders issued by King George in 1917 had as their purpose the complete severance of Germanic ties with the British royal family and the suppression of peerages and titles held by German subjects in Great Britain. The British royal family was hitherto known as the house of Saxe-Cöburg and Gotha, from the consort of Queen Victoria, the Queen herself having been a Guelph, also a German name.

King George's order withdrew the decorations bestowed on Germans, including the Order of the Garter from the Kaiser and Crown Prince; suppressed the British Peerage of Duke of Albany held by the then reigning Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha; gave British peerages to the Princes of Battenberg and Princes of Teck, who were naturalized Englishmen or Englishmen born, and assumed the family name of Windsor for the British reigning house.

They also provided that the courtesy titles of Prince and Princess should lapse to the third generation in collateral lines of the British royal family, being reserved for children of the sovereign and children of the sovereign's sons, but would continue in the direct line of the heir to the throne in case that should reach beyond the third generation.

A royal warrant would be necessary to confer a peerage or courtesy title on any person so excepted, including Princess Mary's son. As pointed out in yesterday's TIMES, the baby is sixth heir to the throne of England at present.

FOUR HELD IN BAIL IN DRUG CRUSADE

MOTHERS ASKED HELP

Pathetic Letters Tell of Vendors Luring Youths With 25-Cent "Shots"—Newsboys Victims.

Two alleged drug addicts and two alleged vendors of heroin, arrested Wednesday night in a renewed campaign by Inspector James S. Bolan to rid the theatrical district of the drug traffic, were yesterday held in bail by Magistrate Charles A. Oberwager in West Side Court. The alleged addicts are Frank Wilson, 30 years old, of the Mills Hotel, Thirty-sixth Street and Seventh Avenue, and Thomas Waters, 31 years old, of 230 West Forty-eighth Street.

Wilson, charged with possessing drugs, was held in $1,000 bail for examination Saturday. Waters was held in $5,000 bail for Special Sessions. Waters said he was an ex-Corporal of the Marine Corps and that he acquired the drug habit while in a hospital in France after being wounded in action at Chateau Thierry. He said he was an automobile painter getting $50 a week and that he spent $10 a week for heroin. He asked to be committed to a hospital where he would be given a cure.

The alleged vendors were William Whalen, 22 years old, of 327 West Fifty-second Street, and Ross Templer, 19 years old, of the Seamen's Institute, South Street. Both were charged with acting in concert with possessors of drugs and held in $1,000 bail for examination Saturday.

Templar said he was a sailor and that the small package he was accused of having possessed and dropped when he attempted to run away from the detectives contained face powder. The arrests were made in the vicinity of Broadway and Forty-second Street by Detectives Joseph Burke and William Shelly.

The crusade of Inspector Bolan is in response to letters from mothers who appealed to him saying that drug vendors first offer the boys into telephone booths, stairways and such places and sell them the first few "shots" which the boys buy out of curiosity. After one or two of these "shots," which are sold for 25 cents, the boys acquire a liking for heroin, then quickly become addicts, the letters say. Among the victims, according to the detectives, are numbers of newspaper vendors who first welcome the drug for the relief it gives them from the fatigue of standing long hours at cold corners.

DELICATE TAPESTRY FOUND IN THE TOMB

ALL BEAUTIFULLY FINISHED

Robes Are Elaborately Decorated With Gold, Silver, Lapis Lazuli, Turquoise, Carnelian.

GREAT TREASURE IN ANNEX

Includes Household Furniture, Statues of Hapi, Chessboards, Boats and Pottery.

The Times (London) World Copyright, by Arrangement with the Earl of Carnarvon. Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LUXOR, Egypt, Feb. 8.—These two days have given the staff, particularly Mr. Lucas and Mr. Mace, a most necessary respite, which has enabled them to make considerable progress with the work of dealing with the contents of the various boxes with which the laboratory in the tomb of Seti II. is at present crowded.

They have now completed the examination of the contents of the wooden casket on which are the wonderful painted scenes depicting Pharaoh Tutankh-Amen and his courtiers hunting the lion, the antelope, the wild ass, the ostrich and the other African desert fauna, and showing him in battle against Asiatic and Ethiopian enemies. On the ends are symbolical scenes of the monarch represented in the form of human-headed sphinxes trampling on his enemies.

The contents of this casket comprised the King's robes, which are of the finest material and decorated with elaborate bead and gold work, and with lapis lasuli and turquoise; several pairs of sandals of leather, elaborately ornamented with inlaid gold work of surpassing beauty; a large amber necklace and a faience collarette of an exquisite floral design.

Most of these articles, particularly the fabrics, were in a most perishable condition and their examination and treatment have necessitated long and tedious work. This, however, has now been concluded, the objects are all packed and made ready for transportation to Cairo, where they will undergo further investigation.

Find Beautiful Tapestry Robe.

Work has now been started on another chest, namely, the wooden box painted red. On the lid was found one of the King's faience collarettes and a number of faience rings, strung on a roll of linen. Inside there was on top a large robe of woven tapestry fabric in a perished condition, though somewhat better than the fabrics previously found. Sewn on this robe in the centre is a magnificent and finely wrought silver and gold scarab buckle so arranged as to take the form of the King's cartouche and inlaid in turquoise, lapis lazuli, glass and carnelian. This robe is a most magnificent piece of work. It has been lifted out with some difficulty from the box and under it have been exposed various objects not yet completely identified, but including silver-covered boomerangs, a bronze snake inlaid with gold and a number of violet faience libation vases bearing the protocol of the King.

These vases and cups are a portion of the original contents of the box, as is indicated by the hieratic docket upon the lid, but like the robe, mixed in with these original contents are other objects thrown in by the necropolis officials who visited the chamber after the robberies and put into the nearest box, irrespective of its inscription, the articles which the robbers had cast on the floor in their search for more valuable and more portable metal objects.

Cost of Mail Falls to Pieces.

These extraneous objects are for the most part in the nature of jewelry, and among them, as far as the present investigation has gone, the finest appears to be a covering in gold and inlaid stone and glass which looks as though it had been a sort of coat of mail. Owing to the weakness of its threads this covering had broken up and fallen into many pieces, so that its exact design and purpose for which it was intended cannot be stated with certainty at present. It is now being picked out piecemeal, a tedious work which requires much time, patience and skill, and it is hoped that it will be possible to string it on to new threads and to reconstruct it. Until that procedure has been completed it will be impossible for any one, no matter how expert, to say what this covering really is, or what the nature is of the other objects remaining in the box.

This question of identifying the articles, as also of establishing historical or personal data from the various objects found in the antechamber, is one of the most difficult problems confronting Mr. Carter and his assistants. As has been pointed out several times already, the history of the period to which these chambers belong is most obscure. Very little is known about it, consequently, while there is every possibility that considerable light will be thrown on it by this discovery, the greatest care has naturally to be taken in making public any deductions.

Avoid Giving Present Deductions.

The position of the objects and their relation one to another play a great part in identification, &c., and the manner in which the contents of chests and boxes have been disturbed and mixed up renders this work most difficult. Often a deduction made from one collection of objects has to be corrected in the light of information derived from a closer examination of subsequent objects. Therefore while the experts periodically express opinions regarding historical and other data obtained from these chambers, these opinions must for the time being be regarded to a very great extent as conjectures, and only when an examination of all the objects has been completed and the information derived therefrom collated will it be possible for any one to arrive at any authoritative conclusion.

Some of the most interesting things now under examination are fabrics, among which is a quantity of woven tapestry fabrics that is linen into which patterns have been woven. Some of the various specimens have been found in the boxes so far opened. Much of them is in a perished condition, but is capable of reconstruction. The only specimens of such work previously found have been a collection of a few small pieces now in the Cairo Museum which were found by Mr. Carter in the tomb of Tehuti-mes IV. in 1902-3. These pieces are a thousand years earlier than any other piece known, and are finer by thirty-six strands to the warp than any other ever made.

Up to the present moment the strands of specimens found in Tut-ankh-Amen's antechamber have not been counted, but they are certainly of the finest texture, and since the period of Tut-ankh-Amen is reputed to have been the zenith of the middle empire industry there is every reason to expect that they will be at least of equal fineness to those found in the tomb of Tehuti-mes IV.

Today again there was no work at the tomb and the approach thereto for the first time since the removal of the contents began was almost entirely denuded by visitors. It is probable that nothing will be done tomorrow, but it is expected that the work in the tomb will be resumed on Saturday, by which time Lord Carnarvon will have returned from Cairo.

Contents of the Annex.

I have spoken before of the extraordinary jumble of articles in the so-called annex to the outer chamber of the tomb. The only view of it at present is through a small hole near the floor made by ancient robbers. Through this hole only a privileged few so far have been permitted to peer with an electric light bulb in their hand. In these circumstances an approximately complete catalogue of the objects in the annex cannot be given, but the following are some of the most conspicuous articles:

There are several statues, apparently carved in stone, some of which seem to be figures of Hapi, adapted to make vases. Hapi was the god of the Nile and one of the guardian deities of the dead. There is more than one gaming board like a chessboard, with black and white squares apparently inlaid in ivory. There are boxes all more or less elaborately painted or decorated, but closed, and it is impossible to conjecture the nature of their contents. There are more alabaster vases, which vie in beauty with those already found in the outer chamber. There is also a great quantity of articles of pottery, or faience, including vessels of a variety of shapes, presumably for table purposes and sacerdotal uses.

Some gilded poles appear to be part of the canopy, sections of which, as already told, were found in the outer chamber, and which is believed to have been taken by the King on his travels to be set up as a shelter when he stopped to rest or to give audiences. There are a number of woven baskets, seemingly of finest kind, and funerary boats of various sizes, such as were habitually linked with the dead to assist them in crossing the water surrounding the Elysian Field. These are mixed up with divers articles of household furniture from the palace, such as carved and gilded bedsteads, chairs and beadwork hassocks.

The whole place is in extreme confusion, the entire floor being covered with objects, often piled one on top of another. Considering the extreme care needed in handling these things, the task of disentangling them and of getting them out offers a thorny problem.

3,800 Dozen Crullers Roast In Fire After Trucks Crash

The air for several blocks in the vicinity of the Hackensack River Bridge, Jersey City, was permeated with the odor of roasted crullers yesterday when 3,800 dozen of them, loaded on a large truck belonging to the Bradbury Cruller Company of Long Island City, were destroyed in a fire resulting from a collision with a motor truck belonging to Swift & Co. of Harrison, N. J.

A head-on collision caused sparks from the ignition system to set fire to the Swift truck and the blaze spread quickly to the cruller truck. Several policemen looked on while the crullers burned themselves out. Both trucks were badly damaged.

HERRICK CUT SHORT IN CONGRESS ATTACK

Oklahoman Assails Washington Papers, but Later Withdraws All His Remarks.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—An unprecedented incident occurred in the House of Representatives this afternoon when Representative Manuel Herrick of Oklahoma took the floor to reply to stories printed recently about him in certain Washington newspapers. He had not proceeded ten minutes before his speech became so violent and unparliamentary that several members, including Representative John Philip Hill of Maryland, abruptly left the Chamber, while Representative Stafford of Wisconsin demanded that Herrick's words be expunged from the Record. The matter was temporarily settled when Herrick, upon advice of other members, withdrew his remarks.

The Oklahoman had been angered by newspaper stories purporting to retail some of his "romances," but which he denied this afternoon. In the forenoon he attempted to secure the floor on a question of personal privilege, but Speaker Gillett refused this, saying that the newspaper publications did not reflect upon the member's official life. Representative Blanton of Texas, took up the cudgels for Herrick, but a vote of an appeal from the Chair, a roll-call sustained the Speaker's ruling.

This afternoon during the debate on the reorganization of the foreign service, Herrick obtained permission to speak for twenty minutes. It was said later by Republican leaders that he had promised to make his remarks temperate, in view of an agreement not to delay debate. At once Herrick launched into a diatribe against a chain of newspapers and its employes. He said he had been "hounded" because he had introduced legislation forbidding beauty contests held by newspapers.

His language became so startling that Mr. Hill leaped to his feet and started out. Representative Stafford instantly made his demand that the words be taken down, joining with Mr. Hill in insisting that the speech be stricken from the Record. Herrick seemed dazed, and begged to be allowed to proceed, on condition that the part of his speech just preceding be withdrawn. Many members were on their feet when finally Herrick withdrew his entire remarks, adding that he wished to speak at another time.

Herrick has only twenty more legislative days to serve in the House, for he was defeated in the last elections.

CHANDLER TO CONTEST SEATING OF SOL BLOOM

Notices of Two Other New York Contests Filed With Clerk of the House.

Leonard Obermeier, attorney for Representative Walter M. Chandler, who was defeated by Sol Bloom, the Democratic candidate, in the special election for Representative held on Jan. 30 in the Nineteenth Congressional District, went to Washington yesterday to file notice of contest before the Clerk of the House. Bloom's plurality was 191 votes, and Chandler charged that fraud and gross irregularities were committed in the district.

It also became known that notices of two other contests had been filed with the Clerk of the House relating to Congressional elections in New York City. One is the contest brought by Henry Frank, Democrat, against F. H. La Guardia, Republican, who won by 168 votes in the Twentieth Congressional District at the November election. The other contest is that of Martin C. Ansorge, Republican, against Roy Weiler, Democrat, who won in November by 265 votes in the Twenty-first Congressional District.

Harding Congratulates Jusserand.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—President Harding has sent a letter of congratulation to Ambassador Jusserand, who yesterday celebrated the twentieth anniversary of his service as representative of France in the United States. The President conveyed to the French Ambassador his official and personal expression of good-will and recalled the high esteem in which all the Presidents of the United States during the past twenty years, had held the French diplomat, whose length of service as an Ambassador has established a record in this Capitol.

BROPHY RESIGNS MINE WORKERS' POST

ASKS LEWIS TO EXPLAIN

Charges Lack of Real Support and Plans to Carry Fight to the Rank and File.

John Brophy, Chairman of the Nationalization Research Committee of the United Mine Workers of America, has resigned, and a letter to President John L. Lewis, made public yesterday, demands that Mr. Lewis come out openly in favor of the nationalization of coal mines, appear before the Federal commission and in public during the next eleven months and speak for nationalization before the miners and open up the columns of the United Mine Workers' Journal to a discussion of the question.

Mr. Brophy's resignation follows that of Christ J. Golden, a member of the miners' Nationalization Committee, who resigned two weeks when Ellis Searles, editor of the Mine Workers' Journal, in a statement said that the Nationalization Committee's report had not been officially adopted by the miners' convention.

Brophy's letter follows:

"The international miners' convention of 1921, and you, as President, outlined the duties of our committee. You bade us familiarize ourselves with the problem by 'consulting with authorities'; you asked us to formulate a detailed practical policy to bring about the nationalization of the coal mines.' And you ordered us to 'aid in the dissemination of information among our members and the public.'

"We could not better your instructions, because they are all inclusive. But we fulfilled them with results that surpassed our hopes. We consulted miners, labor men in other industries, economists, statisticians. Government officials, lawyers, administrators, technicians, engineers—every type of expert opinion. In accordance with your order we drew up the plan as the result of this prolonged investigation.

"The only other ways of making the plan would have been to let it drop into our mind as a perfect abstraction from a timeless world, or else to turn over the job to some group of professional liberals and let them project a theory. We did neither. We preferred the method of hard work and expert advice.

"The time has come for a united front and a spirited advance.

"Will you as leader give us the lead?

"The mode of the Nationalization Research Committee in preparing a case have been the same as your own methods—no recognition of outside organizations in union affairs, consultation with individual experts on details, a decade's union decision as policy.

"Hampered by the silence of the Mine Workers' Journal and by the lack of hearty official support our nationalization research committee hereby appeals directly to the rank and file. We have done the work you ordered, but we have not received the support you promised. We shall continue to carry on the work outlined in the American plan. We shall demand speeding up the campaign for nationalization in the ways specified in this letter. We enter the last stages of this fight, which will end victoriously in the international convention, not as a committee, but as miners representing the rank and file.

"So I submit my resignation as Chairman of the National Research Committee. And I urge you, as international President, to aid the miners in their American plan."

KIDNAP DRIVER, GET LOAD OF ALCOHOL

Hold-Up Men's Coup Is Short-lived, for Truck Is Recaptured as It Enters Garage.

Five hold-up men who at noon yesterday kidnapped the driver of a truck and made off with the machine and 100 five-gallon cans of alcohol got very little except excitement for their trouble. Within two hours the truck and all but five tins of alcohol were recovered by the police. The negro who was driving the truck when the police came upon it was arrested but later escaped during an attempt made upon the detectives by a man and a woman who were later taken into custody, the former on a charge of robbery and the latter for interfering with police officers in making an arrest. The kidnapped man showed up at 1:30 while a description of the robbers in Queens and gave alarm by telephone.

Joseph Disraelli of 737 Southern Boulevard, the Bronx, had driven the truck from the Kentucky Distilleries and Warehouse Company, 172 East 110th Street, with the consignment of grain alcohol, which was to be delivered to the Corona Chemical Company, 17 Warren Street. The five robbers followed him in a touring car. The truck had just been backed up at 17 Warren Street, preparatory to unloading the alcohol. Two of the men in the touring car swooped down upon Disraelli with .45 calibre revolvers and threw him into their machine and took him away. Disraelli had got off the truck to find out where the alcohol was to be delivered.

A negro then hopped on the driver's seat of the truck and drove the machine to a garage at 142-144 Mulberry Street. The trouble he experienced in driving into the garage aroused the suspicions of Detectives Robert P. Barron and Harry Johann of Inspector Coleman's staff, who were passing at the time. After ascertaining the contents of the truck the detectives told the negro that he was under arrest. The owner of the garage and his wife, according to the police, interfered and a general fight occurred, the negro making his escape. The garage man and his wife were arrested. The funeral of the boxer Andy Thomas was being held at the time and there was a large crowd.

Meantime, Disraelli had been taken in the touring car to Richmond Hill, Queens, where escaping from his abductors, he ran to a telephone at 129th Street and notified his brother-in-law, Louis Bachrach, of 2,415 Creston Avenue, the Bronx, who is in charge of the warehouse on 119th Street for the distillery company.

Bachrach notified the police and a general alarm was sent out from headquarters. Two detectives were sent to Queens to rescue the kidnapped man and he was found and brought back to the Oak Street Police Station.

RUSSIA TO KEEP OUT OF WAR

Will Not Join Any Conflict Arising From Ruhr or Lausanne.

MOSCOW, Feb. 8 (Associated Press).—Soviet leaders in a series of conferences held during the past fortnight have definitely decided against Russia's participation in any European or Near Eastern war growing out of the Ruhr or the Lausanne situations, the correspondent learns.

Russia will defend herself if attacked, but will take no active part in a conflict outside her own territory, even to aid German workers should a revolution develop in Germany.

Russia's leaders believe that she needs peace for her reconstruction and want her to be in the position to play a profitable neutral role in the European war which some believe will be inevitable sooner or later.

Jury Frees Father Under 'Unwritten Law'; Judge J. Franklin Taylor Commends Verdict

The acquittal of Saviano Sbordano of the charge of slaying Jere Meighen brought about a remarkable climax to the case in the Kings County Court last night, when County Judge J. Franklin Taylor thanked the jury, told them their verdict was a just one and proceeded to illustrate a similar case which he said had a far different ending.

The Sbordano case had been on trial for two or three days in Brooklyn. Sbordano was charged with having killed Meighen, who was janitor of the house at 183 Sackett Street, Brooklyn, where Sbordano also lived. The defense was the "unwritten law," based on a story told by the seven-year-old daughter of the indicted man to the effect that the janitor had assaulted her. The father, coming upon the janitor on June 21 last, killed him with an ax.

It took the jury less than twenty minutes to reach a verdict last night and Sbordano was freed.

When the foreman of the jury announced the verdict last evening Judge Taylor said:

"Gentlemen, that is a just verdict. Let me tell you of another case that occurred about a year ago, in which the father did not take the law into his own hands. Instead, he went to the police and told them that his seven-year-old daughter had been abused by a man who had enticed her into the rear of a store. The police told this father that he could not get a conviction on the mere story of the girl. They told him it was necessary to catch the man in the act.

"The father finally agreed to have the daughter meet this man again in the rear of the same store, where two policemen had been 'planted' and these policemen saw everything that occurred and then placed the man under arrest. He was later placed on trial and acquitted.

"You can see, gentlemen, that sometimes when the police are called into a case of this kind the defendant is allowed to go free."

The Judge then told the jury that he had been giving the Sbordano case serious consideration all day and had gone so far as to consult three Assistant District Attorneys and two Supreme Court Justices about it.

"These three officials of the District Attorney's office, whose names I am not at liberty to mention, told me they would have been crazed under similar circumstances, and the two Supreme Court Justices also said that they too would have been crazed by an experience of that kind.

"Again, gentlemen, I wish to say that I believe your verdict this evening was a just one."

BILL FOR VICE MAYOR GAINS MORE FOES

Many Politicians Hadn't Heard of Measure for Hylan Assistant Until Craig Attacked It.

CHANGE IN THE WORDING

Mystery as to Who Eliminated "to"—Hulbert Refuses Comment—Hirshfield Replies to Controller.

Opposition to Mayor Hylan's scheme to have an Assistant Mayor appointed to assume the burdens of his office when he is away, as provided for in the bill now before the Legislature, was freely expressed yesterday by politicians who had not heard of the proposed measure until Controller Charles L. Craig sent his memorandum attacking it to the Legislative members on Wednesday.

When the bill was being discussed in the Board of Estimate and the Board of Aldermen the new position to be created was referred to an "Assistant to the Mayor." The Board members were under the impression that the new office was to be merely a secretarial post, but when the bill reached Albany the word "to" was eliminated and the new office was referred to as "Assistant Mayor." Controller Craig pointed out that he had no idea that this was to be the case when he approved of the measure to provide for an assistant to the Mayor, who pleaded that he was greatly overworked.

It could not be learned yesterday who was responsible for changing the bill. Members of the Estimate Board declared the word "to" was in the bill as originally drawn and passed upon, but how or why it was eliminated they said they did not know. Murray Hulbert, President of the Board of Aldermen and Acting Mayor, said it would be manifestly improper for him to comment upon the bill at this time, inasmuch as it may come before him while Mayor Hylan is still out of the city. He pointed out that the bill may pass the Legislature and be sent to the Mayor and a public hearing held on it. If Mayor Hylan remained in Palm Beach the hearing would be held before Mr. Hulbert.

Wording of the Bill.

It was also stated that the bill as drawn might deprive the President of the Board of Aldermen of all his powers as Acting Mayor. The actual wording of the bill is as follows:

"Whenever, by reason of sickness or absence from the city the Mayor is prevented from attending to the duties of his office, the Assistant Mayor shall assist the Acting Mayor and may perform and exercise the duties and powers designated in said written authority from the Mayor. Unless by a similar writing filed in the office of the City Clerk and in the Department of Finance, the Acting Mayor shall otherwise designate the duties and powers to be performed and exercised by the Assistant Mayor during the period or any part of the period of the said absence or illness of the Mayor; but the Acting Mayor shall not have the power to remove such Assistant Mayor or to appoint an Assistant Mayor unless the absence or sickness of the Mayor shall have continued sixty days."

The Mayor's friends contended that the bill could not take away any powers from the Acting Mayor, as he could refuse to designate the duties of the Assistant Mayor by merely filing a written document in the City Clerk's office and the Finance Department. Controller Craig's friends answered that the Acting Mayor might not desire to declare open war on an Assistant Mayor, in which event he would have to take orders from the new official. Because of Controller Craig's memorandum to the legislature, it is likely that the bill will have hard sledding and that Mayor Hylan may have to return to the city before his vacation is ended in order to try to save it.

Controller Craig did not come to the city yesterday from Lakewood. He sent word that he was somewhat under the weather and may remain away for a day or two.

Hirshfield Replies to Craig.

Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield, spokesman for Mayor Hylan, is also ill at his home, but he made answer to the Controller's characterization of him as "loquacious."

"This is indeed a world with many ungrateful people in it," said Mr. Hirshfield in a statement. "Books tell us it was not always so, particularly when grandpa was a boy and grandma was a girl. In their days, we are told, people appreciated kind acts done for them by others. Here, for instance, after doing my best for several days to create a friendly atmosphere for him in New York and convince the people that Controller Craig is not really wholly responsible for his periodical outbreaks, instead of thanking me for my efforts in his behalf, he attempts to cruelly assassinate me with the terrible false charge that I am 'loquacious,' and, like Caesar, ambitious.

"As Assistant Mayor, I would be required to sit close to the Controller at board and committee meetings, which, judging by the past, is an experience I would not relish. I believe that the Controller ought to be the last man to charge me with being 'loquacious,' any persons attending the meetings of the Board of Estimate will testify to the fact that Controller Craig is a man of a few words, but that he uses a lot of language and consumes quite some time to say those few words. In my humble opinion the Controller, as a long distance orator, has no equal."

LINCOLN VOTERS HOLD UNIQUE PARTY

Ten Who Cast First Ballot for Emancipator Honor His Memory at W. C. Crane's Luncheon.

MESSAGE FROM HARDING

Robert T. Lincoln, Son of Former President, and Ex-Gov. Miller Also Send Congratulations.

A unique luncheon party to honor the memory of Abraham Lincoln met yesterday at the home of Warren C. Crane, 121 West Seventieth Street. There were ten men present, all of whom cast their first ballots for Lincoln as President. A few cast their ballots for Lincoln's second term.

Mr. Crane conceived the idea of gathering together a little band of Lincoln voters while discussing old times recently with several members of the Ye Olde Settlers' Association of Ye West Side, of which he was the founder.

Messages of congratulation were received from President Harding, former Governor Nathan L. Miller and Robert T. Lincoln, son of the former President. Those present at the luncheon and their ages were: C. M. Coutan, 80; Charles E. Foster, 83; Major George Haven Putnam, 79; George Palmer Putnam, 83; Charles Henry Paddock, 82; E. M. Stiger, 84; James T. Pratt, 85; John F. Cuyler, 86; William B. Stout, 85, and Warren C. Crane. Illness prevented a few from attending, among them John N. Beach of Brooklyn, 86.

Major Putnam, the publisher and patriotic speaker, who was a prisoner in Libby Prison when the vote was taken on Nov. 1, 1864, said:

"I was only 20 years old at the time, but the officer in charge of the voting decided that I was old enough to be a prisoner of war and qualified to vote and so I cast my first ballot for Lincoln. Many months afterward I heard from Lincoln's son, Robert T. Lincoln, that his father was deeply touched by the loyal support."

Mr. Coutan was a Major in the Tenth New York Volunteers when he voted on Nov. 1, 1864, while the army was besieging Petersburg. Mr. Paddock was also in the army and voted at Morris Island, opposite Charleston, S. C. George Palmer Putnam, a cousin of Major Putnam, voted from his home in Buffalo. Mr. Crane at the time was a traveling salesman and came to New York from Illinois, spending $100 for the trip.

"My vote for Lincoln," he said, "was cast in a gimmill in Centre Street."

President Harding's message to Mr. Crane follows:

"It has been a real pleasure to me to learn of the unique party you are giving for the men who voted for Abraham Lincoln in 1860 and 1864. As you suggest in your note their numbers, especially those voters who have been getting few; but the more we should delight to honor them, for in so doing we testify to the nation's unending affection and to its eternal appreciation of the great service of those who made possible the preservation of our institutions."

Robert T. Lincoln wrote from Washington, D. C.:

"I appreciate most highly the honor done to the memory of my father by the meeting to be held at your house by you and other friends who voted for him at the presidential elections of 1860 and 1864, and I most heartily beg that you will thank all of these old supporters of his who will be assembled upon your invitation."

Former Governor Miller, in his message, said:

"In 1860 and again in 1864, putting principle above everything else they voted for one of the greatest men the world has ever known. If in these days of expediency and selfishness, we could imbibe from the survivors of that time more of the spirit of adherence to principle and more of the dispositions which maintain the institutions which Lincoln preserved for us, it would be well."

The oldest Lincoln voter discovered by Mr. Crane is Matthias Hindcliffe of Ogden, Utah, who is 87 years of age. Other voters who sent their regrets were John T. Fletcher of Johnson, Orange County, N. Y., 83 years; Lyman S. Johnson, New Britain, Conn., 85 years; Geofrey Lincks, Brooklyn, 82 years; William H. Wheeler, Potsdam, 84 years; S. C. Barlow, Roselle, N. J., 82 years, and W. B. Gould, Port Jefferson, L. I., 82 years.

SCENT LIQUOR PLOT TO RUN 20,000 CASES

Nine Whisky Ships Have Left Nassau, Ostensibly for Canada and Mexico.

Nine boats carrying approximately 20,000 cases of whisky, valued at $2,000,000 at local retail bootleg prices, have just cleared from Nassau, Bahama Islands, for St Pierre, Miquelon, and Tampico, Mexico, according to information received here yesterday by Philip Elting, Collector of the Port. All the boats are under suspicion and the customs and prohibition authorities will keep a sharp lookout for them along the coast in an effort to prevent the liquors from being landed in this country. Customs officials said that it has been their experience that boats of this character supplement the rum fleet lying off Long Island and New Jersey.

The early appointment of Palmer Canfield, at present legal adviser of the local prohibition unit, as Federal Prohibition Director for this State is looked for, according to a report at prohibition headquarters yesterday. Mr. Canfield said he knew nothing of the report. Acting Director E. C. Yellowley is out of the city and is not expected back until next Tuesday.

Magistrate Moses H. Ryttenberg, in Washington Heights Court yesterday, declared that he would show no sympathy for any person brought before him on a charge of operating a still in a tenement or apartment house, regardless of the age or sex of the defendant. He held Celia Young, 60 years old, of 437 West 125th Street, in $1,000 bail for the Grand Jury.

JOBBERS MEDIATE BIG DRESS STRIKE

BOTH SIDES DETERMINED

Strikers Say 25,000 Are Out, but Others Declare Only Few Persons Have Stopped Working.

Indications were yesterday that the struggle between striking dress and waist makers and manufacturers would be prolonged. It was the second day of the strike.

The jobbers, organized as the Wholesale Dress Manufacturers' Association, met last night at the Hotel McAlpin and gave their committee full power to use its best efforts to bring peace into the affairs of the six dressmakers' unions and the manufacturers, most of whom are members of the Association of Dress Manufacturers, Inc.

Jacob Siegel of the Siegel-Levy Co., President of the jobbers' association, said at the conclusion of the meeting that his committee would endeavor to meet the union representatives and the manufacturers' representatives today.

"We, the jobbers, who have millions of dollars at stake in this industry have been of the opinion all along that a strike could have been avoided," said Mr. Siegel. "Now that the strike is here we will do our best to settle it and bring both sides together as early as possible."

Mr. Siegel declined to discuss the possible basis of a settlement. It was pointed out that the jobbers had been of the opinion before the strike that the forty-hour week in place of the prevailing system of forty-four hours, with four hours overtime to be paid at the usual rate, was the only possible answer of the dress trade to the union's demand for the installation of the week work system.

It is believed that the jobbers will again endeavor to effect a settlement on the basis of the forty-hour-a-week arrangement. Failing to effect such a settlement, the jobbers will be forced to take a less neutral position, it was said. Some indication of this possibility was given by Mr. Siegel, who said after last night's meeting that the jobbers had followed the lead of the contractors and that this had led to a strike.

"Now we will lead," he declared.

Manufacturers Not Hopeful.

The attitude of the jobbers last night and the indication that they would seek to settle the strike on the basis of the forty-hour week was received without enthusiasm by the manufacturers who met at the Hotel Astor. They reiterated their position that they would never grant the union either a system of week work or the forty-hour week. Neither did the dressmakers recede from their position that they would wage a finish fight for week work. Their leaders declared that they would have accepted the forty-hour week Monday night without a strike, but once they called a strike they determined that week work would be the only method of settling it.

Federal and State agencies now are seeking to bring the contending sides together. Salvatore Ninfo, acting President of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, said he understood that two representatives of Secretary of Labor Davis had reached New York yesterday. He expected to hear from them today, he said. Union leaders will confer with Bernard Shientag, State Industrial Commissioner and explain their side of the case. The manufacturers told their story to Commissioner Shientag yesterday.

The manufacturers yesterday claimed that 80 per cent. of the industry was employed and that but a bare 6,000 of the 30,000 dress and waist makers in the city were on strike. The union claims that 25,000 were out and that the tie-up would be complete in a few days. The contractors were sure that the strike would last but a few days longer because "sane counsel" would prevail.

The unions issued a statement declaring that the dressmakers considered the issue of the strike, the abolition of piece work, so important that they were determined to fight "to a finish and without compromise."

"The system of piece work is an unmitigated evil to the workers and a serious handicap to the fair-minded employers," the statement said. "Under the practical operations of that system there is no fixed or uniform unit of compensation. Every new model means a new kind of work and every season brings forth new models literally by the hundreds. In each case, the price for making the new garments must be established by agreements between employers and employes.

"This is accomplished through a process of haggling and bargaining between the employer or his representative and a price committee of the workers.

Says System Causes Death.

"The system of piece work is an incentive to the employes to work with an intensity detrimental to their health, particularly in view of the fact that the industry is highly seasonal, that the periods of plentiful work are rare, and that the workers in such seasons are tempted to make up for the lean periods of the year by over-exertion. Occupational diseases, and particularly tuberculosis, so frequent among the workers in the needle trades, are directly traceable to this peculiar system of piece work."

Four men were arraigned before Magistrate Cobb, in Jefferson Market Court, yesterday charged with entering the dress plant of Samuel Schwartz at 558 Broadway and beating Samuel Kopfick, one of Schwartz's employes. The men were held in $1,000 bail for examination Feb. 16 on suspicion of felonious assault. They gave their names as Harry Bloom, a cutter, 427 Christopher Avenue, Brooklyn; Jack Price, 92 Second Avenue, a cutter; Joseph Mario, a cutter, of 3,631 Holland Street, Brooklyn, and Michael Paoletta, an operator, of 724 East 214th Street.

Two waist operators were charged with disorderly conduct before Magistrate Cobb in Essex Market Court on the complaint of Max Lehman, waist manufacturer, of 130 Second Street. They were Becky Gallon, of Sea Gate, Coney Island, and Clara Teaman, of 670 East 176th Street. The Magistrate dismissed the charge when the girls promised to keep away from Lehman's shop.

GRIP AND PNEUMONIA CASES SHOW INCREASE

Fewer Deaths Reported, However —Copeland Issues Warning to Landlords.

Health Commissioner Copeland reported an increase in the number of influenza and pneumonia cases yesterday, coupling his announcement with a warning to landlords that they must comply with the legal requirements regarding heat to tenants.

"We have had a considerable increase in the number of influenza cases reported being 502, as compared with 310 Wednesday, and the number of pneumonia cases increased from 125 to 144," said Dr. Copeland. "There were forty-four deaths from pneumonia today, against fifty yesterday. Influenza deaths were ten as against seven yesterday. These figures, however, do not indicate anything like an epidemic. They do indicate that the influenza germ is unusually active and it is well to take all precautions."

Would Pick Prison in Which To Learn to Use New Cork Leg

When James Darkin, 24, pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Collins in General Sessions to shooting a youth, he protested against being sent to Elmira Reformatory on the ground that he would not be able to learn how to use a cork leg which he expected to receive in a few days. He told the court, however, that he did not mind being sent to Sing Sing or the Tombs.

Darkin, who also is known as Nick Skelly and Dick Skelly, shot William Curran, 19, in a fight on Dec. 1 last. He said that while he was in the Tombs awaiting arraignment he contracted for a cork leg for $70, and had paid $45 on account. He was on crutches when he faced the Judge.

Judge Collins said he was sure the authorities at the reformatory would give him an opportunity to learn how to use the cork leg, and sentenced him to an indefinite term there.

MAIL, 4 YEARS LATE, IS BASIS OF DIVORCE

Brooklyn Woman Gets Letter Sent to Husband as He Sailed to War.

SIGNED "YOUR WIFE, BELL"

Mrs. Morris Lefkowitz Also Alleges That Her Spouse Was Trapped In Hotel.

A letter which has been wandering in the labyrinth of postal channels since April 7, 1919, addressed to Private Morris Lefkowitz, 308th Infantry, A. E. F., reached his home in Brooklyn a month ago and fell into the hands of his wife. She promptly brought an action for divorce, alleging also that she found her husband in a room in a Manhattan hotel with an unidentified woman.

"My darlingest hubby," began the letter which was delivered four years late, according to Mrs. Lefkowitz's complaint. It continued: "Well, precious boy, how do you feel today? I was delighted to receive your two letters and cannot understand, dear heart, why you don't receive my mail. Last Saturday I received one of my letters back. It was marked 'Died.' Imagine my feelings. Today the Leviathan left New York. Darling, I wish you a safe and pleasant voyage across the deep sea. I shall be waiting for my hero boy and will be ready for that longed-for hug and kiss. So long, old darling, I hope and pray to see you very soon. Until then, so long. Oceans of love and kisses from your loving and true wife. Forever yours, Bell."

Mrs. Lefkowitz did not know who "Bell" was. Her complaint adds that her suspicions were aroused and she requested her brother-in-law, Hyman Goldstein, to investigate. She alleged that on Jan. 7 Goldstein followed Lefkowitz and a young woman from Brooklyn to the Hotel Martinique. He notified the family, and the hotel room was raided, according to the complaint.

Supreme Court Justice Leander B. Faber in Brooklyn yesterday reserved decision on the application of Mrs. Lefkowitz, whose income is $30 a week, Marcy Avenue, for $500 counsel fees and a reasonable amount of alimony pending the outcome of the suit. Lefkowitz is a buyer for the firm of Hoffman & Hartbley, 117 West Thirty-second Street.

MANY INDUSTRIES SHORT OF LABOR

January Shows a Marked Improvement Over December in Employment Conditions.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Employment conditions throughout the United States in January showed marked improvement over the favorable conditions of December, according to the monthly report of the United States Employment Service, issued today.

Manufacturing industries, almost without exception, showed shortages of both skilled and common labor. Many mining districts made similar reports, although here and there production was held back by car shortages. The lumber industries also reported shortages of labor, both in the woods and in the mills.

Only the agricultural, food and some of the seasonal industries experienced surpluses, and in none of these was the condition described as serious.

The building industry was shown to be active throughout the country, except in a few Northern sections, where operations were retarded by the weather.

HINTON AT RIO JANEIRO.

American Aviator Ends 5,000-Mile Flight From New York.

RIO JANEIRO, Feb. 8 (Associated Press).—Lieutenant Walter Hinton, the American aviator, arrived here this morning, completing his seaplane flight of more than 5,000 miles from New York to Rio Janeiro. He and his companions received a noisy and enthusiastic welcome.

As the Sampaio-Correia II. landed at 11:32 o'clock the guns in the fortresses were fired, steamers sounded their sirens and the church bells were rung. The waterfront and hilltops were crowded with thousands of persons who had waited since early morning to witness the end of the long flight. The city was in holiday attire, the streets being profusely decorated with Brazilian and American flags.

The aviators were received officially soon after their arrival by representatives of the Aero Club, the North American colony and various civic institutions.

Among those welcoming the aviators before they were taken to their hotel were the Mayor, the famous Brazilian aeronaut, Alberto Santos-Dumont, and Dr. Sampaio-Correia, President of the Brazilian Aero Club, for whom the aviators' seaplane was named.

The members of the crew of the Sampaio-Correia say that the actual flying time of the plane for the 5,581 miles from Pensacola, Fla., to Rio Janeiro was 100 hours 21 minutes.

The Hinton expedition, including besides Lieutenant Hinton, E. Pinto Martins, a Brazilian; George T. Bye, a New York newspaperman; John Wilkerson, mechanic, and J. Thomas Baltzell, photographer, left the naval station at Rockaway, N. Y., on Aug. 17. The party was beset with difficulty almost from the start. The original plane, Sampaio-Correia I., was wrecked in landing off Cuba only five days after the start, and the aviators were rescued by the United States cruiser Denver. The seaplane in which the journey was finished was purchased from the naval air station at Pensacola.

Lieutenant Hinton was a member of the NC-3, the American naval seaplane, which completed the first transatlantic flight made by a heavier-than-air machine. He was also aboard the runaway naval balloon from the Rockaway station which made the sensational flight to Meaux Factory, in the Canadian wilderness, in December, 1920.

DRY GOODS MEN HONOR WANAMAKER

Retail Convention Adopts Straus Resolution to Participate in Memorial Project.

CALLED OUTSTANDING MAN

National Association Approves Plan to Double Membership This Year—Hears Business Experts.

The convention of the National Retail Dry Goods Association at the Hotel Pennsylvania yesterday sanctioned a drive to double its membership within the next year. The idea was suggested to the convention by Frederick H. Rike of the Rike-Kumler Company, Dayton, Ohio.

Each State councilor of the association will be assigned his share of the quota of 2,000 members to be sought during the coming year. The councilor making the greatest headway will be given a trip to Europe or its equivalent.

A resolution offered by Jesse I. Straus of R. H. Macy & Co., President of the association, pledging the organization to participate in erecting a memorial to the late John Wanamaker, was unanimously adopted.

In proposing the resolution Mr. Straus said: "Within the last few months there has passed away the most notable figure in the department store craft, the Hon. John Wanamaker. I think that in point of age and in point of service he was an outstanding man. He was unique in many ways. He was one of the few men in our craft who has been prominent in the public life of the nation. He occupied the position of Postmaster General and was the foremost citizen of Philadelphia."

Mr. Straus suggested that a committee be appointed to spread upon the minutes a resolution to be sent to the family of Mr. Wanamaker, and he moved that a committee be authorized to co-operate with those at work in the plan to erect a suitable memorial.

Dr. O. E. Klingaman of the University of Iowa and Irving S. Paull of Chicago, Secretary of the recent Congressional Committee which investigated retail conditions, discussed the relations of the retailer with the consumer, the manufacturer and the wholesaler. Alfred M. Best, an insurance expert, told the retailers what he thought they ought to know about insurance, and C. B. Bradfute, President of the American Farm Bureau Federation, discussed the relation of the farmer to the general prosperity of the country.

Calls Fire Waste Too Great.

"The fire waste in this country is enormous," declared Mr. Best in his address. "It is a scandal. It should be reduced and it can be reduced tremendously if the property owners will cooperate to cut it down. There is a moral obligation for every property owner to help cut down the fire waste. It is many times greater in this country per capita than anywhere else that I know.

"There has been a good deal of talk recently about the supposed advantage of monopolistic state funds for the writting of workmen's compensation insurance. In theory, it is all right. The theory is that the workmen's compensation insurance is compulsory on the employer; that there shall be no element of profit entering into the handling of the fund from which the compensation is paid. That is good sound economics as far as it goes. The difficulty is that human nature being what it is, the moment you remove competition you banish efficiency. That has been the experience in connection with the monopolistic State funds. Monopoly is not America. It is contrary to the spirit of all of our institutions, both of Government and of business, and I cannot see what is to be gained by creating one monopoly to drive another out.

Mr. Bradford said that while the farmer was not entirely out of the woods financially, he is looking into the future with a little brighter hope than has been done for the last three years, at least.

One of the reasons why business does not go forward more rapidly at the present time, according to Mr. Bradford, is that the "farmer's dollar will not buy what it used to buy."

He said that the farmer had come to the point where he had decided to buy brains to help him solve his problems and declared that economists in the pay of the farmers were attempting to reach solutions of pressing problems.

Farm "Bloc" Idea Works.

"We are employing men skilled in legislation to help us along legislative lines and I think I can get a smile from most of you when I say you will agree that we have succeeded pretty well in that proposition in the last year or more," he added.

Dr. Klingman said he was working on a code of ethics that might be used in the relations between the buyer and the seller in the retail trade. The substance of the code, he said, was "to end the practices and cost of distribution, whether by seller or buyer, which, if eliminated, would lower the cost of distribution without lowering either the manufacturers' or wholesalers' or retailers' profits."

Dr. Klingman began his work last year following the suggestion of Louis Kirstein of William Filene & Sons. He discussed trade ethics.

Mr. Paul described the work of the recent Congressional inquiry investigating the retail market, and made a plea for unity of all factors in the retail craft.

A resolution was adopted calling on retail merchants in farming communities to organize committees with farmers for the purpose of aiding in the solution of farm problems.

A resolution was adopted directing the appointment of a committee to prepare arguments for and against the Capper-French wool woven fabric law and the Rogers-Lodge honest merchandise law, so that the arguments might be presented to the members in a referendum.

DRY GOODS MEN ELECT OFFICERS FOR THE YEAR

Jesse I. Straus, Retiring President, Presented With Cup for Services.

Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, predicted prompt ratification of the British debt agreement in an address at the annual dinner of the National Retail Dry Goods Association last night at the Pennsylvania.

"In the ratification of the British debt there will be no politics played," he declared. "There may be votes against the question, but it will not be along party lines. I say, knowing how things stand in Washington, that before the Fourth of March they will have passed the legislation affirming and ratifying the agreement."

Jesse Isidor Straus, President of the Association, presided at the dinner, which was held in connection with the annual meeting of the organization. The speakers, beside Senator Harrison, were the Rev. Henry Clay Risner, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Hoboken, and S. K. Ratcliffe, British journalist. President Harding sent a message to the dinner expressing the wish that the coming year may be marked by a continuance and increase of prosperity to all of the members."

Mr. Straus, who retires as President, received a silver cup from the Association in appreciation of his services as such.

Executive Committee—George B. Johnson, Boston; H. S. Heckman, Johnstown, Pa.; Fred Lazarus Jr., Columbus, Ohio; Walter H. Rich, Atlanta, Ga.; H. M. Shartenberg, New Haven, Conn.; Jesse Isidor Straus, New York; H. J. Tily, Philadelphia.

Board of Directors: Bolton Armstrong, Cincinnati, Ohio; Robert Braun, Portland, Me.; W. E. Chamberlain, Los Angeles, Cal.; H. S. Heckman, Johnstown, Pa.; George B. Johnson, Boston; R. E. Kennington, Jackson, Miss.; Fred Lazarus Jr., Columbus, Ohio; A. A. Mills, Fall River, Mass.; J. L. Paine, Spokane, Wash.; Walter H. Rich, Atlanta, Ga.; H. M. VICTIM OF GRAFTERS, SAYS BYRON R. NEWTON Forced Out When He Started Clean-Up, Charges Former Collector of Port.

The assertion that his resignation was forced six months before the expiration of his term because he refused to reinstate a customs inspector who had been indicted for grafting is made by Byron R. Newton, former Collector of the Port of New York, in an article on "The Toughest Job I Know" in the current issue of Collier's.

Mr. Newton tells of the many attempts to bring political, social and financial influence to bear upon his administration of the office, and of his efforts to break up a small band of inspectors who had been soliciting money from steamship passengers whose baggage they examined on the piers. In his article Mr. Newton continues:

"The investigation proceeded to a point where we had indicted a half dozen inspectors, had dismissed as many more from the service and had suspended a still larger number from duty. One of the worst offenders chanced to be the friend and lieutenant of a powerful politician in Brooklyn. The evidence against him seemed absolutely conclusive. He had been indicted and was about to go on trial.

"Strong appeals were made to me by his political friends to give him a suspension of thirty or sixty days and then restore him to duty. That, of course, I could not consider. Then the same suggestion came from Washington. My reply was that it was inconceivable that the authorities at Washington could really want to establish either the precedent or the policy of putting back into uniform and on the piers a Federal employe who had been indicted by a Federal Grand Jury for so grave an offense and who was about to stand his trial.

"Then there came from Washington an official letter directing me to reinstate this man after a period of suspension. I refused to obey that order. A few days later another official letter came from Washington asking for my immediate resignation, six months prior to the expiration of my four-year term. My resignation went in as requested. The person under indictment was then restored to his former place."

Mr. Newton refused yesterday at his home in Bayside to give the name of either the inspector or the "Brooklyn politician" to whom he alluded. He said the letter from Washington suggesting reinstatement of the inspector was from an Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and that the letter requesting his resignation was purely formal in tone.

HOLD THREE FOR BIG FUR THEFTS

Bail of $50,000 Each Fixed in Cases Said to Involve Loss of $250,000 in Six Months.

Three men charged with fur robberies believed to amount to more than $250,000 were held in $50,000 bail each for examination by Magistrate H. Stanley Renaud in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday. They were Samuel Marcus of 130 South Ninth Street, Brooklyn; Ralph Trietelman of 952 East 165th Street, the Bronx, and Charles Schwartz of 125 Cannon Street. Trietelman and Schwartz were arrested Wednesday and Marcus yesterday morning.

They were charged specifically with suspicion of burglary in connection with the theft from the loft of Sharpstein & Cohn, fur dealers, at 26 West Thirty-seventh Street, of $65,000 in furs and skins, of which $8,000 worth have been recovered. Assistant District Attorney Ralph Gutchen said that the case was being considered by the Grand Jury and asked that the men be held in $100,000 bail.

Eighty furs and skins were found at the home of Trietelman yesterday, according to the police, and $2,000 in furs were found in a stationery store in Brooklyn, where it was said that Trietelman and Schwartz took them last Friday. The two men are partners in the White Waist Manufacturing Company.

John C. Stott, manager of the Furriers' Security Alliance, 303 Fifth Avenue, made the large estimate of the fur robberies for which the three prisoners are alleged to be responsible. The alliance, which Mr. Stott said has a membership of more than 1,000 fur manufacturers, aided the police in investigating the numerous robberies in the fur district in the last six months. According to Mr. Stott, Schwartz, who is also known as "Big Charles" and "Honolulu Charlie," confessed to some of the largest thefts in the district, besides the robbery of Sharpstein & Cohen at 26 West Thirty-seventh Street, for which he was arrested.

Hochstim & Bossak, 115 West Thirtieth, who were robbed of about $50,000 worth of furs in two robberies last October; Friedman & Herskovitz, 115 West Twenty-seventh Street, who were also robbed of about $50,000 in pelts last September, and Engle-Fetzer Company, at Cleveland, where a $40,000 theft occurred last July, are some of the robberies to which Schwartz is said by Mr. Stott to have confessed.

Mr. Stott estimated the fur robberies throughout the country last year at $600,000.

USE POISON GASES TO FIGHT MOSQUITO

New Jersey Experiments Show That Chemicals Will Destroy the Breeding Places.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Feb. 8.—Poison gases, such as used in the World War, will be employed to fight the mosquito, Frederick A. Riley, Chief Inspector of the Mosquito Extermination Commission of Atlantic City, Atlantic County, announced today.

"The day when a mosquito could menace the lives of thousands is just about over," he said. "The New Jersey agricultural experiments station has been experimenting with different chemicals and gases, and they are nearly ready to put their discoveries in general practice.

"Atlantic City we have a comparatively simple problem, but it requires eternal vigilance. The salt marshes are a constant menace. We drain them periodically, but that is only a temporary measure. The cedar swamps, for some reason, do not aid mosquito breeding and therefore give us no trouble. The only time Atlantic City is troubled is when the wind is blowing from the mainland.

"It is only possible under the methods now in use to wipe out the breeding places for a short period, but we hope by means of poison gases to destroy these danger centres permanently."

The Mosquito Extermination Association will meet here on Feb. 14 to 16.

VICTORIAN EFFECTS SHOWN IN FASHIONS

Jenny's Paris Opening Also Reveals Abyssinian and Egyptian Influences in Decoration.

SUIT STYLES PREDOMINATE

These Are in Large Variety and Different Lengths—Vivid Colors Much in Vogue.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 8.—Spring fashions as shown by Jenny emphasize mid-Victorian styles. Egyptian and Abyssinian influences also are noted in the lines and fabrics of evening frocks and wraps.

Jenny's opening today filled her salons to capacity with Americans well known in the fashion world. Edward Mayer, Mr. and Mrs. Max Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. Brenner, Mr. Mayer of Tappé, and other equally well known creators were seen.

The mid-Victorian influence was noted chiefly in a youthful type of dancing frock and in lingerie frocks for young girls. It is seen in the drop shoulder effects of the bodice, neck line cut straight across the front and curving lower in the back, revealing the entire slope of the shoulder to the arm, and also in a full gathered skirt, worn instep length in pure period frocks only. All through Jenny's collection this mid-Victorian neck line prevails, though cut higher in afternoon gowns than in period dancing frocks.

Jenny introduces fullness into the skirts of practically all suits, afternoon gowns and dancing frocks, except in period frocks, which are gathered full all around. The fullness is bunched at the right or left front, while the sides and remainder of the skirt follow straight lines. Sometimes the entire front and sides of the skirt are gathered, the back alone being left plain. Again a slight suggestion of flare is observed in just one side of a suit skirt; otherwise they are straight and narrow. Skirts for young girls' suits are gathered all around.

The length of skirts varies from extreme period models of three to four inches from the floor, to the average suit and afternoon gown of eight to ten inches from the floor. Evening gowns average six and seven inches. Youthful models are twelve inches.

Elaborate Variety of Suits.

Madame Jenny lays particular stress upon suits this season and has created a far more elaborate, varied and comprehensive line than for many seasons, which should inspire American creators through the versatility of this gifted Parisian authority. Practically all suits are of the three-piece type, consisting of frock with jacket. Great originality is displayed in combinations of materials and in trimming and color touches. Black, navy, lanvin, green, light Havana, brown, beige and gray predominate. The materials are poiret, twill, cashmere, de laine, wool marocain and crepe, combined with printed silk crepes with Egyptian red, scarlet and ecru foundations and conventional foulard patterns, or novelty banded or bordered designs of distinctly oriental trend.

Suit trimmings show a preponderance of various red tones, also bands formed of several colored braids in primitive red, green, orange, blue and yellow, resembling soutache touches. Metal braid or piping is used with these trimmings.

Suit jackets range from an extremely novel type of short, flaring bolero to suit and coat as long as the dress beneath it, and entirely covering this dress, of contrast in material and color. Between these two extreme lengths are hip-length bloused jackets, either caught into a tight band or merely caught under, and sleeves of conventional length; belted jacket featuring a flat back with fullness drawn toward sides and front.

Different in type is a knee-length suit coat, sometimes cut with a suggestion of flare below the hip line. The upper part of the gown is fashioned partly or entirely of contrasting printed silk crepe. This gown is cut with a modified mid-Victorian neck line, high and straight across the front, lower in the back and is sleeveless in some instances.

Some gowns have full length bishop sleeves of printed crepe, supplementing a three-quarter length flare suit and jacket sleeves.

Jenny adheres to hip-length bloused effects in practically all afternoon frocks. The majority have either short sleeves half way to the elbow or are sleeveless, except for a drop shoulder band formed by joining the front of the bodice to the back in an overlapping seam. Full-length sleeves are fitting tight throughout, trimmed by a full, six-inch soft frill from the elbow to the wrist. They are exceptional but smart. Bishop sleeves of printed Georgette or silk crepe are shown in a few instances.

Jenny depends for novelty in afternoon frocks on the neck outline, new yoke effect and original side fullness of the skirt. Many charming effects are gained by finely pleated skirt panels of contrasting Georgette of silk crepe.

MANIKINS COMPETE AT THE SILK SHOW

Prizes Will Be Awarded Today to the Prettiest Girls in the Contest.

GOVERNOR SENDS GREETING

Telegram Says Industry Has Become a Vital Factor in Assets of the Nation.

With many new features of interest, including a contest for the prettiest manikins and new fashion displays, the Silk Show drew the largest attendance thus far yesterday in the Grand Central Palace. During the day telegrams were received from all over the country, felicitating the management on the success of the Exposition. Gov. Smith telegraphed to Horace B. Cheney of the Show Committee as follows:

"Few people realize how far-reaching the development of the silk industry in America has been. The many uses to which the material has been put by progressive manufacturers and the fine body of business men connected with its merchandising are a great addition to our industrial life. The silk industry has certainly become an important and vital factor in computing our industrial assets. May I add my congratulations on your successful International Exposition."

Ramsay Peugnet of the National Spun Silk Company visited the exhibition yesterday. He declared that silk has become so popular that now even the waste fibre of the cocoons is used, as well as the regular strands which are reeled from it. He also declared that American women no longer demand foreign silks.

In the contest to determine the prettiest manikin by popular acclaim at the Corticelli display, Misses Anna Buckley, Elsie Westcott, Virginia Magee, Rosemary Sell, Margaret Machaym, Louise Carlton, Florentine Gounova, Lenore Lukens and Gertrude Laird drew long loud applause. The prize winners will be announced today. The judges are Mrs. W. R. Patterson and Mrs. John D. Garrison and H. H. Phillips of the Penn Thrown Silk Company.

Mrs. Kay Cammack, Assistant Secretary of the New York Trust Company, one of the four women bank officers in this city, will speak today at the show.

NOT DOROTHY ARNOLD.

Brother and Family Attorney Discredit Report From Albany.

The report that a woman resembling Dorothy Arnold, who disappeared mysteriously thirteen years ago, had died recently in Albany was discredited yesterday by the missing woman's brother, John A. Arnold, and the family attorney, John S. Keith.

"I am quite sure that there is no significance in the rumor," said Mr. Arnold. "I have heard nothing of it, and if there were any likelihood that my sister had been found, I should certainly have heard something of it before now."

"I don't intend to pay any attention to the rumor, Mr. Keith said. "I can't imagine Miss Arnold's being sane, as the woman in Albany is said to have been, and able to return home without doing so. This is simply one of the rumors, such as come to us three or four times a year."

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday 4½ per cent. for the best names Wednesday 4½ per cent. for the best names The quotations are for six months' paper.

Fruits in Millinery.

This is to be another fruit year in millinery. Bright yellow oranges, half as large as life, come with an spray of orange blossoms and leaves and show to advantage on a pale green felt hat with a gauze rim. A pretty rosette-like cluster of white cherry blossoms repeats the colors, having a bunch of yellow sherries in the centre. There are all shades of red cherries, luscious in size and color, and berries of different kinds and seed pods. Fruits of many kinds, including grapes and peaches, appear upon the handsome ribbons, some of them with a metal thread.

Styles of Apron Dresses.

Apron dresses take the place of the old bungalow apron and are more in the nature of a dress. The technical difference between the apron and the dress is that the former is a slip-on and does not have set-in sleeves. The dresses are pretty and gay. One in checked imported gingham has white transparent organdy in a V in the front, in the belt and edging the sleeves. A little flower in color is set on. Pink and green are the colors that go well. Plain chambray is combined with checked gingham, and a pale green chambray has set-ins of orange-flowered cretonne. The apron dress also comes in black satine with rick-rack braid in contrasting colors finishing necks and sleeves. The dresses are made to retail at 79 cents each for the domestic gingham, and up.

The Why of Nose Veils.

Nose veils for women are new, pretty and economical. They are small, in half moon shape, to be worn with small hats. The straight line goes around the hat and the curved part comes just under the nose or possibly just covers the lips. They suggest the small mask of other days which figures in many romantic stories, and are piquant. They come in some simple mesh with a little border around the curved edge and in different shades of brown, in gray and in black. There are a few which come with a more elaborate all-over design. Being small, they take little material and are, therefore, less costly, retailing from 75 cents up.

Uncertainties in Hosiery.

A number of hosiery buyers, while expressing satisfaction with conditions for Spring, claim that it is impossible at this time to give consideration to proposals on Fall merchandise. Full fashioned hosiery, according to the current news bulletin of the National Association of Underwear and Hosiery Manufacturers, is still in an unsatisfactory condition from a market standpoint, with manufacturers working under high prices for raw silk, while the finished goods are not commanding as firm a price as they did six months ago. Jobbers are not finding an active demand for wool or silk and wool lines, and salesmen report that retailers are trying to move this merchandise by means of price reductions to the consumer. The range of colors being ordered is considerably shortened, tending toward browns and blacks. Clocks are in less demand and fancy colors are finding little favor.

Fall Clothing Conditions.

More and more attention is being directed in clothing manufacturing circles to the Fall season. Actual operations await the delivery of sample pieces by the mills. The late opening of these will prevent any very early showing by the clothiers, and it seems doubtful whether there will be any large number of men on the road until after Easter. Meanwhile, there is a sub-surface feeling of more or less hesitancy due to the higher prices of woolens, which, coupled with the fact that shop labor shows no reduction, are deemed to make higher clothing prices practically inevitable. It is feared that the already narrow margin of profit under which many clothiers have been operating will shrink still more when the attempt is made to meet retailers' views by naming close prices. From current indications, manufacturers' production may be forced toward both ends of the price range, with the medium grade suit the sufferer. Retailers, in turn, may have to adopt a similar policy, which was generally followed about two years ago.

Children's Capes and Knickers.

Wool capes for children in fancy knit goods are having a vogue at the present time. They are convenient for an extra wrap to slip on and off. They come in solid colors with stripes of a contrasting color and with a deep white brush wool collar. One pretty model with sleeve holes is in pink with white collar, cuffs and lapels, and a little simple embroidery on each of these. The capes wholesale at from $21 to $27 a dozen to sell at from $1.75 to $2.25. New for Spring for the little people is a three piece knicker suit. It differs from the Winter suit, which has the bifurcated lower garment, full length, fastenedd with straps under the feet. The newer suits have real knickers finished at the knee with a tiny cuff with buttons. There is a sweater and skull cap. They are pretty things and come in the more solid and useful colors, among them the Harding blue. They sell at from $36 to $42 a dozen to retail at $5. All are for children from 2 to 6.

Raw Silk Situation.

Little change is reported in the local raw silk market. Trading is quiet and quotations rule firm. Holders, according to H. L. Gwalter & Co., Inc., still retain their confidence. Business in finished fabrics is very promising and, with the mills working at capacity in most instances, it is declared a question of time when manufacturers will have to re-enter the raw material market in a liberal manner. The Yokohama market is holding very firm. Prices there have made slight gains since the close of last week under fairly good buying for American account, totaling from 5,000 to 6,000 bales. Double extra A is quoted at 2,230 yen and Sinshiu No. 1 at 2,170 yen. Stocks amount to about 29,000 bales. At Canton the market is firm on the basis of $1,900 (Mex.) for the 14-16 size and $1,810 for the 20-22 new style. For April-May-June shipment the new season crop is offered at about $100 less, but buyers are not willing to operate so far ahead. There is a small business being done in steam filatures at Shanghai. Milan is strong, with spot silk almost unavailable.

Gray Goods Continue Active.

Trading in gray goods yesterday was again quite active, with practically all of the interest, however, centreing in print cloths. Despite the net loss for the day registered in the raw cotton market, prices of standard constructions were very firm. There were sales transacted on contract for February-March-April shipment in 39-inch 68-72s at 12 cents, while similar shipments of the 38½-inch 64-60 construction were traded in on the basis of 11 cents. Southern lots of 38½-inch 60-48s were reported dealt in at 9½ cents, but for "quick Eastern" 9⅝ to 9¾ cents were the ruling quotations. Little attention was directed to sheetings, which were unchanged.

Does Not Show Real Business.

By the standards by which the woolen trade gauges actual orders, the great surplus of apparent business which the leading producer now has in fancy-back overcoatings is said not to be an actual reflection of the situation. In other words, the orders said to be placed for twice or more of the possible production which the company can make of these goods are not considered to indicate that much real business. It does naturally indicate the extent to which fancy-backs are desired in the market. But, beyond this, the great overplus of orders is said to be due to the fact that a numerous group of clothiers has ordered from two to three times their requirements in the hope that the final percentage allotted them will be larger. It was pointed out yesterday that ordering of this character is usually not done by the more representative clothiers, who have their careful estimates made and generally get their exact orders filled, but in the procedure of that class among which cancellations are common.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Advance After Early Irregularity—Foreign Exchange Quiet.

The upward trend on the Stock Exchange continued yesterday. It appeared to reflect the mood of the financial public, as perhaps was shown by the enthusiasm with which Wall Street discussed some very matter-of-fact remarks on the business situation and outlook, made by the Secretary of the Treasury. At times there were some signs of irregularity in the stock market, but the advances for the day far exceeded numerically the declines, and the business done again exceeded a million shares.

What was particularly noticeable was the extent to which Wall Street lost interest in "the Ruhr" as a factor in the financial situation. It was hardly discussed in financial circles yesterday. Even at London and Paris, the rise of Government securities was the incident of the day's markets. Trading in French Republic bonds on the New York Stock Exchange quieted down distinctly; they scored fractional advances, however.

The foreign exchange market itself appeared to be losing interest in the Franco-German deadlock. Rates on the principal European markets ended virtually at Wednesday's figures, and although the franc was pushed up and down during the day by speculators, here and at London, its net change for the day was negligible in both markets. Only the German mark showed signs of activity; it got at one time above three-thousandths of a cent. Insamuch as it was quoted last week at two-thousandths, it has had the respectable recovery of 50 per cent, following the 85 per cent decline of the four preceding weeks. One is certainly inclined to wonder how the German commercial mind can keep track, in its price schedules, of these prodigious swings in value of the currency. The Frankfurter Zeitung's index number of wholesale prices Feb. 1 showed a rise during January from 205,417 to 715,881, a comfortable enhancement of 250 per cent. One of the incidents of yesterday's markets was the rise of wheat to $1.21⅛. It has been at $1.15¼ within a fortnight. It was in February of 1922 that the price got within ⅛ cent at $1.50.

The Bank of England's ratio of reserve to deposit liabilities rose yesterday fractionally above 20 per cent. This has not happened since March, 1920, and it occurred in only five weekly statements of that year. No fixed ratio of reserve is required at the Bank of England. Before the war a 40 per cent. ratio used to be termed the "apprehension minimum," but the war has largely modified ideas in that respect.

Note circulation at the Bank of France shows increase for the week of 325,788,000 francs. This can again have no connection with the expenses of the Ruhr occupation, however, because the Government is stated to have borrowed nothing from the bank during the week. The State's debt to the bank is practically the same this week as it was when the French entered the Ruhr. It is true, however, that repayment of 1,400,000,000 francs of the debt was made in the corresponding interval last year; so that unusual expenses may have had some hand in the debt's present stationary position. Some increase in French bank note currency has occurred in this week during every recent year, but the present increase is much larger than the usual sum. Except in so far as a more active French trade than that of February one and two years ago may have called for increased currency, the cause of the movement is not clear.

Our own Federal Reserve statement was chiefly noteworthy for the reduction of rediscounts, which decreased $31,500,000 during the week. New York accounted for practically all of this. In the face of this curtailment of loans, note circulation rose $14,100,000. It is still, however, $246,000,000 below the end-of-December total, and the reduction during the same period last year was only $277,000,000.

BURLINGTON MERGER CALLED NECESSITY

Separation From Northern Pacific and Great Northern Would Be Disaster, Says R. Budd.

MUST CUT OPERATING COST

Railroad President Plans to Lower Labor Expense by More Efficient Methods.

Any attempt to separate the Burlington from the Northern Pacific and Great Northern railroad systems would prove disastrous to transportation in the Northwestern section of the country, according to R. Budd, President of the Great Northern, in a statement made here yesterday. The merger of the three, he said, is acceptable to all the parties concerned, but any separation of those systems would prove so injurious that none of the three companies would agree to it.

The consolidation he urged as a necessary move in the interest of economy, and the opportunity to combine the three systems is one which does not exist elsewhere in the country for the "prompt realization on a large scale of the consolidation principle set forth in the Transportation act." Mr. Budd also called attention to the heavy taxation burden now being carried by the railroads and said that this weight had been almost doubled in six years.

"It is necessary to consider what constitutes the principal item of expense," President Budd said. "In 1922, of every dollar expended by the Great Northern Railway, 55 cents went for wages, 15 cents for fuel, 15 cents for other material, 12 cents for State and Federal taxes and 5 cents for other miscellaneous items, such as loss and damage, depreciation, &c. The result of the year's operations was a totally inadequate net railway operating income equal to 3¼ per cent. on the company's investment. It is in the public interest to see that the very small return on railway investment be increased as promptly as may be, and it is perfectly obvious that can be accomplished only through reduction in the costs of fuel and other material and in the labor costs as well.

"Reduction in the item of labor cost does not necessarily mean lowering the wages of the employes; it does, of course, mean accomplishing more from a given expenditure for labor, and something can be accomplished in this direction without reduction in wages by more efficient performance of the individual employee, by keeping abreast of the development in modern shop methods, tools and appliances; by further perfection of motive power and cars; by making improvements in terminals, and by making grade reductions and otherwise improving the roadbed. Such additions and improvements, of course, involve additional capital.

"If these consolidations can be accomplished I believe many additional economies will be developed, especially in the West, and these in turn will inure to the public benefit, because, directly or indirectly, all railroad operating costs will have to be borne by the public. There will also be developed various methods of expediting railroad transportation and make it more satisfactory to the public."

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

The foreign exchanges were particularly dull and irregular yesterday, with the outstanding feature weakness in francs in London before our opening. In London the franc sold down to the equivalent of 8.11 cents but by the time our market opened prices had steadied and the low in New York for the franc was 8.17 cents, after which it was advanced to 8.28 cents, and closed at 8.21 cents, within a fraction of the final price Wednesday. Sterling again moved over a very narrow range but did not break $4.67, while the other principal exchanges, as a rule, were irregular but rather from lack of business than anything else. Transactions are on a particularly narrow and unimportant scale at the moment.

There is no evidence to be found in the foreign exchange market of particular fright at the new crisis which has developed in the Near East. The market shows only irregularity and a disposition to mark time until the problem of the Turk is settled.

Gross Earnings for January $1,900,000 Higher Than in 1922.

Increased traffic and earnings in January and the termination of the strike of its employes were announced yesterday by the Northern Pacific Railroad Company. NO TAX REDUCTIONS FOR HOME EXPENSES

Bureau Says Family or Living Expenditures Are Not Exempt on Income Returns.

ADVICE TO STOREKEEPERS

Physicians May Deduct Cost of Office Only in Rented Home—Other Rules Made Clear.

Inquiries received by the Bureau of Internal Revenue indicate a mistaken impression in the minds of many taxpayers concerning deductions from gross income for personal expenses. In this connection a statement from the bureau says:

"Deductions for living or family expenses, such as amounts expended for food, clothing, education of children, rent for a dwelling, hire of domestic servants and similar items for the upkeep of a home, are expressly disallowed by the revenue act.

"A storekeeper may not clothe himself and family with goods taken from the store and deduct the cost of the clothing as a business expense. A restaurant keeper or hotel proprietor should make an allowance for meals for himself and family.

"The same rule applies to a physician who conducts a sanitarium. A shopkeeper who dwells over his place of business should deduct as a business expense the rental only of the portion of the building used for business. A farmer may deduct as a business expense wages paid a farm hand, but not those of a domestic employed in his household.

"A physician who maintains an office in a rented home may deduct the proportion of such rent properly chargeable to the portion used for professional purposes. If, however, he maintains an office elsewhere and incidentally receives patients in his home, he is not entitled to deduct any part of the rent for his residence as a business expense. If a physician owns the home in which he has his office no deduction for rent is allowed.

"The same general rulings in regard to deductions for home and office expenses apply to other professional men."

COSTA RICA AGREES TO CANAL PROTOCOL

It Provides That She Shall Be Consulted on Her Interests in Nicaragua Route.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—A procotol has been signed by the United States and Costa Rica eliminating difficulties dating back many years and affecting the possible future development of the Nicaraguan interoceanic canal route.

The procotol provides that in the event of a decision by the United States to build a canal along the Nicaraguan route Costa Rica shall be consulted directly by the United States with relation to the interests she holds under the terms of the Nicaragua-Costa Rica boundary arbitration award made by President Cleveland. It specifically mentions Costa Rican interests in the San Juan River section of the canal route and in Salinas Bay as a possible canal terminal.

Presumably the result of the discussions with Costa Rica, in the event of a definite project to build a new canal being taken up, would be the granting by the United States of payments to the Costa Rican Government in return for canal route concessions similar to the $8,000,000 payment to Nicaragua provided for in the treaty negotiated by Secretary Bryan granting canal concessions by that Government to the United States.

SEEKS MAIL TUNNEL FOR NEW YORK CITY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—A bill appropriating $2,000,000 for the construction of a mail tunnel between the Grand Central and Pennsylvania Railroad stations and the main Post Office in New York City was introduced in the Senate today by Senator Calder. It authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to acquire such land or rights as may be necessary and to begin construction as soon as the necessary preliminaries can be accomplished. The sum of $500,000 is provided to begin the work.

"It is proposed," said Senator Calder, "that this subway shall be built at a cost of $2,000,000, and used exclusively for the carrying of mails of every description between the New York Central Railroad station and the Pennsylvania Railroad station in the City of New York.

"This subject has been carefully investigated by the Post Office Department in the past and was recommended by former Postmaster General Hitchcock after a complete investigation by a commission headed by Postmaster Morgan of New York City, and a most exhaustive study of the whole subject. It has been carefully inquired into by the Post Office Committees of both Houses of Congress and by the Postal Commission, which is composed of Senators and Representatives.

"The War Department engineers have investigated the matter at the request of the Postal Commission and reported that the matter was feasible. If the tunnel is constructed it will be entirely separate from all the other subway systems in New York and will not be built for the accommodation of passengers. It will be operated by electricity. The cars will be small uncovered ones that can be operated without engineer or motorman.

"This is not a matter of local interest to New York City alone; it is national in its advantage. It is true that it acquires 400 mail truck trips per day to transport the mail between the Grand Central Station and the Pennsylvania Station. New York City would receive but a small portion of the benefit to be derived from the construction of this tunnel—at least 80 per cent. of the mail carried would be through tonnage from Canada, New England and Northern New York intended for the South and West—and the mail from the South and West for New England and other northern points could be handled with much less expense and greater expedition. It is a matter that should interest not only New England and New York, but California, Kansas, Illinois and the South.

"The railroads operating out of the Grand Central Terminal cover practically all of the country to the north and east. From the Pennsylvania Station terminal trains are operated covering the entire South, West and Southwest. The tonnage of mail transported is the greatest moved between any two points in the country. The surface connection between these two terminals is the greatest in all America. The trains operated out of New York at these two terminals arrive and depart underground, and in making connections it will not be necessary to bring the mail to the surface at all, thereby saving valuable time.

"In New York City, where traffic disturbances are a serious problem, the saving of vehicular space in the congested streets is exceedingly important, and not only will we decrease the confusion and discomfort now existing there, but undoubtedly many lives will be saved in getting underground this vast tonnage of mail."

Senator Calder will try to get action on the bill at this session.

FROM DEFICIT TO SURPLUS.

Butte Copper and Zinc Co. Shows Net Income of $22,847 for 1922.

The Butte Copper and Zinc Company yesterday issued its report for the year ended last Dec. 31, showing net income of $22,847, as compared with a deficit of $61,075 the previous year. During 1922 the company mined 29,885 tons of ore, an average of about 200 tons a day having been mined after August when the demand for zinc increased. In its balance sheet the company listed among its assets investments amounting to $425,000, accounts receivable, $22,208, U. S. Treasury notes, $208,275, and cash, $55,003, against the sum of $56,634 under the item of accounts payable and reserve for taxes. The company's surplus was listed at $808,348 and capital stock at $3,000,000.

According to the company's report, a settlement basis has been arrived at after negotiations with the Federal Government in the matter of paying for back taxes, and the income and excess profits taxes have been paid up to 1919.

EASTERN CRUDE OIL PRICES INCREASED

GULF COAST $1.50 A BARREL

Pennsylvania Bradford Is Quoted at $4—Corning and Ragland Rates Unchanged.

A general advance in the price of crude oil was seen yesterday in the announcement of increased quotations for various grades by two companies. The Texas Company has advanced Gulf Coast crude oil 25 cents a barrel to $1.50, and the Joseph Seep Purchasing Agency has increased the price of Pennsylvania crude 10 cents a barrel to $4.

The announcement by the Texas Company marks the first change in Gulf Coast crude since Nov. 9, 1921, when the price, was advanced 25 cents a barrel from $1. Caddo heavy, below 30 degrees, has been advanced 10 cents a barrel to $1.15, it was stated.

The change of price by the Joseph Seep Agency stated that all grades of Eastern crude oil were advanced 10 cents a barrel with the exception of Corning and Ragland. The new prices are: Pennsylvania crude oil, Bradford district, $4 a barrel; Pennsylvania crude, outside Bradford district, $3.75; Cabell, $2.61; Somerset light, $2.55, and Somerset, $2.40.

A survey of the fluctuations of Gulf Coast crude oil, produced in Southern Texas and Southern Louisiana, and used principally for its yield of lubricants, sold as high as $3 a barrel in 1920, and then declined 6 to a low point of 80 cents a barrel in June, 1921. This was the period when all grades of oil had sharp price declines, following the record prices in 1920. During 1922 midcontinent crude was increased from $2 to $1.25 a barrel, but later on the Gulf was graded, and since then it has been increasing in price. At one time during 1922 Gulf Coast, at $1.25 a barrel, was selling for the same price as midcontinent crude.

WASTE PAPER TO PAY FOR BIG BUILDING HERE

Salvation Army Will Erect 200-Room Social Service Home Between 14th and 42d Streets.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—A social service building of 200 rooms will be erected in New York somewhere between Fourteenth and Forty-second Streets by the Men's Social Department of the Salvation Army that will cost the people of New York to build nothing but their waste paper and discarded household goods, it was announced at today's session of the Salvation Army Congress. It was also announced that improvements will be made in the present industrial home in Jersey City, the cost of which will be defrayed in the same manner.

It was pointed out during the discussion of the project that the average person who turns over a pile of discarded newspapers, an old stove, broken down furniture or a worn suit of clothes has small realization of the constructive work that these materials are doing for the Salvation Army to accomplish. In the industrial homes and social centres operated by this organization the process followed is to bring human driftwood and material waste together to make something useful. The material is salvaged and sold to the poor at small cost that they may furnish their houses and clothe themselves, while the waste paper is sorted, baled and sold.

Gets a Big Traction Order.

One of the largest orders for street railway equipment ever placed has been obtained by the General Electric Company from the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company for car equipment for 520 new cars to be placed in service on this line. The order consists of 1,040 GE-275-A railway motors, two motors for each car. In addition, there will be control equipment and air compressors for each car. The cars, of which 135 will be double-end and 385 single-end type, will be manufactured by J. G. Brill & Co.

COAL SHIPMENTS TO CANADA SMALL

New York State Getting More Than Their Equivalent in Water Power.

JERSEY TERMINALS JAMMED

Six Thousand Car sof Substitutes, 240,000 Tons, Await Orders From Dealers.

Replying to a letter from General George W. Goethals, State Fuel Administrator, calling attention to complaints from up-State that large quantities of coal consigned to Canada were passing through those districts, F. R. Wadleigh, Federal Fuel Distributer, has written an explanation of the situation, dated Feb. 6. In his letter to General Goethals Mr. Wadleigh says:

"Disregarding any other factors involved, it would call attention to the fact that shipments of household sizes of anthracite coal to Canada are now proceeding at the rate of approximately 168,000 gross tons per month, amounting to 2.1 per cent. of the total anthracite shipments, and this amount is necessary in order to maintain health and life among tenement dwellers in Canadian cities, while shipments of similar sizes into the State of New York, from the last weekly figures available, were at the rate of approximately 1,300,000 gross tons per month. The above figures do not include shipments by the Hudson Coal Company.

"Coincident with this New York State received April 1 to Dec. 31, 1922, from the Canadian side, 778,788,740 electrical horsepower which would require at least 1,062,888 tons of coal in its replacement."

General Goethals is now up-State conferring with district fuel administrators with regard to reports of a widespread shortage of coal in the State. The delivery of coal to Canada is in accordance with an agreement by which Canada exports electricity equivalent to 2,000 tons of coal a day into New York. If she chose to retaliate, many plants from Buffalo to Syracuse and as far as the Pennsylvania line would be shut down, it was said.

New Jersey terminals are so badly jammed with cars of soft coal and steam size anthracite that shipments of domestic anthracite are being held up, Harry T. Peters, Assistant Fuel Administrator, said yesterday. Under present conditions only 500 to 700 cars were being handled daily, it was said, whereas under normal conditions at least 2,500 cars a day could be taken care of.

According to reports received yesterday morning there were 4,800 cars of bituminous for which there were no orders and 1,200 cars of steam size anthracite, making a total of 6,000 cars, or 240,000 tons, of substitutes at tidewater.

EXPORT MANUFACTURES LARGER IN DECEMBER

Shipment of Foodstuffs, However, Were Less Than in November.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Manufactured articles made up the largest single item of American domestic exports for December, although the total for raw materials for manufacture was nearly as large. Manufactured foodstuffs ranked third.

Total exports for December were $339,352,004 compared with $374,543,791 for November.

Figures made public today by the Department of Commerce gave the following export classifications and comparisons with the corresponding totals for November: Raw materials for manufacturing $113,349,531, against $114,828,-797; raw foodstuffs $25,764,306, against $33,614,948; manufactured foodstuffs $49,619,558, against $51,470,025; partly manufactured products $35,878,935 against $33,592,583; manufactured commodities $113,936,636 against $110,531,-574; miscellaneous $803,036 against $1,-006,064.

Analysis of the total exports for 1922 compared with the total for 1921 show the following figures: Raw materials for manufacturing $981,357,279 against $963,962,354; raw foodstuffs $458,353,360 against $692,248,671; manufactured foodstuffs $588,242,722 against $669,065,598; partly manufactured products $437,764,-343 against $396,238,949; manufactured commodities $1,292,878,412 against $1,-225,967,456; miscellaneous $7,100,83 against $7,846,997.

The total of exports for 1922 compared with the total for 1921 was made public recently by the Department of Commerce as $3,765,192,135 against $4,-378,928,024.

The year's earnings, based on an adjustment of book earnings and reductions in royalties and after deducting depreciation and tax charges, amounted to $713,433, as compared with $434,229 in 1921. The company is capitalized at 150,000 shares of no par value stock, of which 100,000 shares are issued. J. S. Bache & Co., bankers, will offer 75,000 shares of the stock for public subscription early next week.

WHEAT UNSETTLED AND CLOSES LOWER

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—The wheat market was decidedly unsettled tonight, breaking early in sympathy with unresponsive Liverpool cables, only to turn strong and sell at a new high on the present movement, with September in new ground for the season. On the bulge, profit taking was very heavy, especially above $1.21 for May, and the close was with prices unchanged to ½c lower, the latter on September.

Houses with Eastern connections were good buyers of May early, and also bought May and sold July, which widened the difference at the last to 6¾c after selling at 6¼c at one time. This compares with 5¼c at the close on Tuesday.

The Chicago-Winnipeg May spread was 6¾c at the close, against 6⅛ at the previous day, Winnipeg showing weakness a good part of the day.

Germany is said to be getting Russian rye at a price considerably lower than it can be offered from America.

Flour business in the last few days has been much larger than reported. It is known that four mills in various parts of the country sold around 100,000 barrels Monday and Tuesday, partly for April-May shipment, and total flour sales on the books of Western mills are estimated to be enough larger to take care of the total visible supply of wheat at Western points. Some of the wheat now afloat at Eastern ports is also owned by mills and will be secured as soon as possible.

Snow fell over part of Western Kansas late in the day.

Liverpool closed unchanged, while Buenos Aires was up 1 @ 1⅛ for the day.

A local house is said to have bought 3,000,000 bushels cash down to arrive from the country so far this week, securing around 1,000,000 bushels today. The hedging sales against this grain combined with heavy profit taking by Bartlett, Frazier and other longs made an unsettled market.

Hedging pressure made a drop of as much as ¾ cent in May early, but the commission house trade had broadened materially and offerings were readily absorbed. Prices moved up readily to a new high on the crop for all deliveries, May touching 76⅝ cents.

Above 76 cents Bartlett sold heavily and at the close there was a net loss of ¼ cent for the day, while the deferred futures were unchanged to ⅛ cent higher.

The country shut off selling cash corn as a result of the reaction and two of the leading private wire houses reported no purchases made after the close.

Buenos Aires closed 1@1½ cents net higher for the day.

It is figured that a good part of the Iowa corn for sale at 60 cents at country points has now been sold and the bulk of the 65 cents at Illinois points had been placed.

Oats closed unchanged to ⅛ cent lower one selling, the trade longs, while rye was 3¼@3½ cents lower.

Primary receipts of wheat today were 879,000 bushels; week ago, 926,000; last year, 874,000. Shipments were 403,000 bushels; week ago, 533,000; last year, 449,000.

Corn receipts were 918,000 bushels; week ago, 1,051,000; last year, 2,044,000, and shipments, 590,000 bushels; week ago, 805,000; last year, 1,597,000.

COTTON IRREGULAR AND PRICES LOWER

Conflicting Opinions and Operations Hold Market Under a Firm Check.

Another bewildering session occurred in cotton yesterday, operations being both extensive and difficult to trace. Fluctuations indicated either lack of confidence or a contest between opposing forces which was not decisive until the market gave way during the afternoon. For two days trading has proved of a most unusual character, causing extensive price changes and impairing confidence. This was not confined to New York, as both Liverpool and New Orleans have furnished evidence of similar oscillations. Some idea of events is to be derived from the fact that July opened $1 a bale lower, recovering $2 a bale and then broke $3 a bale, closing at the bottom. Tens of thousands of bales were thrown into the ring the last hour, with final prices 22 to 41 points below Wednesday.

Early development showed that many conflicting opinions and operations were at work not only here but abroad. Liverpool broke about half a cent during the morning and the decline brought foreign selling as soon as the Exchange opened. Both May and July started 20 points off, bringing May below 28¼ cents and July nearly 27¼ cents. For a few minutes selling proved unsettling when covering of a large quantity of October contracts encouraged professional operators to support the old crop. A bidding-up process was soon under way and by midday July had recovered 40 points. Action of March in New Orleans in holding over that month in New York, together with reports of an advance basis in some Southern markets, helped the upturn. A considerable quantity of cotton changed hands, with frequent and rather sudden fluctuations which indicated an unusual degree of nervousness in many quarters. When buying was in progress, contracts became difficult to obtain without an advance in price. On the other hand, the moment support was withdrawn prices slipped off quickly. Fluctuations had been so violent and unexplained the previous day that many had begun to distrust the immediate stability of value which the artificial position of May did much to minimize.

During the afternoon selling assumed large and aggressive proportions. Though one prominent operator continued to take May contracts on every slight dip below 25½ cents, cotton kept coming out in large lots. Offerings were until it became no longer possible to stem the tide. The last hour a violent attack developed, with May the storm centre. An apparently unlimited quantity of contracts at the disposition of two or three operators started a break which carried figures to low levels of the session. May broke through 28.30, 28.26 and below 28.10. Despite vigorous opposition, all buying orders on the scale down were filled, July declining under 27½ cents. So much cotton was thrown into the ring the last half hour that the impact drove prices steadily lower. Selling orders for 5,000 and 10,000 bales, both in May and July, followed each other in rapid succession. One broker had no sooner executed an order when selling burst out in another quarter, furnishing no opportunity for the slightest recovery. Considerable excitement attended final trading when May sold near the 28 cent level, three quarters of a cent below prices quoted the previous day.

An explanation of the violent changes sweeping over the market can hardly be discovered without recourse to what has happened the past nine months. Throughout this period, the position of cotton has received a greater degree of publicity than at any time since the Civil War. Fear of a scarcity created in speculative and mill circles has carried prices to the highest figure in times of peace in half a century. Both raw material and manufactured goods stand at abnormal altitudes. It is not surprising that many conservative cotton men are beginning to wonder whether factors have not spent much of their force in the way of discounting the future. Increased caution has been unmistakable, which action of the market itself has served to augment. But the fact is not ignored that it will be nearly seven months before new cotton can be expected to relieve the situation.

MRS. ROCKEFELLER SELLS BURNED HOME

Disposes of Madison Avenue House to Subsidiary of Johns-Manville Company.

WAS VALUED AT $200,000

Will Be Used as Part of Site of New Building to Be Erected in Forty-First Street.

Mrs. William G. Rockefeller, whose home at 292 Madison Avenue, was damaged by fire last week has disposed of the property to the Manville Securities Company, a holding company for the Johns-Manville Company.

The sale of the property is a direct result of the fire which was discovered about 7 A. M., on Feb. 1, by a maid, who opened the closet to lay out Mrs. Rockefeller's clothing.

Mrs. Rockefeller moved from the house the following day to the Hotel Ambassador, stating that she would probably never return to occupy it. The house, which was given to him by her father, James Stillman, was valued at about $200,000.

The lot, 23.9 by 95, will be included in the site of the new building now being erected by the Johns-Manville Company on the southwest corner of Madison Avenue and Forty-first Street. With this purchase the company has acquired one of the most important plots in the Forty-second district, with 95 feet on Madison Avenue, and 98 feet on Forty-first Street.

William A. White and Sons negotiated the sale of the property.

FORTY CITY NURSES ORDERED EVICTED

Emergency Rent Laws Apply Only to Individuals, Not Corporations, Justice Robitzek Holds.

In signing a final order of eviction and granting a stay of thirty days, Justice Harry Robitzek, in the Second District Municipal Court, the Bronx, yesterday gave it as his opinion that the emergency rent laws did not apply to corporations, but to individuals only. This is said to be the first case in which an appeal has been made to have these laws invoked as protection for the City of New York.

The action was brought by the Terrace Construction Company, Inc., of 1,686 Davidson Avenue, owners of the building at 2,535 Cambreileng Avenue, adjacent to Fordham Hospital, used as a dormitory for forty hospital nurses. The nurses are employed by the city for service in Bellevue and Allied Hospitals, which includes Fordham Hospital.

Harry Champoli, President of the construction company, contended that his company wanted the lease to the city terminated so his company could sell it. The last yearly lease terminated Nov. 1, 1922. At that time, Corporation Counsel George P. Nicholson declared, the company had been offered the yearly rental of $720 but had refused to accept it. He said the reason the company wanted the nurses evicted was that they wanted to rent the building for $1,500.

Justice Robitzek said he signed the eviction order feeling sympathy for the nurses, "knowing the hardship for the nurses the eviction from the dormitory they have been occupying will occasion." He said the case now became "a pretty case for the Court of Appeals to decide."

Corporation Counsel Nicholson said after the stay of thirty days was granted that he would take the case before the Court of Appeals immediately and move for a further stay pending final settlement.

FIND BANK ROBBER MURDERED IN GRAVE

Frank Holloway Believed to Have Been Slain by Own Gang in Oklahoma.

TULSA, Okla., Feb. 8.—Frank Holloway, former convict and known as a bank and train robber, whose body was found in a shallow grave near here yesterday, was slain by members of his own gang, according to the theory advanced by authorities here today.

Holloway was said by officials to have been the brains of an oragnization composed of the "fastest steppers and most daring gunmen" of the West.

The story of Holloway's activities which led to his death, as told by local authorities, had its inception in New York City two years ago, when more than $500,000 in Liberty bonds were taken in a daring robbery. The bonds turned up in Tulsa later, the story goes, in the hands of Holloway and his mand.

Holloway's manipulations woth the bonds are said by those who related the history of his career to have led the members of his gang to believe he had double-crossed them. Yesterday Holloway's body was found in a hidden grave in the shadow of Pistol Hill. He had been shot twice through the head. The course of the bullet downward through his body led the authorities to believe Holloway had ben killed while on his knees.

Robbery was discarded as a motive for the slaying as a pair of diamond-studded cuff links and $53.20 in cash had remained untouched.

BELNORD BLOCK SOLD TO INVESTORS

Syndicate Buys Thirteen-Story Structure Occupying Entire Block Front.

Property Is Largest Single Residential Structure—Investor Purchases Turin Apartments.

The Belnord, a thirteen-story apartment house occupying an entire block on Broadway, was sold yesterday in what is said to be the largest recorded transaction involving a single residential structure. The building, which covers the entire block bounded by Broadway, Amsterdam Avenue, Eighty-sixth and Eighty-seventh Streets, was held by the sellers at a valuation of $6,000,000.

Corinth Construction Company, Charles Newmark, President, are the sellers, who have disposed of the property to a group of investors, composed partly of out-of-town capitalists, who have formed a private syndicate organized by Anderson & Herd. The property has an annual rental of $1,000,000.

The sale was negotiated by Maurice Renard and Day & Day. Mark Rafalsky & Co. have been appointed as managing agents for the Belnord by the new owners, who purchased the property strictly for investment. Henry Mansfield represented the seller as attorney, with Robert E. Knowles acting in a similar capacity for the buyer.

The Belnord was erected in 1909 as an investment for the Hoyt Estate by the Fuller Construction Company, under direct supervision of Hiss & Weeks, architects, and regarded at that time as the last word in multiple dwelling construction. The Belnord has maintained its supremacy not only as the largest apartment house in New York, but as the finest type of liberally planned, well-built structure. It contains, in addition to two block fronts of stores, 176 apartments of from seven to eleven main rooms. All apartments are supplied with refrigeration from the Belnord plant, which also makes its own light.

Besides the advantages as to light and air naturally possessed through the occupation of a complete city block, there is an interior garden 231 feet long by 94 feet wide, or nearly 22,000 square feet, which is larger than the court of any similar building, and upon which many major rooms open, affording exceptional quiet.

A $1,600,000 investment deal was closed yesterday when Dr. Bernard A. Kantrowitz bought the twelve-story Turin apartments at the northwest corner of Central Park West and Ninety-third Street from Isidor Zimmer, Samuel Resnick and Frank Locker.

The Turin stands on a site fronting 125 feet on Central Park West and 175 feet on Ninety-third Street, and was bought by the selling syndicate last March from Joseph W. Doolittle. The house contains suites of from six to nine rooms and returns an annual rental of about $225,000. I. Katz was the broker in the deal.

Elberon Hall, a nine-story apartment house on a plot 55.6 by 100 feet at 385 Central Park West, between Ninety-eighth and Ninety-ninth Streets, was sold by Charles Hensel, a builder, to the Manport Realty Company, Isaac Portman, President. The building contains two eight-room apartments on a floor and yields an annual rental of $30,000.

It was held at $200,000. Wood, Dolson Company were the brokers in the deal.

Tenants Seek Broadway Lease.

A syndicate of tenants including I. Breitbart & Bro. and Schwartz & Jaffe have offered to lease for twenty-one years the former W. & J. Sloane building, a six-story structure at the southeast corner of Broadway and Nineteenth Street, 128.7 by 188, with an "L" through to 33 East Eighteenth Street. The syndicate also has in mind the purchase of the adjoining nine-story building at 36-38 East Nineteenth Street, owned by the W. & J. Sloane firm.

Old Third Avenue Houses Sold.

N. J. Hess purchased the northeast corner of Seventy-third Street and Third Avenue, 41.8 feet on the avenue and 115 feet on the street containing 7,000 square feet and covered with old buildings. Daniel Freedman was the seller. Ogden & Clarkson were the brokers.

Brooklyn Trading.

Pierrepont Davenport, as broker, sold the one-family semi-detached stucco dwelling at 1,316 East Twenty-sixth Street, for the Jorgo Construction Company to William Gundlach for occupancy.

Long Island City Sale.

Roman-Callman Company have sold for R. Klein and M. Braunschweig the southwest corner of Freeman Avenue and Hancock Street, Long Island City, 37.6 by 112 feet, to the Atlas Novelty Company of Manhattan, who will immediately erect on the premises a fireproof factory building for their own occupancy.

Operator Resells Morton Street Site.

James L. Van Sant, an operator, resold 6 Morton Street, a three-story building with store, to Louise A. Cobb. The purchaser contemplates making alterations to the property. Mr. Van Sant purchased the property last month. The broker in the transaction was the Durosa Company.

$1,000,000 West Side Deal.

Julius Tishman & Sons have sold to an investor the nine-story apartment house at 110 West Fifty-fifth Street, completed by them in January, 1922.

The building houses sixty-three families, who pay an annual rental of about $160,000, and has been valued at about $1,000,000.

REFUSES SECRECY IN TELLEGEN DIVORCE

Court Declines to Order That Hearings Be Private—Leaves It to the Referee.

Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan yesterday denied the application of Alvin Untermyer and Arthur E. Schwartz, opposing counsel in the Farrar-Tellegen divorce suit, to make the hearings before Referee Thomas H. Mahony secret. He left the entire matter up to the referee.

At Mr. Mahony's request, the two lawyers appeared before Justice Cohalan yesterday and argued for privacy at the hearings, in an effort to avoid newspaper publicity. Both Untermyer and Schwartz refused to talk upon leaving the courtroom.

Mr. Mahony said he would announce his decision next Tuesday morning, at 10:30, when the next hearing is to take place. Although he would not intimate what course he would follow, it was learned from source close to him that the referee did not believe in "star chamber" proceedings. Furthermore, at the hearing last Monday, which was adjourned when reporters presented themselves, Mr. Mahony said, "So far as I am concerned the hearing can be public." He then refused to exclude reporters and asked the lawyers to present their arguments before Justice Cohalan.

When asked for the ruling, the Justice is said to have told the lawyers, "I never sent a matter to a referee for the purpose of keeping it secret. That matter is entirely one for the judgment of the referee."

CLERGYMAN ARRAIGNED.

Wife Charges He Pawned Her Suitcase to Buy Liquor.

The Rev. Joseph Vashol of 121 East Seventh Street, who said he was a clergyman of the Russian Orthodox Greek Catholic Church, was arraigned in Night Court last night charged by his wife, Mrs. Margaret Vashol, with disorderly conduct. Mrs. Vashol testified that her husband came home intoxicated and that he had pawned her suitcase to obtain money to buy liquor.

Mr. Vashol, who explained that he had no baggage at present, admitted pawning the suitcase, but said it was his own. He denied that he was intoxicated and explained that he had drunk only four glasses of beer. Magistrate William A. Sweetser parcied him until tonight and directed the probation officer to make an investigation.

Snow Saves Flaming Woman.

RAHWAY, N. J., Feb. 8.—Mrs. Florence Hoff probably owes her life to her quick action in running outdoors and throwing herself into a snow bank when the strings of her apron were ignited by a gas stove in her home at 31 Union Street today.

She was taken to the Rahway Hospital suffering from severe burns about the face, arms and neck. Physicians say the chances of Mrs. Hoff's recovery

BOBBED HAIR IS DOOMED

Looks Ridiculous With New Hats and Gowns, Says Hairdresser on Return From Paris.

Rough weather and unusually high seas caused much sickness among passengers on the United States Lines steamer President Adams, which arrived from London yesterday. Some varied the Coué formula by saying: "I will not be sick, I cannot be ill." Various degrees of success were reported when the ship reached her pier in Hoboken. Captain P. H. Kreidbohm said that the President Adams met extremely rough weather and that gales were encountered virtually all the way across.

Miss Genevieve Archella of this city, who during past voyages had suffered much, was one of the 130 passengers who were reported to have successfully convinced themselves that they would not be seasick, and she gained three pounds during the trip.

Bryan Baker, an English sculptor, brought with him a bust of Chief Justice Taft for which Justice Taft sat during his visit to England. An exhibition of Mr. Baker's work will be held at the Anderson Galleries.

Mrs. Paul Barnes, widow of the composer of "Good-bye Dolly Gray," returned from London with her niece, Miss W. Shakert. Mrs. Barnes denied that her husband had died deserted. She said he had been blind for five years before his death and that she had assisted in nursing him in a hospital. He was buried at the Laconia Cemetery, Bay Side, N. H., where she has a home, she said.

Lillian Treloar of 54 West Fifty-seventh Street returned from Paris, where she studied hairdressing. She said she had found that because of the new styles in gowns and hats, bobbed hair is doomed.

"Fashion now decrees," she said, "that the hair be worn dressed high on the back of the head and framed about the face so as to best bring out the features of each individual girl or woman. This eliminates bobbed hair. This change in the style of hairdressing has come about due to the fact that with the long gowns now decreed by the leading Parisian designers the bobbed hair makes the head appear too small.

"The fashion bazaars have also decreed that bigger hats must be worn with these new gowns, and that these hats with bobbed hair look ridiculous."

Other passengers were William Dawson, Thomas Girvan, Dr. Gaston, Dr. M. D. Icove, Alan T. Hurd, J. T. Lloyd, Dr. E. L. Bruck, Miss R. Brighton, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Vanderbilt, Dr. R. S. Swinney and D. B. Roderick.

JUDGE AND MAYOR SERVE JAIL TERMS

West Palm Beach Officials Are Sentenced for Remarks About Circuit Jurist.

WEST PALM BEACH, FLA., Feb. 8.—Judge J. L. Earman of the municipal court and Mayor L. J. Biggers, sentenced by Judge E. C. Davis of the Circuit Court to ten days in jail after he had declared them to be in contempt of his court, today had the distinction of being the first inmates of the new county jail.

The conviction for contempt followed a remark made by the Mayor in a speech that "in our town we have a Circuit Judge who is as weak as water," and a letter written by Judge Earman regarding Judge Davis's disposition of a case appealed from the municipal court.

Why Should I Establish A Trust Fund For My Family?

THE following letter received by the Trust Department of this bank answers the above question:

"I have received your advertising matter regularly and appreciate it very much.

"I would be interested in learning how I could arrange to have my insurance policies, real estate and bonds put into a trust fund so that some regular income could be paid to my wife and children in the event of my death.

"I carry $15,000 in life insurance, real estate worth approximately $4,500 and have about $12,000 in bonds which net me 7%.

"In times past I have seen some smooth-tongued sucker make hay with what some widow had left, whereas if it had gone into a trust fund it would have provided an income for a number of years."

A Trust administered by this bank prevents any "hay making" with a widow's funds. You are assured that your life insurance, real estate, securities or other property will be handled by men thoroughly experienced in the field of investments. The resources and reputation of a great bank insure the execution of your will in accordance with its exact terms.

We would be glad to show you, through a personal conference, how safe and comprehensive a Trust can be.

Cheaper Heat With Buckwheat Coal

Egg, Stove and Nut coal—the domestic sizes of Anthracite—are not the only sizes you can use for heating purposes.

Buckwheat Anthracite coal is much more economical than these large sizes.

Practical and scientific tests prove that a ton of "Buckwheat" can deliver as much heat as a ton of Egg, Stove or Nut.

Why shouldn't it? It's the same coal made by breakage when larger domestic sizes are manufactured.

In the Spencer Heater, especially designed to burn Buckwheat coal, the astonishing economy in fuel cost, the extraordinary saving in attention and the even heating possibilities of Buckwheat are being demonstrated in thousands of homes, apartment houses and large commercial buildings every day.

Spencer Steam, Vapor, Hot Water Heaters

Utmost in Economy

The Spencer burns no more tons of cheap coal than ordinary heaters burn of more expensive sizes—and produces the same amount of heat.

The Magazine Feed Saves

The Spencer has a water-jacketed magazine that feeds the coal to fire as needed. This magazine holds a 24 hours supply for ordinary weather, and for 12 hours in severe weather.

The Minimum of Attention

So perfect is the operation of the Spencer that attention once every 10 or 12 hours only is needed to maintain a steady, even fire. This is of utmost importance in apartments, green houses and garages where no night fireman is employed.

Look Up the Spencer Record

For 25 years Spencer Heaters have been giving exceptional and highest economy service. Your heating engineer can install a Spencer Heater with any steam, vapor or hot water heating system, in any type of building.

Ask a Spencer Owner

You can, because there are Spencer Heaters in action right in this city. Write or phone the nearest office.
